Saxonia and Philadelphia Safe—Inquest Into Holt Suicide—Morgan Able to Go Out

NEW YORK, July 8.—Police authorities continued today their investigations to ascertain whether Frank Holt had planted bombs on board any steamships now on their way across the Atlantic ocean. As a result of wireless warnings, reassuring messages had been received from the captains of the Saxonia and Philadelphia in mid-Atlantic saying that those steamships had been searched for bombs and nothing found. These were the two vessels mentioned by Holt in his letter to his wife in Dallas, when he wrote that one of them should sink on July 7.

Thus far the police authorities have not been able to discover that Holt had any accomplices in the making or placing of his bombs. Police Commissioner Woods said the indications were that Holt had worked alone.

Inquest on Holt's Suicide

Arrangements had been made to hold an inquest on Holt's suicide today. His identification as Erich Muentner, indicted in Cambridge, Mass., for the murder of his wife, was regarded by the authorities as complete.

CREDIT TO CAPT. HURLEY

Friends Point Out That It Was Cambridge Inspector Who Caused Holt's Identification

BOSTON, July 8.—Chief Inspector Patrick J. Hurley of Cambridge, the man who in large measure made possible the identification of Holt as Muentner, feels now sure that the case on which he has worked for so many years is ended.

He was Chief Inspector Hurley just the same in 1905, and under his direction were the efforts made to trace and capture the fugitive Harvard instructor. Those efforts were unavailing, but Inspector Hurley never forgot the case and preserved a wealth of material about it.

It was he who suggested Theodore W. Hillier as competent to make the identification, and he also advanced the name of Charles R. Apted.

As soon as the Muentner theory was advanced last Saturday evening he sent to New York the pictures and description of the long missing man, and while the authorities there paid little attention to him, his friends believe the credit should chiefly go to him.

TORNADO HITS MIDDLE WEST

Most Devastating Storm in Several Decades, Extending From Nebraska to Ohio, Took Toll of Lives Estimated at Over 50, and Destroyed Several Million Dollars' Worth of Property—Heaviest Loss of Life in Cincinnati, Where 35 Were Killed

According to figures compiled early today, more than 50 persons were killed and several scores injured by the wind and rain storm which extended from Nebraska to Ohio, last night. The property damage is estimated at several millions of dollars.

The greatest loss of life occurred in Cincinnati and vicinity where 35 persons are known to be dead and 15 missing, 18 of the dead there being dockhands who were drowned by the capsizing of the towboat Conroy on the Ohio river.

In eastern Missouri the storm assumed the proportions of a tornado, demolishing 163 blocks in St. Charles, St. Peters, a town of 300 inhabitants, and Gilmore, a village of 100, were almost wiped out. In St. Charles possibly three persons perished. In St. Peters there was no loss of life, while in Gilmore only one person was killed.

In Lincoln and Custer counties, Nebraska, wind and hail caused heavy damage to crops.

In southern Illinois the storm was severe. At Mound City, the business part of the town was flooded.

In central and southern Indiana three persons were killed and many injured. Telegraph and telephone service was demoralized, buildings were unroofed and crops damaged by the heavy wind and rain.

35 DEAD IN CINCINNATI

Most Devastating Storm in Several Decades Descended Upon That City Last Night

CINCINNATI, O., July 8.—The most devastating storm that has visited this city in several decades descended about 9:30 o'clock last night, lasted for half an hour, took a toll of lives estimated as close to 35, and wrought property damage somewhere between half a million and a million dollars.

Many Are Missing

As definite reports began to filter in today from the suburbs where telephonic communication was slowly being established, the list of the missing, which at last reports last night indicated between 15 and 20, was increasing.

Railroad Service Paralyzed

Railroad service was partially paralyzed, and wire communication with the outside world was confined to press service. The streets of the city were littered with fallen trees, signs, roofs of houses, and other wreckage that has been tossed there by the wind.

Numerous church spires were blown down and the street car service was decidedly limited.

Houses Collapsed

From the other side of the Ohio river, in Newport, Covington, Fort Thomas and Fort Mitchell, Ky., come reports of collapsed houses and the street car service entirely suspended.

In the outlying districts of Cincinnati the property damage appears to be heavy, particularly in the residential sections of Clifton, Avondale and College Hill.

With one exception, that of five buildings at Sixth and Mound streets, no one locality appears to have suffered more than the other. According to reports this morning, however, it has been found that there are not many buildings in the city that have not suffered to some extent.

Race Horses in Wreck

It was ascertained today that a special train on the Pennsylvania, carrying race horses from the meeting at Latonia recently ended, to the eastern tracks was wrecked at Terrace Park, a short distance from this city. Nineteen of what are considered the best horses that raced at the Latonia meeting were killed. It was also reported that two caretakers were killed and 19 others injured including several jockeys. The large racing stable of E. R. Bradley was on this train.

Officers, they said, about the defendant, loitering around a barroom and buildings in the vicinity of "Merri-mack square." The case was continued until Saturday for sentence.

William J. Hunter, formerly of Everett, pleaded not guilty to being a vagrant. Officer Gookin of Chelmsford said that Hunter had been hanging around a barn in Chelmsford for three or four days and was arrested yesterday for throwing stones at passing automobiles. When asked where he slept nights, the prisoner said he walked nights in an attempt to get work for the daytime. His case, too, was continued until Saturday.

Teutonic March on Warsaw is Halted—Austro-Germans Suffer Heavy Losses

At the moment when the Teutonic march through southern Poland was beginning to threaten first Lublin and then Warsaw it has been brought to a halt. Official statements from each side agree that at the one point—in the angle north of Krasnik—where the Russian lines were still displaying weakness they have been strengthened. It now appears that Grand Duke Nicholas' forces are holding their ground all along the extended front.

Heavy Losses

Determined attempts by the Austro-German forces to drive the Russians out of what remains to them of Galicia are continuing. Petrograd reports assaults by great forces east of Lemberg but declares they were repulsed with heavy losses to the attacking army.

Lull on Austro-Italian Front

Apparently there is a lull in the furious fighting along the Austro-Italian front after the recent determined attacks by the invading forces. Official statements from Rome, however, declare continued advances are being made on the Carnic plateau where the progress is described as "slow but constant."

TEUTONS FORCED TO ASSUME THE DEFENSIVE AND TO PAUSE IN RUSH

LONDON, July 8, 12:30 p. m.—So great has been the weight of reinforcements brought up by Russia along the stretch of territory between the rivers Vistula and Bug, notably in the vicinity of Krasnik that the Austro-Hungarians for the moment have been forced to assume the defensive and to pause in their rush toward Lublin and the rail was running from that city to Warsaw.

Blow at Austrians

The sector on the eastern front where the Russians are making a stand is held almost exclusively by Austrians and observers here see in the Russian attack not only a desire to keep their line intact in this important part, but a deliberate blow at the Austrians who, according to the official reports, are making a stand.

PARIS, July 8.—The Rome correspondent of the Havas News Agency sends the following: "The Corriere Del Sera says that news has been received at the Vatican that Germany, as a result of the pope's intervention, has ordered the release of Madame Carton de Wiart."

Madame de Wiart, who is the wife of the Belgian minister of justice, was sentenced recently to three months imprisonment for corresponding with her husband, according to news dispatches. Blaze Broke Out on Atlantic Line Steamship Minnehaha

NEW YORK, July 8.—The Atlantic Transport line steamship Minnehaha, on her way from this port to London, was fighting a fire today in No. 3 hold, according to a wireless message received by the line.

The fire was not believed to be serious.

Aboard the Minnehaha was a cargo of approximately 15,000 tons, including munitions of war. At the time the message was sent—5 o'clock yesterday afternoon—the ship was 570 miles southeast of Halifax. Apparently she had made Halifax and was on her way to London. The captain said he was putting back to Halifax.

The Minnehaha sailed from New York July 4 for London by way of Halifax. She carried no passengers.

Minority Stockholders Lose Case Against Directors of N. H.

BOSTON, July 8.—A suit of minority stockholders to recover $102,000,000 from former and present directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad who were charged with responsibility for alleged improper expenditures of company funds was dismissed by the supreme court today.

William C. Rockefeller, Lewis Cass Leary, James S. Elton and Charles S. Mellon were among the defendants. The decision was handed down by the full bench and was on an appeal by the railroad from a superior court decision enjoining the corporation from transferring stock standing in the names of the defendants. The full bench also had before it an appeal of the plaintiffs from a decree of Supreme Court Justice Hammond dismissing the bill on against the estate of the late J. Pierpont Morgan and other deceased non-resident defendants. Judge Hammond also had decreed that the bill could not be maintained by the plaintiffs nor could it be maintained if brought in the name of the corporation itself, that the plaintiffs as stockholders had acquiesced in some of the acts complained of and that the bill failed to show that the expenditures were made for an unlawful purpose and that the company did not get full value for what the directors expended.

In the rescript accompanying the decision handed down today the court says: "The allegations of the bill do not show reasonable application to directors to institute proceedings to recover the losses referred to in the bill nor facts showing that such application would have been useless."

Lyon Co. Rugs

The Ardahan rug, "The American Oriental" manufactured by the Lyon Carpet Co., of this city resembles very closely the Oriental rug made by hand methods. Woven by the modern loom of more than human accuracy, the Ardahan is excellent in wearing qualities and texture. It is a seamed rug made without mitered. In addition, the wool is procured from the same source as that used in the Orient. Every precaution is taken in washing, and the rug is made under perfect sanitary conditions.

The rug is made on the principle that the quality and amount of stock on the face of the rug, with the proper bind, is what gives the wear. All the yarn is on the face where the wear comes. The fastest of dyes are used in its coloring. The pile stands perfectly straight which gives a resilient tread and may be brushed at any angle. No sizing of glue is used in the whole manufacturing process. The weight of the rug, measuring nine by twelve, is fifty-five pounds.

The design shows through clearly to the back, a feature to be found in Oriental rugs. Each tuft has a double bind mechanically executed. The weight and evenness of the weave prevent its sliding on the floor. For the same reasons, when laid on stairs, the pile will not open over the nosings, or "grin," but retains its close regularity.

There need be no doubt as to the wearing qualities of a rug of this nature or any rug manufactured by this up-to-date carpet company. An example of its durability is seen in a rug over which 750,000 persons walked. Over another in a hall in mid-winter when it was subjected to a severe test on account of the sleet and snow, 450,000 persons passed. Mr. Lyons, manager of the local plant has many sheets of data concerning the tests of rugs of different kinds, and letters guaranteeing the above statements of the tests of the rugs will be gladly shown, and the rugs may be obtained for advertising purposes upon request.

In buildings where floor coverings are subject to the severest kind of wear, fabrics of this nature are invariably found.

Three vital points must be considered when purchasing a rug—first, harmonious coloring; second, good design; and third, wearing quality. To-day the public more keenly appreciates these features, and among the Lyon Patterns may be found all that is best in Oriental art, both in coloring and design. The patterns also include modern all-over designs as well as medallion effects. To those who require the luxuries of a deep pile carpet, with permanency of color, long wearing qualities, with soft, mellow tones expressed in designs of broad treatment, the product offered by this company is among the best manufactured in the country. And it is for this reason, and because the company boasts of a live manager in George Lyon, that the local plant is running full time the year around with all hands steadily employed. The Lyon Carpet Co., bids fair to be probably the only carpet concern in the city within a short time and in the quality of its product it will rank among the highest in the whole world.

Mayor Joseph E. Bell, who also was among those indicted, issued a statement saying: "The pleading guilty of the seven men yesterday is an attempt to connect us with men with whom we have never had any dealings in any way whatsoever. These men came into court and pleaded guilty without the indictment being read."

"They were immediately released on their own recognizance and this seems rather unusual."

Among those who pleaded guilty was Bernard Dickelman, indicted with Mickey Moran on the charge of conspiring in Marion county to vote more than once and have others vote more than once in the election held at Terre Haute, Nov. 3, 1911.

After the motion for a change of venue to another judge was filed, Judge Collins used Friday as the date when attorneys for the state and defense will select a judge to try the case.

SCENE FROM "FIGHTING BOB" Featuring Orrin Johnson, at the B. F. Keith Theatre Today, Tomorrow and Saturday

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

A martial picture in five parts and showing over 300 specially made scenes is "Fighting Bob" which will be shown the latter half of the present week at the B. F. Keith theatre. The subject is one which will make instant stars of the main faces connected with the events of recent memory. The Mexican revolution in which Huerta deposed and later killed Madero the president, is the background through which work the characters of "Bob" and Dulcinea, the beautiful scorchita. Orrin Johnson, an excellent actor of the legitimate stage, and Olive Wyndham, an equally well known leading woman, will enact the principal parts in this drama. Mr. Johnson has never before appeared in motion pictures, and it is also the debut of Miss Wyndham. The story tells of the collection by a pretender of an army of irregulars, of their depredations and of the brave defeat of his forces by those of "Fighting Bob". It makes an exceedingly lively story, for it is full of action, and, without, the most charming of love tales, it goes straight into it. The photography of the picture is of the very best. As usual Manager Pickett has surrounded the picture with several other excellent features, which cover the entire bill from real comedy to the dramatic. This theatre is one of the real cool spots in town and one may rest assured that he can see the best of the plays in town in absolute comfort.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"How do they do it?" is the question which puzzles a great many people. The answer is that the Merrimack Square theatre announces a double feature program. It is certainly unusual offering for a five and ten-cent admission motion picture theatre. The first feature is a picture of the metropolitan cities. Two brand new, five-act Paramount features of the same quality have been secured by Manager White to be shown during the last three days of this week.

Maud Allen, the famous dramatic star, appears in "The Rug Maker's Daughter," a most unusual motion picture and one of the latest features released through the Paramount feature corporation. The picture is shown in five acts, and is a well rounded production and well, wonderfully artistic settings that add necessary touch of realism.

The other Paramount is a powerful and thrilling war drama, "Brother Officers," a new idea in war photo-plays. In addition to these there is a fine comedy picture, "No Doubt," which depicts the pleasure of the pleasure of the extraordinary program of motion pictures.

CANOBIE LAKE PARK

Miss Edna Story, the Vitaphone motion picture star, who in portraying Violet Allen's part of "The Christian," the famous love story by the author, the picture version of which is being shown at Canobie Lake Park theatre all the week, has been in the drama and in the picture. Miss Story is well known to speak since she has been called "the sweetheart of the screen," and prior to her entrance into pictures was an actress of the stage.

According to Miss Story, playing such a part as Violet Allen in "The Christian" in pictures is infinitely harder than in the theatre. "It is upon the stage," Miss Story's actress is that the photo-play actress is deprived of her power of speech, and anyone who will realize what difficulty they would have if they were asked to convey all of their meanings without using words.

In the picture, Miss Story is seen at her best, even though she has a splendid elocutionary ability. But on the screen where this delivery is useless, she shows every emotion and runs the gamut of feeling merely by facial expression and gestures. She has it reduced to a science that it is possible for her to convey all the meanings, and not make a sound.

She has taught herself all of the subtleties of theatrical acting under David Belasco and others and then to become a screen actress she had deliberately thrown away her elocutionary powers and studied mute expression from a purely scientific standpoint. Thousands have read the book, thousands more have witnessed the stage version of the play, and many thousands more have already seen the splendid motion picture portrayal. Yet each and all of these will want to attend Canobie Lake Park this week and enjoy the story all over again, for "The Christian" is a picture that all can enjoy over and over again.

WANTS IMMEDIATE TRIAL

TAGGART SAYS ELECTION FRAUD CASES ARE PERSECUTION—MEN RELEASED

INDIANAPOLIS, July 8.—"This whole business is a persecution and a prosecution and I demand an immediate trial," said Thomas Taggart, democratic national committeeman from Indiana, yesterday, after 150 of the 151 men charged with frauds in the 1914 registration, primary and election, had been arraigned and seven had pleaded guilty before Judge James A. Collins in criminal court.

"I never had anything to do with any one of the men who pleaded guilty yesterday," declared Taggart. "I do not know these men and it seems funny to me that they should be permitted to go on their own recognizance if they are so guilty. I don't know what I have been indicted for, although I have made every effort to find out. I want an immediate trial because this whole thing is a persecution and an effort to besmirch my name as

Mayor Joseph E. Bell, who also was among those indicted, issued a statement saying: "The pleading guilty of the seven men yesterday is an attempt to connect us with men with whom we have never had any dealings in any way whatsoever. These men came into court and pleaded guilty without the indictment being read."

"They were immediately released on their own recognizance and this seems rather unusual."

Among those who pleaded guilty was Bernard Dickelman, indicted with Mickey Moran on the charge of conspiring in Marion county to vote more than once and have others vote more than once in the election held at Terre Haute, Nov. 3, 1911.

After the motion for a change of venue to another judge was filed, Judge Collins used Friday as the date when attorneys for the state and defense will select a judge to try the case.

Registrar of Voters

Speaking of that registrars' they're at it as merrily as if the election coming tomorrow when you can't get near for a year. Dr. J. H. Rooney is holding over, as municipal council neglected to vote a registrar during the months prescribed by law. The job is being held by an eminently qualified man by Dr. Rooney, and hence there's no occasion for any sleepless night on the part of the taxpayers, or of the members of the municipal council. It is one of the rare cases where a testiflutious proved a good thing. There's no no in the situation. The staff are busy, nevertheless. The law provides that this particular office be held by a republican, and there's one beautiful thing for which the republican party has ever been known for its proclivities at times to furnish a sufficiency of candidates for office, with a salary attached. PUTNAM & SON CO.
166 Central Street

"My refrigerator smells sort of close and musty," said Marjorie, "what can I do to make it sweet and clean?"

"We use lump charcoal," advised Marie, "and we have found nothing as good as having the goods go a long way. Before cleaning the refrigerator remove all articles of food to a table or shelf within easy reach. Have ready in the stationary tub or an ordinary wash tub, pool of water with household ammonia and good toilet soap which is free from perfume. Place on all the shelves and movable fixtures, including the tray on which the ice rests. The ice should be wrapped in newspaper and set in the coolest spot available. When the fixtures are washed at them out in the sun to air and sweeten.

"With the same suds wash the walls of the refrigerator, rinsing thoroughly the last few times with cold water. Bring in the fixtures, dip them in cold water, wring the water out, dip them in cold water, fit them into the refrigerator, remove the paper from the ice, return it to its proper compartment and quickly shut the door. Then, as quickly as possible return the food and shut the refrigerator door.

If the food is put away carefully in properly constructed a refrigerator should not be cleaned more than twice a week. For the refrigerator not connected with a sewer or outdoor drainage, one may buy a new and cleanly trap for carrying the water into the waste pan.

The trap is attached to the waste pipe from the ice compartment and is cone shaped. Inside the cone shaped piece is a corrugated center of metal not unlike a half opened umbrella which comes to a sharp closed point at the top. The water from the ice compartment flows down the corrugated piece and, finding no outlet at the point, is forced upward again and pushes its way through tiny openings with a pressure that downward and then upward. All odors pass out through the ice windows and do not upward into the ice compartment. The trap can be removed and cleaned daily.

He was a native of Georgetown and was the only son of the late Hosea G. and Mary Jane Spofford Killam. After graduating from high school he came to this city where he was employed as a clerk and bookkeeper. He came to the office of the Merrimack National bank in 1870 and in 1881 succeeded John L. Hobson as cashier, which place he retained until 1903 when he was selected as a candidate for the new municipal council, to become head of the department of finance. He served in that capacity for two years and then retired to private life.

Mr. Killam was for many years elected to the sinking fund commission and had been a trustee of the Five Cent Savings bank. He was a member of the Pentucket club, of which he was past president; of Sagadahoc lodge No. 10, of which he was the most prominent citizen; of Haverhill

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Your baby should spend most of its indoor life in a nursery free from damp, exposed to sunshine and with free ventilation. There must also be freedom from dust gathering carpets and furniture, arsenic painted walls, and fifth harboring cracks in the floor. There must be absolute cleanliness in every condition surrounding the child's life.

Its bed must be far enough away at night from that of the adults to avoid breathing their breath, avoidance of currents of air to avoid rheumatism, painted toys on account of possible poisoning, the avoidance of woolen or feather toys.

You should weigh the infant carefully each week on a correct standing scale, to determine if its gain is what it should be, if properly fed. Unless there is some definite contra indication, a child should be bathed every morning in water adapted to its vitality, never so cold as to cause blueness or cold extremities, or so hot as to prove injurious.

To amuse a child who is slightly ill or kept indoors by storm get out the encyclopedia and turn to the pages of flags printed in various colors. Show the child the page and suggest that you both try to make some flags in the colors shown.

When I tried it with great success I found I had some scraps of sateen and cambric left over from fancy work which served the purpose admirably. Of course any other material would do, and even colored paper pasted on the background of the flag, would do all right. The most used colors are red, white and blue, which will not only make our own flag but are used also in the merchant flag of Germany, the design of France and in several others. Yellow and green are the colors next most prominently used.

In our training of children we are constantly tempted to contradict ourselves. At one time we appeal to their bravery, we solicit courage for doing this or that, for enduring pain or discomfort. Shortly we have occasion to call upon fear of injury, or of disapproval. In one case we exalt courage and laud it as among the highest of virtues and remind the child of all the heroes we have not yet forgotten. But in a few hours we exalt prudence and remind him of the miserable fate of the foolhardy who did not look twice before they leaped.

It is not necessary, however, to suppose that courage and caution exclude each other. Fear as a help in training is a double edged weapon. We have learned that obedience based on fear will turn into defiance at the critical point. Parents who rule through a sympathetic understanding and firm hold of the child's needs, are far more successful than those who arouse fear.

Fear, in children, arises from the necessity of dealing with the unknown. Children are afraid of the dark because there is no telling what may or may not be in there. A child may be made familiar with the dark, as when someone in whom he has confidence stays with him and keeps his attention, until he is quite at ease among the shadows. The familiar never causes fear.

Caution on the other hand, arises from judgments based on knowledge. It is a known danger that leads to prudence and care. It steadies the muscles instead of making one tremble, because it is so largely a matter of thought and understanding, rather than a matter of feeling as is the case with fear. The more a child knows about the things in his little world the more likely he is to be fearless.

Every mother who has the welfare of young people at heart, ought to support and encourage the social center movement, which aims to throw open to the public for recreation, their own school buildings. The boys and girls should be set to form committees, to draw up programs and to control these social evenings.

So much of the harm that comes to girls follows from their never having been encouraged to develop their own initiative. At home and at school girls are told to do this and that, and are not encouraged to think things out for themselves. It is very noticeable that while many boys get into trouble through their spirit of adventure, more girls come to grief through the same spirit. They are not able to protect themselves as they are trained today.

When a child spills his food in his tray, take a newspaper, fold it twice and tear out one corner on the fold. Open once and put it on the tray. The torn part will fit around the child's stomach and the rest goes under his arms.

I have frequently been distracted (trying to put on my children's sneakers when a shoe horn was not available, and have learned that the corner of a handkerchief, placed well into the heel, makes a good substitute.

TAXES ON EDDY ESTATE

LITIGATION TO DETERMINE WHERE THEY WILL BE PAID STARTED AT CONCORD

CONCORD, N. H., July 7.—Litigation to determine where the taxes on the Eddy estate are to be paid this year was started today by the filing of a petition for the abatement of the taxes assessed in Concord by Messrs. Streeter, Demond, Woodworth and Sullivan, counsel for the estate. Since the creation of the trust under the decision of the New Hampshire supreme court by Judge Corning of the probate court for Merrimack county, the estate has been taxed five-sixths in Brookline, Mass., where five of the trustees reside, and one-sixth in Concord, the home of Josiah Fernald, the treasurer of the trust who holds all of the funds here. Next year the tax will be paid in Concord without protest under the provisions of a law passed at the recent session.

UPLIFTING THE GAME

Kennedy Tells Roach How Old Bill Shakespeare Would Have Rooted on the Diamond

In the office of the Lowell team in the Hildreth building a few days ago, Owner Andy Roach and Secretary Jimmie Kennedy were discussing the Lowell team; its slump, and baseball conditions generally.

Andy was inclined to be philosophical and a trifle reticent while Jimmie was quite outspoken, and didn't hesitate to express his innermost feelings. "It's getting to be a common thing to lose," exclaimed Jimmie, in deep disgust, "and it's time there was a change. Why, when I was bartering on Broadway I had a team called Kennedy's Pets, and if they couldn't put up a better bluff than that bunch who are masquerading in our uniforms I'd drive them off the corner. The game wouldn't let them sit on the North common. They're enough to drive you out of the game."

"As Con Daly would remark," replied Andy, "there's an element of truth in what you say, James, but still, as my old friend of school days, William Shakespeare once said: 'I will not give my part of this sport for a pension of thousands.'"

By a beautiful one-hand catch Mr. Kennedy rescued the exquisitely-colored meerschaum pipe which had slipped from between his teeth as he opened up to let go an astonished: "Luh!"

Recovering his pipe and his composure, simultaneously, Mr. Kennedy said: "I pray thee, little one slide that across again, I was figuring out whether thy short-changed us at Manchester, Monday morning, and didn't have my eye on the ball. Come across with it once more, there's nothing to wait for."

"I was quoting William Shakespeare, my friend of school days," said Andy, smilingly. "Shakespeare, Shakespeare?" murmured Jimmie, reflectively, but with a twinkle of the eye. "He's the guy who lived on Marion street and went to the Mann school. His father used to work in the big shop. The old man was with me when I ran for the council."

"My dear man, I'm referring to the famous dramatic poet, Shakespeare; not to any of your ward two constituents," replied Mr. Roach.

"Well, why thee—Of course you were, and I'm glad you did, for it recalls something important that I have meant to take up with you regarding the uplift of the game of baseball," said Mr. Kennedy.

"If it's important, I'll listen; otherwise tell it to Ben Maloney, for my time is limited," replied Andy, while Mr. Maloney who had just dropped in, prepared to just drop out.

"Well," remarked Jimmie, incidentally placing to one side, his 40 horsepower meerschaum. "Baseball is changing; that is to say, its tone is changing, and we must meet the change. It's the old saying, 'When you're in Rome, burn Roman candles.' Our ladies fans are bringing out the fair sex in large numbers, while the college-bred fellows are getting into the game. Already we have Louie Pieper of Harvard at Lynn; Tom Keady of Dartmouth at Manchester; and any number of players and managers from the different correspondence schools of the country. Thus the tone is changing and with it the change in language employed by players, managers, umpires, yes, and by the spectators. How it must grate on the sensitive ears of Louie Pieper or Tom Keady to hear a player on the lines, exclaim: 'Dat-a-boy, dat-a-boy; bum yer way, ol' scout,' not to speak of the effect on that portion of the grand stand with the high brow, and the low-necked expanse of front elevation."

"You're quite right, but what's all that got to do with Shakespeare?" interposed Mr. Roach.

"Like a good actor I also withhold my climax until what Bob Parades calls the psychological moment," remarked James. "My idea is to adopt the language of your old friend Shakespeare on the diamond. Old Bill was right there with expressions to meet the varying situations in baseball if he did live way back in the days when Jesse Burkett, Jim Cudworth, Bill Haves and Dick Conway broke into the game. The idea occurred to me one day last winter while sojourning in California. I went into a cafe with my old friend Carroll Smith and overheard a couple of guys quoting baseball expressions that emanated from the fertile mind of Shakespeare. It struck me that I might go home; start a movement to uplift the language of baseball and perhaps some day get my picture in The Sun, as a man who had left a monument for posterity, and say, Andrew, I love to pronounce that word, it is so similar in sound to another word that we haven't heard for so long—prosperity—to gaze upon and venerate. Hence in my leisure moments I have delved into the many volumes of Shakespeare and have culled therefrom some tid-bits, and if you care to learn something not found in Spalding's baseball guide, or Roach's handy baseball schedule just listen."

Then James unfolded a roll of manuscript and proceeded with "Shakespeare on Baseball," as follows:

CONNIE MACK NOW MAKING THIRD SACKER OUT OF WALLIE SCHANG

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—In the course of his efforts to fill the gap created by the retirement of Frank Baker to the simple life of farming and playing wildcat baseball Connie Mack has conducted many an experiment this season, but his latest is perhaps the most surprising of them all. Wallie Schang, stripped of his mask and mitt, is now in the role of a third baseman. Though he has shown no signs of relenting toward Baker, the tall leader of the Mackmen has found it more difficult to fill the hole at third than he anticipated. It is the point through which many a ball game has slipped this season, and even now it is doubtful if he would consider any other terms for the home run king than he has already offered. But by drafting one of the greatest catchers in the league for infield duty he has indicated that he is near the end of his resources for third sackers. Schang is the tenth or twelfth in the long list of candidates for the position. Oldring, Walsh, Murphy, Kopf and numerous newcomers have had a crack at it, but none of them showed any particular adaptability for the place. Schang has been at the station only a few days, but he seems to be doing as well as any of them. He has a good arm and is fielding neatly. However, it is not likely that Schang is lost to the mitt and mask. It is understood that Connie Mack has no intention of keeping him at third permanently. Several of the youngsters who have recently been tried out there fielded well enough, but Connie figured that he needed Schang's hitting to carry along the more or less uncertain pitching the Athletics have been getting all season.

THE CAMPAIGN BRIDGE

Viewing the bridge mudile in the most favorable light possible, it is difficult to see how the municipal council can proceed with the construction of a bridge at Pawtucket falls without leaving the city liable to serious financial loss in the future.

In the first place, the letter of Engineer Mills of the Locks and Canals company plainly shows that a bridge built under the Denman plans, conditionally accepted by the city, will make the city in various ways financially responsible for damage to property as a result of freshets where the present bridge would offer protection.

Again, it is shown that the abutments of the proposed bridge would offer so much greater obstruction to the flow of water in the river, that a channel two-thirds of the span in width and fifteen feet deep would have to be excavated in order in some degree to overcome this objection. The excavation of 9000 cubic feet of solid rock would cost considerable, and this would have to be added to the cost of building the bridge.

But that would not overcome all the liability for damage claims inasmuch as the arches even with the deeper channel proposed would still offer much greater obstruction to the descent of ice and hence, other things being equal, the new bridge would flood a greater area along the banks. For these reasons the Locks and Canals company, through Mr. Mills, gives the city this warning:—

"In revealing the difficulties and the perils which would be involved in the construction of this bridge as planned, the proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river are not to be regarded as assuming in any respect to the construction of the proposed bridge. The proprietors must hold themselves in readiness to assert and to protect their rights, and in pointing out the obvious difficulties which the present plans present, and the perils to the citizens which would result from its adoption, they are not to be held as assuming any responsibility or as having waived any rights in the premises."

In that notification lies the possibility of future suits by this company against the city, while the reasons on which this protest is based offer ground also to other abutters to complain if the city builds a bridge that leaves their property more exposed to damage by freshets than it has been from the old bridge.

The municipal council has an offer of $5000 from the street railway company on condition that the plans shall be approved by the bridge engineering experts of the J. R. Worcester company of Boston.

As soon as that offer was made the municipal council should have submitted the plans to the company in question for approval in order to receive the $5000 offered. Failure to do so shows that the council has not much faith in the plans tentatively approved. It is the imperative duty of the council to comply with the stated stipulation and secure the $5000 to aid in meeting the cost of the bridge. Is the municipal council so tied up to the Springfield concern as to openly ignore the city's interests in this respect?

The approval of the Worcester experts would be a further guarantee of giving the city a thoroughly good bridge, something that is much more desirable and much more for the city's benefit than that any kind of a bridge shall be thrown together hurriedly in order that certain officials can make political capital out of it in the fall. A bridge built for campaign purposes is not likely to be much good for any other purpose.

At present the middle in which the matter is involved and the unbusiness-like methods pursued cannot fail to disgust the public and lead to retribution at the first opportunity—unless the city council retrace its steps on the bridge question, have the plans approved by the Locks and Canals company, the Street Railway company and the other concerns which under the law must be consulted before any bridge can be built.

The approval of Prof. Swain now awaited will not take into account any of the objections raised by the Locks and Canals company nor the extent to which the new bridge would obstruct the water or resist an ice gorge.

These are a few of the fundamental objections to the methods by which the municipal council set out to construct a new bridge. They would all have been obviated at the start had plans been prepared and bids called for in the regular way. Thus all the loose tails such as the turning over the lumber purchased by the city to the supervising engineer would have been avoided. Why not pay the engineer entirely in cash rather than part in cash and part in lumber?

Engineer Denman is not the party to be criticized. It is his business to secure all the bridge jobs he can get; but the manner in which the city council has turned the whole problem over to this gentleman has barred fair competition which in such a case is the chief guarantee of getting the best possible bridge for the lowest possible price. Under the proposed arrangement the city may get a very poor bridge at a cost far exceeding that of the best. Is that business or is it a betrayal of the interests of the city in view of the fact that we want a bridge that will meet all requirements and withal stand for generations?

CHOLERA INFANTUM DANGER

With the approach of the hot weather, we may expect the usual appearance of cholera infantum with the resultant increase in the death rate. The milk station conducted by the Lowell Guild has done a great deal to reduce the infant mortality in hot weather. This has been brought about by the distribution of modified milk and by instructing mothers in how to protect the little ones against hot weather diseases.

The milk supply at the present time is much better than it was in past years but the very best milk will spoil if it is not kept cool. This is where some families make fatal mistakes. Milk that has changed as a result of the heat will upset the stomach of the strongest baby and this is often the cause of illness that is followed by cholera infantum. It is hard to convince some parents that a single mistake of this kind in hot weather may cause the death of a child, yet physicians in the course of their practice find frequent proofs that such is the fact.

At the present time there is no real excuse for allowing a sick baby to go without proper attention or treatment. If the mother cannot prepare the proper food, she can secure valuable assistance at the milk station; but it will not do to wheel a baby through the streets in hot weather as this would increase its illness. In such cases the nurses of the Lowell Guild call to the baby and give such directions as they may deem necessary for his proper treatment.

One of the most common causes of sickness among young children is the leaving them in the care of older children who either do not look after them properly or know not how. Some mothers who have to work leave young children at home in this way when it would be much better to send them to the Day Nursery. Through all the agencies that work together for the protection of young children, the navy ages of cholera infantum have been happily checked in recent years; but there is still room for further progress in this direction. Unfortunately there are many mothers in our city who do not know anything about the Milk Station at 17 Dutton street and they even hesitate a long time before calling a doctor when baby gets sick. As a rule the children of such mothers are physically strong and can endure treatment that would promptly prove fatal to most others. The child in such cases is like the wild flower that can withstand the chilling blasts under which the hot house product would quickly wither and die.

END OF THE WAR

Those who have been hoping to see the end of the war this fall have revised their opinions. The present outlook indicates that the struggle may be much longer than was at first expected.

It is now dawnning upon the rest of the world that Germany was preparing for just such a contest for the last twenty-five years that she has every advantage subject to a single condition, that her military system is the most perfect ever known. She has colonized all the old methods of warfare. The new campaign, like the cavalry movement, is a part of the strategy while the substance and the campaign are new. As to the end of the war, there is no certainty as to whether it will be a victory or a disaster. If the allies open the battle there would then be an opportunity.

lately to join hands with Russia so as to supply her with the needed munitions of war. That would be the first real step towards the defeat of Germany and the allies will not consent to make peace unless overrun by the enemy until they have brought Germany to her knees. From the present outlook, it will take a long time to bring about such a reversal. England is only beginning to wake up; France is fighting gallantly and to the full extent of her power. Should the Austro-German forces be transferred from the eastern front to the west, there will be some terrible fighting.

The drive would be for Dunkirk and Calais and the best efforts of England and France would be required to stop its progress. The worst of the war has yet to come. There will be no termination until one side is completely beaten so that it is useless to make predictions.

There is this to be said, however, in regard to the present situation among the belligerents, that Russia is not out of the fight by any means and that she will come back heavily on the Austro-German forces, making their campaign towards Warsaw but a useless sacrifice of time, ammunition, money and men.

TOO MANY LOAFERS

There is a judge in Charlestown, Sullivan by name, who says there are too many loafers in the streets. Judge Sullivan is right. He has promised that if loafers are brought before him that he will do what he can to discourage them and their fellows from their abuse of their privilege. But the trouble is that the very men whom he wants to reach would probably appeal their cases, if faced with the prospect of a sentence in the municipal courts. It is not an easy problem to get rid of the street loafers. We have men in Lowell who boast that they have never worked and never will and these men are as plentiful today as ever. To pass a hard and fast law, allowing the police to arrest any two men who stopped on the sidewalk for conversation would be a plain injustice. The chief trouble is that what the ordinary citizen does in a quiet and peaceful fashion, the street loafer does in an offensive and indecent fashion. The loafer who makes it his business to insult women and children on the streets is cautious and never allows himself to be caught by the police in the very act and the trouble is to reach him. The police, however, can do a great deal in discouraging the street loafer. The local police know the young men who have never been accused of working and if this gang of silk-socked, tight-trousered and dandy appearing rowdies are allowed to occupy street corners for hours at a time the police are to blame.

HOLT'S SUICIDE

Very few will regret the suicide of Frank Holt, alias Professor Muenster, the Cambridge wife murderer, the would-be assassin of J. P. Morgan and the dynamiter who blew up a part of the capital at Washington. Judging from his record Muenster was a thoroughly dangerous man even before he committed any of the recent crimes and the fact that he was numbered with the faculty of a great university shows that education alone is not a guarantee of character.

By ending his life Holt relieved the state of the unpleasant duty of bringing him to trial for his crimes. The German element in this country should take steps to prevent outrages of this kind by cranks who become war crazed and go out to kill somebody whom they deem indirectly responsible for aiding the allies.

Of Holt the best thing that can be said is good riddance.

THE THAWS

It is to be hoped that Evelyn Thaw will not be brought into court to testify either for or against her husband. The public is sick of Evelyn and her escapades. The general belief among sensible people is that Thaw should be set free. If any mistake were made in this case it was when he escaped the electric chair on the insanity plea. As that evil cannot be undone it is just as well to let him go. But for his

THE BOYS OF THE EIGHTH

The boys of the Eighth regiment who camped here at Shedd park are certainly a credit to the Massachusetts militia. After all the hardships they endured on the four days before arriving here they showed up splendidly. They are an aggregation of which the state may well feel proud. In paying them this compliment we are not disparaging in the slightest degree the splendid discipline and military training of the Lowell companies.

MIDWAY REVENUE

Perhaps Supt. Kernan of the park department deserves congratulations for having extended the midway beyond the limits to which it had formerly attained. The income from the sale of lots if applied to the park department would be a considerable help in developing the system and lessening the expense to the city. The appropriation for this department is usually so small that an addition of $3000 would always be welcomed.

THE BOMB FIEND

This placing bombs on ships is a species of cowardly warfare that must be stopped. The man found with bombs in his possession should be punished to the extent of the law. He is a menace to the nation in which he lives.

THE DIFFERENCE

If the labor unions would attempt in Germany what they have been doing for some time in England, the leaders would be shot. That is one point of difference between a democratic and a militarist government.

THE SHY CATERPILLAR

The caterpillar, though a scollable creature, tries to keep out of everybody's way. Some species ride on the under surface of leaves, others on the stems or blades of grass, which serve them as food; others, again, build little nests for concealment or lie snugly hidden between the curled edges of leaves, which they draw close together until the opposite edges meet. The caterpillar is a scollable creature in his own family. He knows that there is safety in numbers, and you will find whole companies feeding side by side while keeping a sharp lookout for their bird enemies, but when a caterpillar is by himself he scarcely dares to move for fear of attracting attention. Even when he is obliged to change his skin he doesn't venture to leave his old coat lying around. The moment that he takes it off he eats it. The caterpillars that live in companies shed their skins readily. Only one poor solitary fellow is forced to swallow their old clothes.—London Mail.

HER WAY OF THINKING

I heard this amazing bit of cynicism, through a charity worker. She had been to call on a woman whose husband was addicted to drink, and was, as tactfully as she could, stating her views on the liquor question. In a pause in the conversation the wife exclaimed: "Well, there's one good thing about my husband's drinking. He's away from home so much, on a spree or in jail, that I have for myself practically all the money I earn washing and ironing."

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

It is sometimes hard to make other persons understand a question which seems perfectly plain to oneself. Along this line this story was told the other evening in the Dutch room. "A gentleman while taking a morning walk down a country lane met a boy driving some pigs to market. "Well, said the lad, they belong to thad their big sow." "No, my boy," said the gentleman, "I mean who is the master of them?" "Well," replied the lad, "that their little un; 'e's a beggar for fighting."

NOT IN LOWELL

Do we of the suburban cities sometimes get fooled by our fire alarms? Out in Cambridge sometimes one of the enormous whistles which are a leading part of the sounding of alarms seems to "run amuck" and toot such lengthy notes that one can hardly count the number of the box. Once or twice it has refused to count the strokes and substituted a prolonged blare of its own, which ran the separate toots together. But a far more wonderful manifestation of the possible tricks which a fire alarm system can play was experienced in Braintree. The fire alarm there sounded several rounds shortly after midnight, and an appar-

JOHN

By Mary Garrigan Barry
There's nothing quite so sweet to him As "John, I love you, dear!" My little elfin, will of the wisp, On this day came through the fleecy mist, And brushed o'er my lips his blithright kiss. You dear! The fragrance of heaven is round you still. My dreamy little son, Like a violet hid at the edge of a rill, Your little niche in life you fill. Awaiting the sign of his holy will. Little Son! Never a child, but a thinker deep, The dependable one—My John, I watch for the subtle smile that peeps, The understanding that ever leaps To the soft brown eyes where the shadows creep. My John! A mystic something pervades your calm. A nature so fine, sweetheart, Like the gentle incense of angels' dreams. When they dropped you down that day to my arms, And you clasped my heart in your two wee palms, Sweetheart! Today is your birthday—child of my soul, My reincarnation in you. May mother's love lead you to some shining goal. And it will pass you through if love is the toll. For in heaven or here my heart is enrolled. In you.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ANOTHER WAR PHASE

In consequence of the war the vital statistics as reported in London show a considerable decrease in the birth population of that city and a marked increase in infant mortality. There are said to be 500 less babies born each week than before hostilities broke out, and the number of infants dying are on an average 200 more weekly than in normal times. The reasons for this are not difficult to conjecture.—Fall River Globe.

EFFICIENCY

Mechanical efficiency is not an end. It is a means. A philosophy that is based upon the idea that mere mental human ingenuity or even a being a philosophy founded upon a delusion. Efficiency in the industries should operate to increase the happiness of artisans engaged in industrial pursuits. If workers produce two pairs of shoes where they before produced only one, that extra pair of shoes should mean more money, more schooling for the children, more pictures, more flowers, more pianos, more of the luxuries and the necessities of life.—Johnstown Democrat.

WHY IS IT?

Although Col. Roosevelt will be in Washington at the time of the State convention of Progressives in Seattle, he has positively refused to attend the convention and deliver an address. Instead he will pass through Seattle without stopping. Time was when nothing short of a miracle or a catastrophe could keep the Colonel away from a Progressive convention, but that time has passed.—Springfield Union.

WHAT BRITAIN NEEDS

The radical difference between the mental traits of the Germans and the British is coming out in the national attitudes toward the war. Great Britain could keep the Colonel away from a Progressive convention, but that time has passed.—Springfield Union.

THE LESSON

Read the Declaration of Independence again and realize that to be patriots worthy of that great decision you must do more thinking and less exploding. Less looking back with hostility to 1776, than looking forward with intelligent, serious, resolute responsibility.—Lewiston Sun.

ALL ARE BROTHERS

In a way we are all our brothers' keepers and each of us is responsible to an extent for all those with whom we come in contact. We can check slightly impulses, we can caution, restrain and we can see that those persons who we know are dangerous are placed so that they cannot do harm. We live a rapid pace, we Americans, and some of us cannot stand up under the strain as well as others at these wicker vessels must be watched.—Meriden Journal.

PRINCETON'S EXPERIMENT

There are two opinions in and around Princeton university about the abolition of "compulsory chapel," and a lively curiosity as to how its going to work out. The change of the hour for morning prayers from 8.15 to 9.15, with the stirring music promised, and the novelty of the five-minute talks, ought to "help."—Hartford Courant.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

The president's speech to the Pan-American made it clear that the ship purchase bill remains in his program. It is equally clear that the country is no better disposed toward the measure than when it halted the defeat of the bill with Jos. Regular and efficient lines of communication with the South Americans, are of course, desirable, and there are various means of accomplishing this end. Postal subsidies or out-and-out subsidies are the devices most in favor of other maritime nations. They involve less risk and produce better results than government ownership can. The country would prefer to give aid to shipping along safe, familiar lines.—Newburyport Herald.

THE FILTRATION PLANT IS ALMOST COMPLETED

Contractor Gow Sending Machinery Away — Pawtucket Bridge Question at Standstill

The filtration plant at the boulevard is nearing completion. Contractor Gow will have finished with the construction work within a few days, though his contract allows him until Aug. 1. Commissioner Carmichael stated today that he hopes to have the plant in running order on or before the first of August. He has received notice of the shipment today of the centrifugal pumps and turbine from Wellsville, N. Y. These are the pumps that will pump the filtered water into the city.

"It all depends," said the commissioner, "upon how long it will take to install the pumps, but I hope to have the plant in operation by Aug. 1. The process of getting sand and gravel is a bit slow, but there are a good many days between now and the first of August, and I think by that time we will have all the sand and gravel that is necessary. All of the sand and some of the gravel is scowled across the river from North Chelmsford, but most of the gravel comes by train from Woburn. The Lowell Gas Light Co. will be able to furnish all the coke necessary for the prefilters. Mr. Gow will have finished his contract in a few days. He has already begun to dismantle and ship away his machinery. The big dredge was sent away today. The sand and gravel is being placed by city men."

ARE SAFE IN GALICIA

Cong. Rogers Notifies Lowell Couple of Safety of Their Two Daughters in the War Zone

Through the efforts of Congressman John Jacob Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Hippolyte Pater of 55 Front street were today made happy, for they received the cheering news that their two daughters, Helena, 3 years old, and Olga, 4 years, are safe in Galicia, where they are being taken care of by a relative.

Mr. and Mrs. Pater were very anxious over the fate of their two children, who have been in Europe for the past two years, for they had not received any word from them since the outbreak of the war. The parents feared that the children had been killed for Przemyśl, Galicia, where fierce battles took place, is located eight miles from where the children had been left.

Mr. Pater went to Zarnowice, Galicia, two years ago, for the benefit of his health. He took his two daughters along with him and after five months he returned to Lowell, but left the children in the care of Mrs. Pater's mother. Shortly after his return, the war broke out and although scores of letters were written in an endeavor to receive news of the children, nothing could be learned.

Letter From Sec. Lansing

Mr. Pater, who is a naturalized citizen of this country, finally had recourse to Congressman Rogers with the result that a number of communications were exchanged between the congressman and the secretary of state.

one being the possibility of the bridge not being built this year, or that a bridge other than a concrete bridge might be built there. The fact remains that Mr. Pater didn't put his machinery in position and the things that delayed him saved him a whole lot of trouble.

Meeting Didn't Materialize

There was to have been a meeting of the committee on accounts at city hall today but the meeting didn't materialize. The meeting was set for 9 o'clock this morning, but it was quickly discovered that the only bills on hand were those of the fire and water departments and in connection with this discovery it was also discovered that the commissioner having covered these departments under his control arrived at city hall before 8 o'clock.

This was considered worthy of note and was duly recorded. The meeting will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock, and Commissioner Duncan stated today that in his next financial report he will incorporate a few sections of the charter and ordinances relating to the payment of bills. He stated today that any persons having bills against the city should have them in by the first of the month and he advises them to do so unless they want to wait an extra month for their pay. All bills approved by the commissioners of the several departments shall be sent to the city auditor not later than the eighth day of each month and the bills must be passed upon by the municipal council before the tenth day of the month. All bills are payable the 15th day of each month and Commissioner Duncan has told all department heads that all receipts should be sent to the purchasing agent on or before the third day of the month as he will not approve any bills after that date, which are payable on the 15th day.

City Farm Coal Pocket

The lands and buildings department at Washington, D. C. This morning the congressman received the following letter from Secretary of State Robert Lansing, which he at once transmitted to Mr. Pater:

Dept. of State, Washington, D. C.
The Hon. John Jacob Rogers,
House of Representatives.

Sir:—Referring to the department's letter to you of April 30, 1915, relative to the welfare of Olga and Helena Pater, in Zarnowice, Galicia, I have the honor to inform you that a despatch has been recently received from the American consul-general at Vienna, in which it is reported that he is in receipt of a letter from Jan Wisniewski at Zarnowice, stating that Olga and Helena Pater are well and are staying with him.

I have the honor to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,
Robert Lansing.

Mr. Pater in conversation with a Sun reporter this forenoon said he and his wife are overwhelmed with joy and they will now do their utmost to have the children sent to Lowell, although he fears it will be some time before this can be done, for according to the railroad he received all railroad communications between Galicia and other parts of Europe have been destroyed. "However," he said, "it feels good to receive the cheering news that the children are living and are well."

is still busy on the big coal pocket at the Chelmsford Street hospital. Commissioner Putnam was allowed $400, in the annual budget, for the building of the pocket and he says it will cost more than twice that amount. The pocket will be of concrete, about 225 feet long and 13 feet high. It is being erected near the railroad tracks on the Chelmsford side of the hospital. Mr. Putnam stated today that after his men have finished with the coal pocket he will proceed to get busy at the side range in Dracut. The state authorities have ordered a new pistol target installed at the range and have condemned the position of the present pistol target range.

The New High School

Commissioner Putnam is very anxious to do something on the new high school project and he believes the municipal council should employ some good architect to advise them what to do in the matter. "It is a big proposition," said Mr. Putnam, "and we ought to get the very best architect possible to tell us what to do. The proposition involves power, light and heating and it is no simple matter. We will meet with the school committee Friday afternoon and after that I hope we will be able to do something toward the seizure of the land in Kirk and Anne streets."

ANOTHER JITNEY HERE

"PAT" KEEGAN COVERS ROUTE BETWEEN UPPER MOODY STREET AND POSTOFFICE

The jitney has reached Moody street. This forenoon a five-passenger touring car driven by Patrick Keegan, of bicycle fame, began to cover a route between upper Moody street and the postoffice and several trips were made during the day. This is the first time that a jitney has operated on Moody street or in the direction of Pawtucket-errie.

Several jitneys are now running in this city. Gorham street is well taken care of with at least three machines while one has run between the end of the Westford street car line and Merrimack street and another started today on Moody street, besides the machines traveling from Lowell to Lawrence and return. As yet the city council has taken no action relative to the enacting of an ordinance and business men are taking advantage of its absence.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD

MRS. HARRIET A. SLATER, AGED 68 YEARS, EXPIRED AT HOME IN MIDDLESEX STREET

Mrs. Harriet A. Slater, aged 68 years, was found dead on the floor of her home, 568 Middlesex street, this forenoon by a neighbor, who fearing something had happened the aged lady inasmuch as she had not been seen since Sunday, entered the house by forcing the screen door. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner J. V. Metz and on account of the condition in which it was found he is of the opinion death occurred Sunday and was due to natural causes.

Mrs. Slater, despite her advanced age, worked occasionally for neighbors, performing light housework. Sunday she was seen to enter her home and nothing was seen again of her until this forenoon. A neighbor, Mrs. Sullivan, forced the screen door of Mrs. Slater's home and upon entering the bedroom she found the body of the woman lifeless on the floor. The body was later removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker George W. Healey. Deceased is survived by two sons, John E. and Walter Slater.

FUNERALS

SHOUGHO—The funeral of the late Eugene Shoughro took place this morning at 8 o'clock from his late home, 36 Union street, and was largely attended. The cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church where, at 9 o'clock, a high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Mr. George Mullin. Among the floral tributes was a pillow inscribed "Grandpa" from the Shoughro children, and pieces from Mrs. Carroll and family and Mr. Charles L. Marren and family. The four nephews of the deceased, namely, Dr. Thomas Tierney of Hudson; Michael Tierney of Somerville; Martin McGuane of Ayer and Thomas Tierney of this city, were in St. Patrick's cemetery, where the final prayers were read by Rev. Mr. Mullin. Undertakers M. H. McDonough Sons in charge.

DEATHS

CABILL—Miss Mary A. Cabill, a well known nurse of this city and graduate of Notre Dame academy, died this noon at the Jordan hospital, Plymouth. She is survived by two brothers. The body will be brought to Lowell.

FUNERAL NOTICES

CABILL—The funeral of Miss Mary A. Cabill will take place Friday morning from the funeral chapel of Undertakers James F. O'Donnell & Sons at 8 o'clock. At 9 o'clock a mass of requiem will be sung at St. Margaret's church. Burial in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery. Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons in charge.

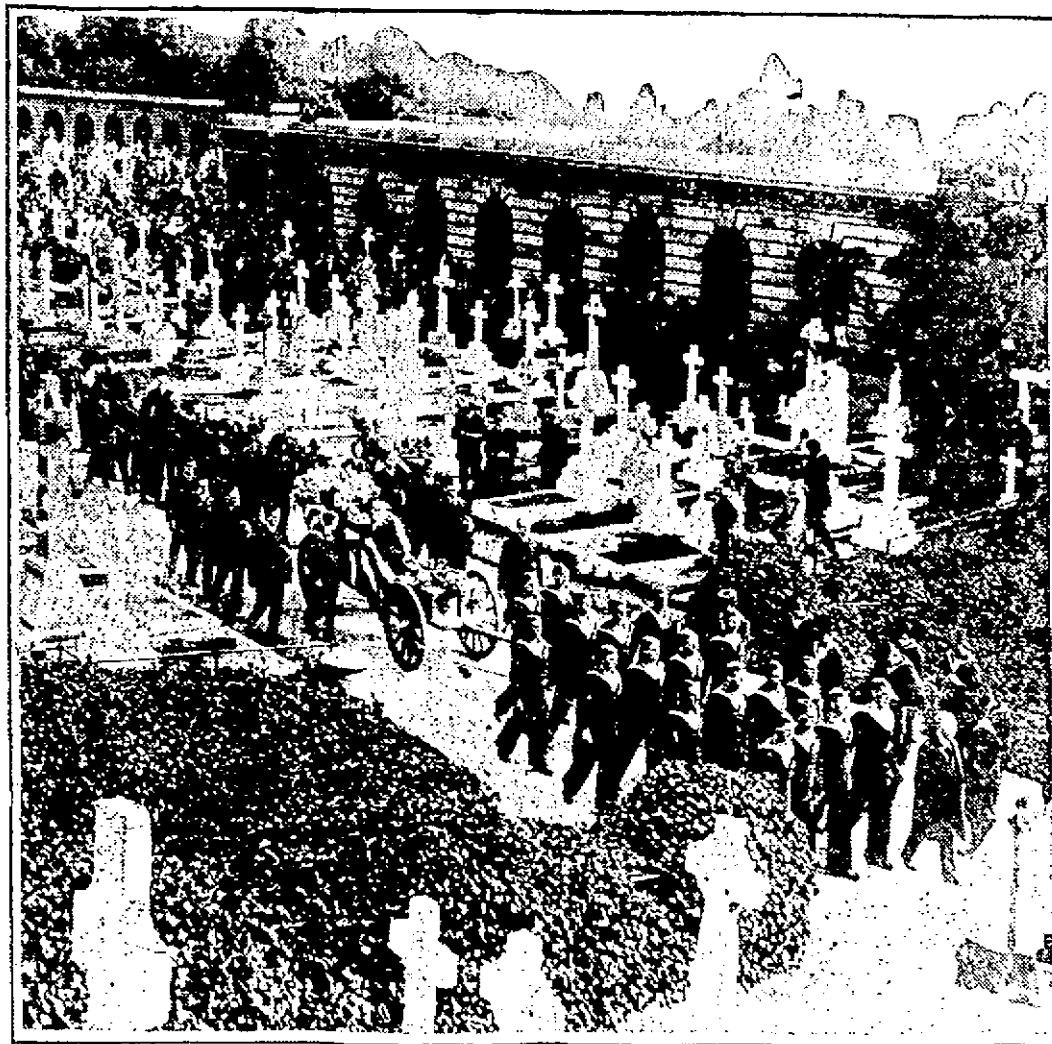

MODERN INVESTMENT COMPANY

The members of the Modern Investment company of this city held their monthly meeting at Woburn Sunday, where they were the guests of the president of the organization, William F. The latter part of the afternoon and evening was spent with an entertainment program, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections. The trip to Woburn was effected in automobiles.

CORNISH, N. H., July 7.—A golf match, consideration of official business transmitted from Washington and an automobile drive were on President Wilson's program today. Grayson, began to cover a route between upper Moody street and the postoffice and several trips were made

ENGLAND PAYS HOMAGE TO WARNEFORD, DARING AIR MAN WHO WRECKED ZEPPELIN

FUNERAL OF DARING BRITISH AVIATOR

In the accompanying illustration is shown a scene at the funeral of Lieutenant R. A. J. Warneford, the daring British aviator who was killed while trying out a new air craft. England sang the praises of Warneford when, in a monoplane, he maneuvered over a great Zeppelin of the German army and destroyed it. It was shortly after this that England was shocked at the news of his death. The occasion of the funeral of Warneford was marked by an unusual public demonstration.

LIBERTY BELL AS IT LOOKS ON FLAT CAR ON TRIP ACROSS THE CONTINENT

LIBERTY BELL ON SPECIALLY BUILT FLAT CAR

Philadelphia bade goodbye to the Liberty bell. Escorted by the First brigade, national guard of Pennsylvania, composed of three Philadelphia regiments and the First troop, city cavalry, the old Revolutionary relic passed between lanes of thousands of persons to the Pennsylvania railroad station, was hoisted on a specially constructed car and amid cheers left for the Panama-Pacific exposition. The bell is being taken west on a special train, which will make more than seventy stops for local celebration before it reaches San Francisco on the night of July 16. Six months will elapse before it will be returned to its case in Independence hall. The principal celebration in Philadelphia of the One-Hundred and Thirty-ninth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence was planned to fit in with the ceremonies attending the departure of the bell.

There are various methods for removing superfluous hair, but I would advise leaving them alone unless they are very disfiguring. Some women are peculiarly sensitive to any appearance of this sort and fancy disfigurement.

ANNUAL REUNION Stock Market Closing Prices, July 7

Executive Committee of St. Joseph's College Alumni Makes Plans

An important meeting of the executive committee of St. Joseph's college alumni was held last evening at the college hall in Merrimack street with President J. B. Richard in the chair. The members were all present and interesting reports concerning the annual reunion to be held in August were heard.

The annual reunion will consist of a church service in the forenoon, outing in the afternoon and banquet in the evening. The church service, which will be a solemn high mass, the celebrant and his assistants to be members of the alumni, will be held at St. Joseph's church, while the outing will be conducted at Cunningham's farm in Dracut.

As in former years special electric cars will convey the excursionists to the outing grounds, and it is probable the A. G. Cadets Brass band will be present to supply music. Sports of all descriptions will be held and a feature of the afternoon will be a baseball game between the married and unmarried men, the first team to be captained by W. P. Chase, Jr., and the other by Arthur Groux.

In the evening the annual banquet will be held at the college hall, which will be handsomely decorated for the occasion, and it is expected prominent local and out-of-town speakers will be present. The president of the alumni, J. B. Richard, will act as toastmaster. An entertainment program will be given and the reunion will close with a business meeting during which the officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Invitations have been extended to the first master of the school, Rev. Bro. Chrysostom, who is now located in Montreal, Que., and to one of the first teachers of the school, Rev. Bro. Francis, who is now in Quebec, as well as to other masters and teachers, and it is hoped many will reply favorably within a short time. The committee is sparing nothing to have the 1915 reunion the best ever, and if one is to judge by the activity so far demonstrated, the affair will certainly be a very successful one. A general meeting of the members of the organization will be held Tuesday evening, July 13, at the college hall and all are earnestly requested to be present for the entire program will be announced and the final preparations for the great event will be made.

where none exists. It has been said that a slight frown line on the upper lip of a brunette, frequently adds a charm by lending a piquant expression to the face.

Unhappily the depilatories on the market are not all harmless, many of them containing arsenic which should never be brought thus in contact with the skin. Superfluous hair can be rendered much less visible by using peroxide of hydrogen combined with an alkaline solution for toning down the color of the hairs.

For the solution use equal parts of ammonia and absolute alcohol. After washing the superfluous hairs thoroughly with soap and water, apply this persistently for five minutes with a camel's hair brush, then, without drying, apply strong peroxide with another brush for five minutes more.

Of course superfluous hairs are often removed by electrolysis, but as the current has to be applied separately to each hair, the expense is very great. And there, too, is always the danger of getting into the clutches of the unscrupulous beauty doctor.

SEEKS WRIT OF ERROR

LIEUT. BECKER'S COUNSEL TO DENOUNCE CONDUCT OF THE PROSECUTION'S CASE

NEW YORK, July 8.—Ex-Police Lieut. Charles Becker will have one more day in court. It has been decided by his attorneys that even if their application for a writ of error is denied by the United States judicial authorities to issue a writ of habeas corpus will be sued out. The records of the case will then be brought before the United States supreme court and the case will again be threshed out.

W. Bourke Cockran has been at work for the past few days on the application for the writ of error. He has steadfastly refused to disclose the grounds on which he will charge Becker's constitutional rights have been violated, but it was learned yesterday that his application will be a scathing denunciation of the conduct of the prosecution's case against Becker.

LOW RECORDS REACHED

ST. PAUL AND MISSOURI PACIFIC FEATURES AT OPENING—CLOSING HEAVY

NEW YORK, July 7.—New low records for St. Paul and Missouri Pacific were the features of today's early dealings. St. Paul opened at 59 1/2, its recent low minimum, but soon fell to 79 1/2. Missouri Pacific's initial offering of 600 shares at 5 1/4 to 4 1/4, a reflection of the $50 assessment on that stock in connection with the capital reorganization of the company. All other parts of the list were under pressure, reading falling a point with substantial exceptions. Under standard railways and U. S. Steel, Studebaker was almost the sole exception to the declining tendency, advancing two points. Prices rallied slightly from opening levels but weakened again when St. Paul fell to 78 5/8. Southern Pacific's loss of two points was followed by a steady decline of 3 1/2 in Louisville & Nashville, which sold at 105 1/2, its lowest price in years. Atlantic Coast line lost six points and other southern railroad stocks were adversely affected. Southern Railway advanced 1 1/2, and the common 1 1/2. The break in this group, which was unattended by any known development, soon caused a general reaction of 1 1/2 to 2 points. Bonds were irregular on lighter foreign offerings.

The break in the southern railway stocks was checked for a time at midday with recoveries of one to two points. Later, however, prices receded again and St. Paul and Canadian Pacific fell to new low records.

Selling continued for the remainder of the session, lowest prices being made in the last hour with a moderate rally towards the end. The closing was heavy.

ALECK ON DANGEROUS LIST

Suffolk Street Man Seriously Injured When His Motorcycle Crashed Into Pole

Michael Aleck of Suffolk street is on the dangerous list at the Lowell corporation hospital as a result of a motorcycle accident near the corner of Mammoth road and Mills street, Collinsville, yesterday. According to witnesses of the accident, Aleck was driving along Mammoth road at a fast rate of speed when he lost control of his machine and crashed into a pole. Supt. Thomas Lees of the Bay State Street railway appeared on the scene in his automobile a few minutes after the accident and started to bring the young man to the hospital. In the meantime the ambulance had been notified and met Mr. Lees' machine near the Lowell-Dracut line. The injured man was transferred to the ambulance and rushed to the hospital where it was said he sustained a fractured leg, broken collar bone and possibly internal injuries.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE URGES CONGRESS TO SUBMIT TO STATES PROPOSED AMENDMENT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 7.—The national board of directors of the Anti-Saloon league of America, at an executive session today, adopted resolutions urging congress to submit to the states the proposed amendment to the federal constitution providing for national prohibition. The board also passed a resolution urging legislation that will prevent the use of the mails for the advertising of intoxicating liquors in dry territory. Another resolution adopted commended President Wilson for refusing to renounce, despite strong pressure, a letter he is said to have written while governor of New Jersey to a citizen of Texas in which Mr. Wilson is said to have declared that state prohibition is proper where public sentiment is ripe for it.

Two interesting addresses were made at the morning session of the convention, one by Rev. Father Curran of Wilkes-Barre and the other by former Gov. Fess of Massachusetts. Mr. Fess intimated that the political parties in their national conventions next year will come face to face with the question of prohibition. Local option, he said, was an absurd failure but the only way to stop industrial decay in this country is through national prohibition.

ORANGE LODGES PARADE

BATTLE OF ROYNE ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED IN HAVERHILL—LOWELL MEN IN PARADE

HAVERHILL, June 7.—For the second time since the institution of the Haverhill Loyal Orange lodge, about 11 years ago, the Orangemen of this city, with delegations from Boston, Chelsea, Lowell, Lawrence and other cities in the Merrimack valley, paraded the streets of Haverhill Sunday afternoon. The street demonstration was in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the battle of Royne. The paraders met at United Spanish War Veterans hall and marched by the way of Court, Main and Merrimack streets to Assembly hall, where services were held.

There was a large contingent from Chelsea, who came in an auto truck. The Boston delegation, which numbered over 25, came to Haverhill by train. The coming from Lawrence and Lowell made the journey by trolley.

The parade was headed by Charles Morrill, past master of the local organization, as marshal; Rev. Arthur G. Lyon, chaplain of Haverhill lodge, and Supreme Grand State Organizer William E. MacDougall of Boston.

At the services in Assembly hall there was an address by Rev. A. A. Thayer of Dorchester and remarks by Past Supreme Master John Marshall of Boston and Rev. Arthur G. Lyon and William E. MacDougall.

The contingent marched into the hall to the strains of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," rendered on the piano by Miss Marion Smith of North Andover. Prayer was then offered by Rev. Arthur G. Lyon. The scripture reading was also by Rev. Mr. Lyon.

Rev. A. A. Riddout was then introduced as the speaker of the afternoon. He took for his text, "Remember the day of old," from the Book of Moses. At the conclusion of the services it was announced that an outing will be held at Rosson's grove, Wakefield, Monday, July 12, in celebration of the battle of Royne.

Gov. Walsh and State
Delegation Leave—
Lowell Men in Party

BOSTON, July 8.—The delegation which is to represent the state at the Panama-Pacific exposition departed from Boston on the train leaving at 5.03 last evening from the South station.

It comprised Gov. Walsh and two of his military staff, Capt. William B. Stearns and Major William J. Carey; Senator John W. Haisig of Montague, who took the place of Pres. Calvin Coolidge of the senate; Speaker Channing H. Cox of the house of representatives; Senator Redmond S. Fitzgerald of Boston; Senator Charles W. Eldridge of Somerville; Representative Henry A. Smith, Jr. of Lowell; Rep. John B. Hull of Great Barrington; Representative Frederick H. Lucks of Worcester; Representative Edward F. McLaughlin of Boston and Sgt.-at-Arms Thomas F. Pedrick, all of whom are authorized by this year's legislature to make the trip at the expense of the commonwealth.

In addition to the official party were the following, who have reservations in the same special car, but who must pay their own way: State Treas. Chas. E. Burrill, Miss Ellen Mudge Burrill of Lynn; Secretary to Sgt.-at-Arms Pedrick, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Kimball of Lynn; Miss Blanche Kimball of Lynn; Michael J. Dwyer of Boston and his daughter, Miss Frances Tracey Dwyer; Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLaughlin of West Roxbury; John B. Pelham of Lowell; Kelton J. Miller of Pittsfield; Col. Charles L. Woodward of Wakefield; Charles A. Southworth, stenographer in the executive department, and Mrs. Southworth.

About 150 friends were at the station to see the party off. These included Maj. Thomas L. Walsh, the governor's brother; members of the governor's military staff and others well known in political circles. Two little girls, Grace Price of 88 Brookline street and Josephine Collins of 65 Brookline street, brought to Representative McLaughlin a huge bouquet of red roses as an expression of goodwill from his constituents in the South End.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Edward P. Barry, accompanied by Chairman Michael A. O'Leary of the democratic state committee, came down to say goodbye to the governor and express their best wishes.

"I told the governor to have a good rest and to come back and run again," said Mr. Barry to the reporters. "I shall keep an eye on the situation while he is gone, and if I think the other side is getting too active I shall begin a campaign myself, not as a candidate for any nomination, but as a democrat. I shall discuss national issues and work solely for the party's interests and not those of any individual."

The accompanying photograph of young Mr. Morgan was taken on the day of the recent Yale-Harvard boat races at New London, Conn., which he attended with his father.

BOY RUN OVER BY AUTO

SUPT. WOODWARD OF NEW HAVEN

ROAD DEEPLY AFFECTED BY

ACCIDENT IN DEEDHAM

DEEDHAM, July 8.—Jesse A. Silver, aged 12, of East Street, East Walpole, ran over and was painfully injured last evening by an automobile owned by Mrs. Alice B. Woodward of 418 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, and operated by her husband, C. N. Woodward, general superintendent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

The accident happened on Washington street at the entrance of Westwood park. The boy had come from Walpole in a trolley bus and, crossing the street in back of the bus, was watching another automobile coming from the direction of Norwood.

The Woodward car, bound toward Norwood, struck the boy as he had almost reached the sidewalk. The right lamp hit him and the two right wheels ran over him. When Mr. Woodward, the only occupant of the car, saw the boy lying in the street he was so affected by the sight that for some time he sat there, his head in his hands, before he felt equal to backing the car.

Meanwhile, two young men from Westwood park had picked the boy up and Mr. Woodward took him in the automobile to the Norwood hospital.

There Dr. Hartwell reports that his condition is not serious, although he has two scalp wounds, a fractured arm on the right side and cuts and bruises all over his body.

INSTRUCTION IN HIGH SCHOOL

IN FALL

PROVIDENCE, July 8.—The Providence school committee yesterday adopted a resolution by a vote of 13 to 5, establishing compulsory military training in the Providence high schools and appropriating $4000 to finance its introduction in September.

It is expected that about 1700 boys in the four high schools will be affected by the order. Uniforms, equipment and instruction will be provided by the city, while the course in military training will be a part of the regular curriculum.

tains requirements not demanded in the old law, has made a necessity for the successful 120 to again come before the state board of dental examiners for further examination as to their fitness. Those who failed have also a chance to raise their averages by taking the additional test.

The old law, under the provisions of which the examinations were averaged, held, did not provide for a demonstration in prosthetic dentistry. Prosthetic dentistry, for the benefit of the layman, refers to mechanical work done in the laboratory, such as the making of crowns, etc.

As the attitude of the present state board of dental examiners revealed at committee hearings before this year's and previous legislatures, has been that they did not think such a demonstration necessary. It is not likely that those who "bunked" in the recent examinations can expect much of a boost to their averages, even if they perfect show themselves prosthetically perfect.

On the other hand, should any of the successful applicants fail to prove their skill in prosthetics, they are not likely to have their averages reduced to any great extent. Until the board has decided what marks shall be given on the prosthetic demonstrations, the answer will not be known.

STEP UP LADIES

No Relief From High Car Steps for Another Year

Lowell women, with others, will be subjected to the discomfort of the high steps on street cars for another year as the result of the ruling of the public service commission recently, which gave the street railway companies another year in which to fulfill the requirements of the law which was to have become effective July 1 of this year. The request of the companies for more time was granted with the understanding that no further extension would be asked.

The law was passed a year ago after there had been a statewide protest against the height of the steps. Narrow skirts were in vogue at that time and the need of lower steps was unusually apparent, especially when the ladies boarded the cars. With the change in style this year, however, the need was not so apparent and when the street car companies brought forth figures to show what it would cost and why they would be unable to meet the requirements in time, the request was granted.

BODY OF GIRL FOUND

THIRTEEN YEAR OLD ANDOVER GIRL WAS DROWNED IN SHAW-SHEEN RIVER

LAWRENCE, July 2.—The body of little Helen Yelins, aged 14, who has been missing from her home on Andover road, Ballardvale, since Saturday afternoon, was found Tuesday morning on the banks of the Shaw-sheen near the Cross coal sheds, by Robert Allison who was out canoeing. It is reported that the girl was reprimanded by her mother for having drawn $5 from the school bank, and spent it in Lawrence, whereupon she left the house and wandered off.

The Andover police say the drowning was accidental.

PLUNGED INTO RIVER

AUTO HIT END OF BRIDGE AND FELL INTO RIVER — DRIVER REACHED BANK

PORTLAND, Me., July 8.—Sumner Smith of Bangor, an automobile agent, yesterday afternoon, while driving his car rapidly, in approaching the iron bridge over the Presumpscot at West Falmouth, left the road, went between two trees, hit the end of the bridge and plunged into the river.

Mr. Smith was thrown out, and managed to reach the bank at a point where it required something of an effort to scramble up and crossed a field to a house.

The news of the accident reached Portland and Sheriff William M. Fennell, heading a squad of deputy sheriffs, went to West Falmouth and sent the half-drowned man in. He was exhausted, but was not even slightly injured. His valuable automobile is under 18 feet of water and an attempt will be made in the morning to take it out.

Mr. Smith said last evening that the accident was caused by his trying to avoid a collision with another car. He was forced from the road and was unable to get back. The other car passed safely.

OPENING OF PLAYGROUNDS

FULL-TIME PLAYGROUNDS OPENED YESTERDAY MORNING AND HALF-DAY GROUNDS IN AFTERNOON

The four full-time playgrounds opened yesterday, but there was very little doing on the South common owing to the fact that the debris and refuse from the midway had not been cleared away. The full-time playgrounds include the North and South commons, Aiken street and Paige street. The greater part of the forenoon was spent in getting the apparatus in position. In the afternoon, yesterday, the four half-day playgrounds were opened. These are the Lakeview avenue and Franklin and Fayette street schools, and the Textile school grounds.

Miss Katherine M. Tobin, head supervisor for the girls' department, has a schedule of hours for the different play periods, the baths and the industrial work, which will go into effect Monday, after the attendance becomes normal and material for the industrial work has been provided. It is planned to have this schedule carried out so far as possible in unison, on each of the playgrounds.

That the children were eager for the baths to be opened was demonstrated Tuesday afternoon when many of them, carrying towels and clean clothes, appeared at the doors and were terribly disappointed to learn that the baths would not open until the following day.

SELLING CITY LAND

QUEER STATE OF AFFAIRS IN MAYOR MURPHY'S IDEAL CITY—DEEDS WERE WORTHLESS

SPRINGFIELD, July 8.—That certain individuals have been selling city land to persons who purchased in good faith, and that supposedly bona fide deeds were passed in the transactions, was the statement made by Mayor Stacy last night. He declares that no less than 30 lots belonging to the city have been thus sold. He declined to make public the names of the sellers or the location of the lots in question.

He says the land sold adjoins property owned by these individuals, and that they knowingly allowed the purchasers to suppose that they were purchasing property with a clear title. He is investigating the transactions and will make details public within a few days. The deeds, of course, are worthless.

BRIDGE WORK SUSPENDED

LAWRENCE, July 8.—Unusually high water due to the recent heavy rainfall has interfered with the construction of the central bridge over the Merrimack river. All work on the piers in the stream has been suspended.

NO LICENSE TO DRUGGISTS

LAWRENCE, July 8.—The licensing board of Lawrence has placed the ban on druggist licenses. Druggists' licenses or licenses of the sixth class granted for the year 1914 expired April 30 of the present year and up to the present time the license commissioners have not taken any action looking toward favorable consideration of applications for renewals and it is further understood that no druggist licenses will be granted during the ensuing year.

Druggists are prohibited under the law to keep any intoxicating liquors upon their premises excepting those who have a special internal revenue license which authorizes them to keep a limited quantity for medicinal purposes only.

REPUBLICAN POW WOW

AUTO PARADE WILL PRECEDE BIG OUTING AT BUNTING PARK ON SATURDAY

The republican city committee met last night at its headquarters on Central street and completed arrangements for its outing at Bunting park next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock sharp.

If the weather is fine it is expected that there will be over 3000 people present, as republicans from all over the state have been inquiring for tickets and the most direct way to get to Bunting park.

The outing is primarily was started as a reception to Cong. John Jacob Rogers, and this has not been lost sight of by the committee in charge. A great reception is being arranged for the congressman before the sports start.

The whole list of state officials are expected to be present and as the outing is not being run to help any individual, all candidates for state offices are invited to be present. The committee feels as if it would like to give everybody an opportunity to be heard, but feel that would be an impossibility, so it will limit the addresses to the candidates for the head of the ticket.

Charles A. Wotton, chief marshal of the parade, announces that all who wish to enter with their automobiles in the parade can do so. Automobiles from the surrounding towns and cities will form on Chelmsford street. Automobiles representing ward nine will assemble on Howard street; ward eight, on Grand street; ward seven, on Royal street; ward six, on Gates street; ward five, on Bellevue street; ward four, on Nichols street; ward three, on Smith street; ward two, on Fernald street; ward one, on Howard street.

Parade to start at Lane street at 1:15 p. m. sharp.

Tabor's Sixth Regiment band will assemble at the armory and the parade will commence from Lane street, with ward one republicans at the head of the line. The wards as represented will then fall in line as the parade passes them.

Chief Marshal Charles Wotton will announce the route of the parade and his assistants tomorrow.

MR. BIRD WILL NOT RUN

He Notifies the Progressive State Committee of His Conclusion—His Letter

The following letter has been sent to the progressive state committee by Charles Sumner Bird, declining to enter the primaries this fall as a candidate for governor.

Boston, July 6, 1915.
Mr. Lauriston Ward, Acting Chairman State Committee, Progressive Party, Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Ward: I have carefully considered the resolutions passed by the progressive state committee in which I am requested to enter the primaries at the next election. On April 30th, last, I wrote that I feel that there exists any such duty. Whenever such a duty exists I shall be the first to go my share in the fight.

The situation today is no different than it was when I wrote that letter. While you, and others, have urged me to be a candidate on the ground of public duty, yet as I see it, no such duty exists; therefore I shall not be a candidate for governor at the coming election.

Yours very truly,
Charles Sumner Bird.

CHARLES SUMNER BIRD

would not be a candidate for governor and in that letter I stated:

"There are many personal reasons why I should not, which I would only disregard if there were some strong public duty calling me, and I do not

INDICATIONS POINT TO DISBANDMENT OF EIGHTH REGT. DRUM CORPS

Indications at present point to the disbandment of the famous Eighth Regiment Drum corps, at least insofar as it is a military body, just as soon as the enlistments of its members expire. Three of the members, whose terms of service expired during the past week, have signified their intention of not re-enlisting.

For some time the Eighth regiment has not been entitled to a drum corps, it is understood, but the corps was liked by the members and it was kept up. If it does disband it is more than likely that none will be formed to take its place. The musicians of the corps are considering the formation of an independent organization. The Ninth regiment is also said to be considering "signing up" the musicians in the event of disbandment. Most of the members are residents of Lawrence. The corps appeared in the Lowell parade on Monday.

U. S. GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER WIRELESS STATION

Following Order of Pres. Wilson
—U. S. Officials Take Control of Sayville, L. I., Station

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The government today took over the Sayville, L. I., wireless station, the only remaining privately operated direct means of communication between the United States and Germany.

Secretary Daniels announced that Capt. Bullard, in charge of the naval radio, had gone to take over the station and would continue its operation with naval forces.

Sec. Daniels' Statement

Secretary Daniels issued this statement this morning:

"It is said that the Sayville radio station had made application to the secretary of commerce for a license. The secretary of commerce declined to grant the license and so informed the secretary of the navy, who, after conference, directed Capt. Bullard, as the expert of the department, to take over and operate the station. Lieut. George Clark will be in control of the station. Capt. Bullard reached New York this morning and will confer with the owners of the station in all that relates to the details of the operation of the station. CITY HALL NEWS

Conference on the New High School Question Tomorrow Afternoon

The municipal council will meet tomorrow forenoon at 11 o'clock ostensibly for the approval of bills and incidentally for the transaction of whatever other business there may be on hand.

It is not expected that the Pawtucket bridge question will receive any attention as the consulting engineers, Messrs. Swain and Worcester, have not yet reported on the plans.

In the afternoon at 4 o'clock the council and school board will have a conference relative to the seizure of land in Anne and Kirk streets for a new high school.

Insurance Money Coming In

It was stated today that the insurance money on the Memorial building was coming in with almost clock-like precision and the mayor said he expects it will all be in this week. The reconstruction work will start as soon as all of the insurance money has been received. The money will be deposited in the general treasury and will be immediately appropriated for the general treasury for the reconstruction of Memorial hall.

Another Tax Law

Under the new law passed by the legislature which became operative during the past week citizens are not compelled to pay their taxes until Nov. 1. This means quite an extension of time in some cities, but not in Lowell. In several of the cities collections have dated from Sept. 1. The time for collection in Lowell has been Oct. 15, so that the new law doesn't amount to much insofar as we are concerned. However, if the tax bills are not paid by Nov. 1 the city can collect interest dating from Oct. 15. The purpose of the new act is to facilitate the prompt payment of taxes.

Cost of Celebration

Lowell's July 4th celebration cost the city $1123. $1123 more than was appropriated for the celebration and the cost over and above that amount will come out of various appropriations, in some perhaps, some transfers. The celebration, however, more than paid for itself as the concessions on the commons, the program, sale of permits etc., the mayor says, will amount to about $4300.

Dogs May Be Muzzled

It is understood that if rabies should develop here an order will be issued for the muzzling of all dogs. All of the day police officers have been given warrants for the owners of unlicensed dogs and it is up to the officers to kill the dogs and hale the owners into court.

Roadway Caves In

Charles J. Morse, commissioner of streets and highways, says that the story of the road giving way at the junction of Stackpole and East Merimack streets had been very much exaggerated. It was stated that twenty-five feet of the roadway had gone down. But Mr. Morse says that isn't so. The fact remains that there was a cave-in and while the hole in the street is not very large the hole underneath is quite spacious and it was stated this afternoon that the crest of the sewer was broken and that sewage was leaking at that point. As to the break in the sewer Mr. Morse said it wouldn't amount to

ALTERATIONS TO BUILDINGS

Anna Tucker has been granted a permit for additions and alterations to a building at 682 School street. The alterations will represent the making over of a one family dwelling to a two family dwelling, making two tenements of five rooms each. The estimated cost of the additions and alterations is $450. Mrs. Thomas Stott has been granted a permit for a $700 addition to a garage at 209 Nesmith street.

Work in Rogers Street

Commissioner Morse says he is being delayed in his paving work in Rogers street by the street railway company. The company was granted a permit to the relocation of poles in Rogers street and the poles have not yet been installed. The company will also lay new iron in Rogers street and the work will have to be done before Mr. Morse can complete his work there. Mr. Morse stated today that his new concrete mixer has arrived and will be installed as soon as the man who understands it arrives here. The machine was purchased in Milwaukee and in order to have a man come here from Milwaukee to demonstrate the machine, Mr. Morse had to get permission from the civil service commission. The man from Milwaukee will remain here three days.

OVER 50 REPLIES TO BOARD OF TRADE'S "BOY WANTED" IN LAST NIGHT'S SUN

The efficiency of The Sun as an advertising medium was demonstrated today when Secretary John H. Murphy of the Lowell board of trade, who had a little squib inserted in yesterday's issue of The Sun in reference to the employment bureau recently established at the board, received about fifty replies from young men from all over the city.

The advertisement, which was in news form, called for 14 young men, 18 years of age, high school graduates preferred, for office work, the salary being $10 per week. It also stated that all applications should be sent in writing, and the first mail this forenoon brought a stack of replies. When the second mail was delivered over fifty applications for work had been received.

The replies were assorted this afternoon and recommendations were made to the employers. Those who are selected for the position will be notified in writing. Mr. Murphy hopes to send out another call for help within a short time, for the employers are much pleased with the employment bureau.

HIS POCKETS PICKED

Lowell has been so well advertised in other cities, especially in police circles that on holidays pickpockets keen away from here, but it seems they come when they are not expected, and this can be vouched for by E. J. Dupont, a local fire insurance man, who was relieved of a $2 bill yesterday while purchasing in a large local department store.

Mr. Dupont made a purchase of shoes and received a $2 bill, which he placed in his coat pocket and before he left the store he was relieved of that bill by a pickpocket. He did not notify the police for he believes the amount is not large enough to bother with.

EXPLOSION ON LINER AT SEA

Holt's Last Warning Answered by Explosion Aboard the British Liner Minnehaha, Heavily Laden With Explosives for Allies

NEW YORK, July 8.—Frank Holt's last warning, voiced through his cell in the Nassau county jail, that a steamship would sink at sea, July 7, was answered by an explosion aboard the British liner Minnehaha, heavily laden with explosives and inflammable materials, 570 miles southeast of Halifax late yesterday. News of the explosion and resultant fire was received here today by wireless from her captain.

The Minnehaha had no passengers aboard. Her crew of approximately 100 men had brought the flames under subjection this afternoon, the captain said in his despatch and the vessel was heading for Halifax. She was due to arrive there tomorrow morning.

LOADED WITH AMMUNITION

NEW YORK, July 8.—As if in answer to Frank Holt's last warning, that a ship at sea "should sink, God willing, on the seventh" there came last night a wireless message, made public today from Capt. Claret of the Atlantic Transport line steamer Minnehaha, telling that his ship was afire at sea, 570 miles southeast of Halifax.

The ship had sufficient ammunition aboard, by the line's admission, to sink her should the flames reach it, but whether the blaze in her hold was started by a bomb which Holt had placed there was a matter of pure conjecture. It was possible that he had done so, an official stated, but one man's guess on that point was as good as another's in added.

Capt. Claret's message said that the fire was in No. 3 hold and was not serious. The ammunition aboard the vessel was stored aft, away from this hold. The cargo in No. 3 hold, it was asserted, was of a general nature.

No passengers were aboard the Minnehaha. Her crew numbers approximately 100. She was at her pier here about a week taking on cargo before sailing for London last Sunday, July 4. Holt would have had ample time, it was pointed out, to place a bomb aboard the Minnehaha during the five days preceding his attempt on the life of J. P. Morgan while the vessel was taking on cargo here.

The Minnehaha should reach Halifax, it was said, tomorrow forenoon. "We exercise all reasonable precautions to prevent the placing of bombs aboard our ships," an officer of the line said today. A guard is on duty day and night at the dock and our own workmen are watched strictly and continuously.

"Our shipments, however, are made up chiefly of large consignments and the chances of loading a small package such as one containing a bomb would be considerably less than on some other trans-Atlantic vessels."

The Minnehaha, requisitioned by the British government since the beginning of the European war, was released for the general freight service about two months ago. Since her release she has made two trans-Atlantic trips, carrying each time a large general cargo, containing munitions of war.

The fire aboard the Minnehaha was caused by an explosion, according to a wireless message received at 12.40 p. m. today from Capt. Claret. At that time the fire was said to have been mastered.

Capt. Claret's message read as follows:

"Fire caused by explosion. Now under control by suffocation and steam. Much smoke in holds. Deemed it expedient to make for Halifax. Due off Chibucto Head 9 a. m., Friday. Advice agents."

AMMUNITION ABOARD

A considerable quantity of ammunition was aboard the Minnehaha, it was learned today. Officials of the line asserted, however, that the fire was far removed from that section of the ship in which the ammunition had been stored.

The ship's crew numbered approximately 100.

The Minnehaha's manifest shows that she had aboard 1000 cases of cordite, 2800 cases of loaded shrapnel shells, 1400 cases of tritite tubul, 1548 cases of cartridges and 175 cases of safety cartridges.

Among the inflammable materials aboard were 65 packages of petroleum, 2900 barrels of oil and 1911 barrels of wax. The chemicals included 53 barrels of formaldehyde and 95 barrels of boracic acid. There were also aboard 230 horses, 223 cases of automobiles and a large quantity of zinc and copper plates and products.

WELCOMED HOME

Man, Who Was Forced to Enlist in Army, Gets Release and Returns

EXILLAS Paquette of 231 Cabot street, an expert machinist in the employ of the Lawrence Mfg. Co., who a few weeks ago, while on a visit in Canada, enlisted in the Canadian army, has been released from the army and returned to his family yesterday, and it is fair to assume that the reception tendered him by a wife and four children was a most cordial one.

The regiment in which Mr. Paquette enlisted, the 1st Canadian Royal, is scheduled to sail for Europe on July 15 and the Lowell man had a very narrow escape from sailing to France. Mr. Paquette left Lowell some six weeks ago and went to Montreal, Que., where he visited relatives. When he attempted to return to the states he was held up by the immigration officers on the Canadian border and inasmuch as he was not a citizen of this country, he was sent back to Quebec, where he enlisted in the 41st regiment.

His wife in this city was later notified of the enlistment and she did all in her power to have her husband released but with no result. Finally, the mayor sent a letter to Hon. Samuel Hughes, minister of militia and defense, at Ottawa, Ont., and Saturday Mr. Paquette, who was stationed at the soldiers' camp at Valcartier, Que., was given his release. He went directly to Montreal and there with the assistance of a detective, Albert Rivet, a former Lowellite, received passport to return to Lowell.

Mr. Paquette returned to Lowell yesterday, and his arrival caused a very pleasant surprise to his wife and family. In conversation with a Sun reporter this morning the young man said there are about ten Lowell boys in the 41st regiment, among whom is Arthur Drouin, who formerly conducted a drug store at the corner of Lilley avenue and West Sixth street, this city. He said the food at the camp is of the best and there is plenty of it. The soldiers spend most of their time in Quebec and they are very well taken care of.

The first month's pay is generally retained by the government for the clothing given a soldier when he enlists, but in his case it was not. When he was discharged he was given $15, while yesterday his wife received a check for $23, the total amount being his pay for four weeks' service. He said he was anxious to go to the front, but, on the other hand, he is pleased to have returned to his family.

The regiment is scheduled to sail July 15, but it is probable the trip will be delayed, for when he left Quebec he was informed about 300 enlisted men were discharged, and this noon he stated he will not return to Canada until the great war is over.

GERMANS NOW CLAIM GAINS ON BOTH FRONTS

French Driven Back West of Souchez—Russians Checked—Italian Warship Sunk

This German official announcement on the progress of hostilities says that the French, after penetrating German trenches west of Souchez, were driven out by a counter-attack and that a second attack by the French resulted in failure. The fighting to the west of Arras and the Germans took to French arms and the Germans took 400 prisoners. Artillery exchanges are severe on the entire front in France.

Russians Checked

In the eastern arena an enemy attack on Lithuania was repulsed; in northern Poland some Russian trenches have been taken; and elsewhere advances by the Russians were checked.

To the west of the upper Vistula the German report says in conclusion, a number of Russian positions were taken yesterday by storm.

Severe Fighting

The French official statement refers to severe fighting in the region north of Arras; the repulse of German attacks between Angres and Souchez and the occupation of lines of German trenches north of the latter place. Severe fighting in the Argonne last night and a German advance was driven back. The German salient near St. Mihiel was the scene of further activity last night, but without decided outcome according to the French official report.

British Stores Wrecked

A wireless despatch from Berlin says the Germans have destroyed at Arras the main stores of the British troops on the north of the line in France, and that these forces are consequently greatly handicapped.

At the moment when the Teutonic march through southern Poland was beginning to threaten first Lublin and then Warsaw it has been brought to a halt. Official statements from each side agree that at the one point—in the angle north of Krasnik—where the Russian lines were still strengthened, they have been breached. It now appears that General Duke Nicholas' forces are holding their ground all along the extended front.

Heavy Losses

Determined attempts by the Austro-German forces to drive the Russians out of what remains to them of Galicia are continuing. Petrograd reports assaults by great forces east of Lemberg but declares they were repulsed with heavy losses to the attacking army.

Lull on Austro-Italian Front

Apparently there is a lull in the furious fighting along the Austro-Italian front after the recent determined attacks by the invading forces. Official statements from Rome, however, declared continued advances are being made on the Carnic plateau where the progress is described as "slow but constant."

Italian Warship Sunk

The Italian armored cruiser Adriatic has been sunk in the upper Adriatic by an Austrian submarine. Most of the crew were saved.

The conference was for a further discussion of the German tentative proposal from an American standpoint.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Five Montenegrins, including three commissioners of the king of Montenegro and a former charge d'affaires at Constantinople, were named in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury today, charging conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws of the United States.

DEFEAT OF THE ITALIANS

BERLIN, July 8, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—The battle between the Austrians and Italians on the Isonzo front ended, according to despatches to the Over Seas News agency, with a great defeat and enormous losses for the Italians who outnumbered the Austrians four to one. The Italians kept up an incessant bombardment with their heavy artillery, the advices say, but without effect and the waste of ammunition was tremendous.

Frank Warnock, president of Trades & Labor council, spoke on conditions that prevailed in Lowell some years ago and compared them with today, which showed that where the workers were organized, conditions have improved.

The last speaker of the evening was Organizer Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers who outlined the policies of the organization and showed the benefits received by organized mill workers in various localities.

A number of applications were received and a general good time was enjoyed by those present after the speechmaking.

Moulders' Union

A well attended meeting of the Moulders' union was held last night in Corton Spinnery hall, Middle street, with President John T. Willman in the chair.

Reports were received from the special organizing committee appointed and the labor forward committee, both denoting progress. Officers were installed for the ensuing six months, and much progress is looked for during the new regime. Communications were received from the international union showing the progress made throughout the country and on several important matters which have been referred to the membership for referendum vote. A communication was received from a union in Worcester stating that a strike is on in one of the shops in that city. It was voted to participate in the Labor day parade on the coming holiday and a committee was appointed to make further arrangements.

Considerable routine business was discussed pertaining to local matters and action was taken thereon. Under the good of the organization, remarks were made by several members, and the meeting adjourned to July 19.

Lyon Co. Rugs

The Ardahan rug, "The American Oriental" manufactured by the Lyon Carpet Co., of this city resembles very closely the Oriental rug made by hand methods. Woven by the modern loom of more than human accuracy, the Ardahan is excellent in wearing qualities and texture. It is a genuine rug made without millers. In addition, the wool is procured from the same source as that used in the Orient. Every precaution is taken in washing, and the rug is made under perfect sanitary conditions.

The rug is made on the principle that the quality and amount of stock on the face of the rug, with the proper bind, is what gives the wear. All the yarn is on the face where the wear comes. The fastest of dyes are used in its coloring. The pile stands perfectly straight which gives a resilient tread and may be brushed at any angle. No sizing of glue is used in the whole manufacturing process. The weight of the rug, measuring nine by twelve, is fifty-five pounds.

The design shows through clearly to the back, a feature to be found in Oriental rugs. Each tuft has a double bind mechanically executed. The weight and evenness of the weave prevent its sliding on the floor. For the same reasons, when laid on stairs, the pile will not open over the nosings, or "grin," but retains its closeness and regularity.

There need be no doubt as to the wearing qualities of a rug of this nature or any rug manufactured by this up-to-date carpet company. An example of its durability is seen in a rug over which 750,000 persons walked. Over another permanently attached to a sidewalk in Flaverhill in mid-winter when it was subjected to a severe test on account of the sleet and snow, 450,000 persons passed.

Mr. Lyons, manager of the local plant has many sheets of data concerning the tests, rugs of different kinds, and letters guaranteeing the above statements of the tests of the rugs will be gladly shown, and the rugs may be obtained for advertising purposes upon request.

In buildings where floor coverings are subject to the severest kind of wear, fabrics of this nature are invariably found.

Three vital points must be considered when purchasing a rug—first, harmonious coloring; second, good design; and third, wearing quality. Today the public more keenly appreciates these features, and among the Lyon Patterns may be found all that is best in Oriental art, both in coloring and design.

The patterns also include modern all-over designs as well as medallion motifs. Of those who require the luxuries of a deep pile carpet, with permanency of color, long wearing qualities, with soft, mellow tones expressed in designs of broad treatment, the product offered by this company is among the best manufactured in the country. And it is for this reason, and because the company boasts of a live manager in George Lyons, that the local plant is running full time the year around with all hands steadily employed. The Lyon Carpet Co. bids fair to be probably the only carpet concern in the city within a short time, and in the quality of its product it will rank among the highest in the whole world.

SCENE FROM "FIGHTING BOB"

Featuring Orrin Johnson, at the B. F. Keith Theatre Today, Tomorrow and Saturday

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

A martial picture in five parts and showing over 300 specially made scenes is "Fighting Bob" which will be shown in the latter half of the present week at the B. F. Keith theatre. The subject is one which will make a stout appeal, because the main facts are connected with events of recent memory. The Mexican revolution in which Huerta deposed and later killed Madero, the president, is the background through which work the characters of "Bob" and "Dulcinea," the excellent actor of the legitimate stage, and Olive Wyndham, an equally well known leading woman, will enact the principal parts in this drama. Mr. Johnson has never before appeared in motion pictures, and it is also the debut of Miss Wyndham. The story tells of the collection of a very host of an army of irregulars, of their depredations and of the final defeat of his forces by those of "Fighting Bob." It is full of action, and, without the most charming of love tales finds its way into it. The photography of the picture is of the very best. As usual Manager Pickett has surrounded the principal feature with several one-reel stories, which cover the gamut from comedy to the dramatic. This theatre is one of the best spots in town, and one may rest assured that he can see the best photographs in town in absolute comfort.

FIRE LOSSES $26,000,000

Lawrence Has the Best Record—
Lowell Had 526 Fires and a Total Loss of $321,699

The total number of fires in Massachusetts during the year ending May, 1915, was 5479, of which 6915 were in frame buildings, 2133 in brick or stone buildings and 277 other than building fires.

The loss on the same was $26,194,270.57, and the sound value of the property damaged by fire was $215,678,456. The amount of insurance at risk on the same was $186,582,600. Insurance loss paid amounted to $22,252,373.35. Of the total number of fires 143, or 1.69 p. c., were of incendiary origin. There were also 924 fires of unknown origin, or 10.56 p. c.

In Boston. The total number of fires in the city of Boston during the year was 2301, of which 1042 were in frame buildings, 1163 in brick or stone buildings, and 96 were other than building fires. The total value involved in Boston fires was $51,896,850; insurance thereon, $47,097,124; total amount of loss, $3,044,621.34; and the total insurance loss, $2,854,361.95. Of the total number of fires in Boston, 17, or .73 p. c., were incendiary, and the causes of 269 were unknown.

Outside of Boston. The total number of fires in the state, outside of Boston, was 4178. Total value of property damaged was $183,781,606; total insurance on same, $139,185,536; total loss, $23,140,889.23; and total insurance loss, $19,791,410. The number of arrests for burning and arson for the year was 61. There have been 43 convictions; the percentage of convictions to trials was 75. Of the incendiary fires in Boston, 4 were for the purpose of securing insurance, 1 by an insane person, 7 from malice, and the motive of 5 is unknown. Of the incendiary fires occurring in the state outside of Boston, 24 were set for the purpose of obtaining insurance, 6 by insane or demented persons, 46 from malice, 2 for revenue, 4 for spite, 7 by an intoxicated person, and the motive for 41 is unknown.

Of 29 Massachusetts cities Lawrence has the best record of all with 456 fires involving a loss of $54,290, or a capita loss of $5.77. Boston stands 26th on the list with a per capita loss of $4.06 in 4219 fires, involving a total loss of $3,044,621.34. Pittsfield has the unenviable of heading the list with a total loss of $225,161 in 216 fires, a per capita loss of $5.29. The per capita loss of Salem was $4.89 in 319 fires, destroying $24,551 worth of property. WASHINGTON, July 8.—A tour of investigation to cover the middle west, the Pacific coast and the south was announced yesterday by the federal trade commission. Hearings will be begun in Chicago on July 19 and the commission will travel for nearly two months completing its inquiry into the export trade situation.

The commission will hold closed hearings at various points on informal complaints which have been filed charging business concerns with "unfair competition."

THE SPELLBINDER

Speaking of bridges and bridge

The municipal council, or more particularly, four of its members are trying hard to have the Luten Engineering company, of Springfield, His Honor's ideal city, superintend the construction of a bridge over the Merrimack at Pawtucket falls, the cost of which is hoped will not exceed $30,000.

The Journal of the Western Society of Engineers, of September, 1912 contained a very readable and instructive article on "Arch Design. Specialization and Patent" which was presented before the bridge and structural section of the society on June 19, 1912, by Daniel B. Luten, M. W. S. E.

In the course of his address Mr. Luten said: "In few and widely scattered communities are materials directly available for building bridges, except of wood and concrete. Even for the wooden bridges of long span, suitable timber must now be imported from most northern countries. For such bridges, and for steel, almost all of the expenditure for superstructure, is therefore, sent out of the country, and usually out of the state. For concrete arches, the cement amounting to 10 per cent of the cost, and the steel amounting to 5 per cent, together with 5 per cent, for superintendence, are all that are necessarily foreign in expenditure, a total of about one-fifth. The concrete girder exports 10 per cent of the cost for cement, 25 per cent for steel and 5 per cent for superintendence, or about twice as much as the arch. Unless the profit on an arch exceeds 20 per cent, therefore, it is better policy for a community to let contractors for arches even to outside contractors than to award contracts for girders to home talent, all other advantages being assumed equal."

Daniel B. Luten states that a community should pay 5 per cent for superintendence, and Mr. Denman of the Luten Engineering company is taxing the city of Lowell 3-4 per cent. But Daniel B. Luten says nothing of the cost of "placing the steel." Perhaps he figured that in with the cost of the steel itself which one naturally supposes would be done in such a transaction.

Taking Mr. Denman at his word, however, and assuming that he is charging but 5 per cent for superintendence, then he must be charging 3 1/2 per cent, or $3079 for "placing the steel," which according to Mr. Luten should cost $4000. If it costs $3079 to place $4000 worth of steel it should certainly be well "placed." But the city is not following Mr. Luten's estimates in dealing with the Luten company. Its representative, Mr. Draper, agrees to pay more than the price which Mr. Luten lays down as the standard for steel and supervision.

Taking the Bridge Lumber

A correspondent who read in Saturday's Sun that Engineer Denman or his company is to take away some $3000 worth of second hand lumber after its temporary use in the construction of the Pawtucket bridge rises to protest, claiming that Commission of Public Safety should get on to his job and take the lumber for the city department in the construction of sewers. He argues that the lumber that it is proposed to give to Mr. Denman would come in very nicely for use in the sewer department and would save the city the expense of purchasing new lumber for that department. Respectfully submitted to Commissioner Morse. The same correspondent remarks that in order to use up a carload of nails they will be obliged to buy a much greater amount of lumber than has been estimated or else throw them in the river, which would be objected to by the locks and Canals company. If not by the city, for they might impede the flow of water.

General Good Order

General good order prevailed on July 4th and 5th despite the great crowd in Lowell. Mayor Murphy instructed the hotel keepers in advance about showing too lavish hospitality to men in uniform but it would seem his precautionary measures were unnecessary for there was no disorder upon the part of the military men and no drunkenness. A man was shot and rubbed close by the South common and there were several cases of pockets that were picked, notably that of Park Commissioner Reardon, who was "touched" while walking along "his own" common. But these things will happen in the best regulated cities and cannot be blamed upon the administration in power. There was considerable gambling of a minor nature on the common but that is something that can't be eliminated and when the public seems to enjoy. Neither can that be blamed upon the police nor upon the administration in power. In the past such happenings have been blamed upon the city government by people not in sympathy with that particular government and the blame was undeserved. If pockets are picked and men shot and robbed either at a celebration conducted by the city itself or at a show or dance or boxing match run by private individuals, the administration that happens to be in power at the time cannot rightfully be held responsible for such violations of the law, and should not be made good for course, but this fair such riotous campaign material will not be needed, as there will be a sufficiency of the real stuff.

Launching of Booms

There'll be a general launching of political booms again with the other attractions at the big power of the republican city committee at the Bunting grounds on Saturday afternoon. There'll be republican candidates present all the way down the line from governor to registrar of voters, and there'll be quite as many candidates for registrar as there will be for governor. There's a big time scheduled and party lines will not be drawn at the care. Everybody with "the necessary" will be welcomed.

Registrar of Voters

Speaking of that registrars' job, they're at it as merrily as if the election were coming tomorrow when they can't get near it for a year. Dr. James H. Rooney is holding over, as the municipal council neglected to vote for registrar during the months prescribed by law. "The job is being held down in an eminently satisfactory manner by Dr. Rooney, and hence there is no occasion for any sleepless nights on the part of the taxpayers, or of the members of the municipal council, for it is one of the rare cases where neglectfulness proved a good thing, or at least did no harm. But the candidates are busy, nevertheless. The law provides that this particular office must be held by a republican, and there is one beautiful thing for which the republican party has over been noted; its preparedness at all times to furnish a sufficiency of candidates for any office with a salary attached. Political historians have not as yet recorded beyond a peradventure whether it was Fred Harrison who discovered George Brown or George Brown who discovered Fred Harrison, but anyway, Mr. Harrison dawned upon the political horizon in the days of Blown as the Brown candidate for registrar of voters. But the changing colors of the political kaleidoscope soon made him a blue candidate as he lacked one vote of election. But, nothing daunted, he has been a candidate ever since as is his inalienable right, and he may be even so unto the end of the chapter. Brown voted for him but not on "the psychological ballot," as it were. Again in the O'Donnell administration he was there with two votes when two didn't count but didn't get the necessary third. Under the present administration he had his two votes "all salted," but they're still on ice. Now it is understood that Mr. Harrison's friend, Fred G. Humphreys, is in record mood, as it were, and will be a candidate in the event of Mr. Harrison being unable to win. Mr. Humphreys' friends figure that as Mr. Harrison has had two votes sold for several administrations and has never been able to win, that Fred, the second, will not be "butting" in on Fred without the third, when the election will come up. Then there is faithful Joe Hibbard, who is ever ready to serve either his country, state or city, and Joe, it is said, must be figured upon as a candidate for registrar when it comes up. There is a remote possibility that somebody is "kidding" or they would stay on "other side of pond," "spoofing" Mr. Harrison in regard to these two votes, but—don't soil your pen! Happy as I have been nearly a year of grace before we shall be called upon to worry over the election of a registrar.

Democratic Senatorial Candidates

Almost simultaneously a few days ago I picked up a copy of Practical Politics and a copy of the Lynn News, and in each found something of interest, politically. In Practical Politics, the genial countenance of former Senator Henry Draper beamed upon me framed in the following announcement:

"Henry S. Draper, who represented Lowell in the senate for several terms, may be a candidate again this fall. His friends desire that he should run against Sen. Marchand, who won the district for the republicans last year in a three-cornered contest in which the progressives upset the plans of the democrats.

"Should Sen. Draper go into the fight there will be things doing in the district, for he is not only a vote-getter on his own account, but he is very strong with the labor organizations in the city and the farmers in the country, because of his stand on various bills in which those interests were concerned.

"The district is close politically and has been so for some time. In the last few years as often as it has been a republican, for which reason the party leaders are doing their utmost to induce Mr. Draper to enter the contest."

"The Lynn News called attention to the affairs of the 'shoe-string' district by means of the following communication:

"To the Editor of the Lynn News.—It has been rumored in ward 6 that I have said I was not a candidate this year for the senate from the 17th Middlesex district. I can say I think I rather early to be asking people to forget their own affairs and interest themselves in politics, especially as the hot season is now on.

"I am content to let my magnificent vote all over the district speak for itself, feeling quite certain that on the day of the caucus next September the democrats of ward 6 will surely elect the man most likely to win, and that is quite the crux of the situation. In the meantime, without any spirit of bragado, I want them to consider the fact that I received the largest vote ever cast for a democrat in ward 6. In a straight party contest up to election day, last year, just 1890, running ahead of Governor Walsh's vote—quite a feat, when on the ticket with such a splendid vote getter.

"I received more votes than Senator Fisher ever received in the district; carried Lowell by a larger vote than Senator Fisher, carrying the republican ward there by 37 votes; carried ward 6 and Saugus, where I am best known, by 600 votes more than Senator Fisher, and strange to say, never asked a single voter in the entire district to vote for me, always considering that a voter shall have the privilege of voting as he sees fit.

"When the voters ponder over these figures I will be very content to abide by their decision in September, at the primaries.

Henry P. Dunn.
"Candidate for Senator in the 17th Middlesex district last year.
"West Lynn, June 25."

Lowellians Like Dunn

In the district now represented by Senator Marchand there is no doubt that he will receive a re-nomination without opposition and there has been no talk thus far of any opposition on the democratic end to Mr. Draper, should the latter be a candidate.

In the other district, there will be no Lowell candidate and it seems to be the consensus of opinion among the democrats of wards five and nine that Mr. Dunn should be given another opportunity without opposition on account of the fine run he made last year and the hard and effective work he put into the campaign. This sentiment has been echoed in the towns in this vicinity and Senator Fisher, the one man who would be selected as the most desirable candidate from this end of the wards, is favorable to Mr. Dunn. Mr. Burke of Lynn is casting sheep's eyes at the nomination. It is said, but up this way thus far what little talk there has been on the subject is all favorable to Mr. Dunn.

CLEANING THE REFRIGERATOR

"My refrigerator smells sort of ice and musty," said Marie, "what can I do to make it as sweet and clean?"
"We use lump charcoal," advised Marie, "and we have found nothing as good as that. Besides a little goes a long way. Before cleaning the refrigerator remove all articles of food to a cool place or shelf within easy reach. Have in the stationary tub or an ordinary wash tub, plenty of household ammonia and good white soap which is free from odor. Plunge into this all the shelves and movable fixtures, including the tray on which the ice rests. The ice should be wrapped in newspaper and set in the coolest spot available. When the fixtures are washed set them out in the sun to air and sweeten.

ice return it to its proper compartment and quickly shut the door. Then as quickly as possible return the food and shut the refrigerator door.
"If the food is put away carefully in proper receptacles a refrigerator should not be cleaned more than twice a week. For the refrigerator not connected with a sewer or outdoor drain, one may buy a new and clean ordinary wash tub, plenty of household ammonia and good white soap which is free from odor. UBERT A. KILLAM DEAD

HAVERHILL BANKER AND MEMBER OF THE FIRST MUNICIPAL COUNCIL FOR FOUR YEARS

HAVERHILL, July 8.—Ubert A. Killam, member of the first municipal council under the commission form of government and head of the department of finance in his term of office, died suddenly yesterday at his home on Chestnut street, aged 63 years and 10 months.

Mr. Killam has been an accountant and banker the greater part of his life and for 38 years prior to his election to the municipal council was associated in responsible capacities with the Merrimack National bank. Many years ago he was a trustee of the Perley Fred Masons and one of the most prominent citizens of Haverhill.

15 years had been president of the board, signing the diplomas of the present year graduates class as he lay on his death bed.

He was a native of Georgetown and was the only son of the late Hosea G. and Mary Jane Spofford Killam. After graduating from high school he came to this city where he was employed in a dry goods store. He became teller of the Merrimack National bank in 1870 and in 1881 succeeded John L. Hobson as cashier, which place he retained until 1908 when he was selected as a candidate for the new municipal council, to become head of the department of finance. He served in that capacity four years and then retired to private life.

Mr. Killam was for many years clerk of the sinking fund commission and had been a trustee of the Five Cent Savings bank. He was a member of the Pentucket club, of which he was a past president, of Sagamore lodge of the Elks, and one of the most prominent citizens of Haverhill.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled to bring out the flavor and food value—and Instant Postum—the soluble form—prepared in the cup with hot water instantly!

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds. They are equally delicious, and cost about the same per cup.

UPLIFTING THE GAME

Kennedy Tells Roach How Old
Bill Shakespeare Would Have
Rooted on the Diamond

In the office of the Lowell team in the Hildreth building a few days ago, Owner Andy Roach and Secretary Jimmie Kennedy were discussing the Lowell team; its slump, and baseball conditions generally.

Andy was inclined to be philosophical and a trifle reticent while Jimmie was quite outspoken, and didn't hesitate to express his innermost feelings. "It's getting to be a common thing to lose," exclaimed Jimmie, in deep disgust, "and it's time there was a change. Why, when I was bartering up on Broadway I had a team called Kennedy's Pets, and if they couldn't put up a better bluff than this bunch who are masquerading in our uniforms I'd drive them off the corner. The gang wouldn't let them sit on the North common. They're enough to drive you out of the game!"

"As Con Daly would remark," replied Andy, "There's an element of truth in what you say, James, but still, as my old friend of school days, William Shakespeare once said: 'I will not give my part of this sport for a pension of thousands.'"

By a beautiful one-hand catch Mr. Kennedy rescued his exquisitely-colored mouschaum pipe which had slipped from between his teeth as he opened up to let go an astonished: "Huh!"

Recovering his pipe and his composure, simultaneously, Mr. Kennedy said: "I pray thee, little one slide that across again, I was figuring out whether they short-changed us at Manchester, Monday morning, and didn't have my eye on the ball. Come across with it once more, there's nothing to wait for."

"I was quoting William Shakespeare, my friend of school days," said Andy, smilingly.

"Shakespeare, Shakespeare!" murmured Jimmie, reflectively, but with a twinkle of the eye "He's the guy who lived on Marion street and went to the Mann school. His father used to work in the big shop. The old man was with me when I ran for the council."

"My dear man, I'm referring to the famous dramatic poet, Shakespeare; not to any of your ward two constituents," replied Mr. Roach.

"Well, why the— Of course you were; and I'm glad you did, for it recalls something important that I have meant to take up with you regarding the uplift of the game of baseball," said Mr. Kennedy.

"If it's important, I'll listen; otherwise tell it to Ben Maloney, for my time is limited," replied Andy, while Mr. Maloney who had just dropped in, prepared to just drop out.

"Well," remarked Jimmie, incidentally placing to one side, his 40 horsepower mouschaum, "baseball is changing; that is to say, its tone is changing; and we must meet the change. It's the old saying: 'When you're in Rome, burn Roman candles.' Our ladies days are bringing out the fair sex in large numbers, while the college-bred fellows are getting into the game. Already we have Louie Pieper of Dartmouth at Manchester and any number of players and managers from the different correspondence schools of the country."

Thus the tone is changing; and with it will change the language employed by players, managers, umpires, yes, and by the spectators. How it must grate on the sensitive ears of Louie Pieper or Tom Keady to hear a player on the lines, exclaim: 'Dat-a-boy, dat-a-boy; bum yer way, ol' scout; not to speak of the effect on that portion of the grand stand with the high brow, and the low-necked expanse of front elevation—

"You're quite right, but what's all that got to do with Shakespeare?" interposed Mr. Roach.

"Like a good actor I also withhold my climax until what Bob Paradis calls the psychological moment," remarked James. "My idea is to adopt the language of your old friend Shakespeare on the diamond. Old Bill was right there with expressions to meet the varying situations in baseball if he did live way back in the days when Jesse Burkett, Jim Cudworth, Bill Hawes and Dick Conway broke into the game. The idea occurred to me one day last winter while sojourning in California. I went into a cafe with my old friend Carroll Smith and overheard a couple of guys quoting baseball expressions that emanated from the fertile mind of Shakespeare. It struck me that I might go home, start a movement to uplift the language of baseball and perhaps some day get my picture in The Sun, as a man who had left a monument for posterity, and say, Andrew, I love to pronounce that word, it is so similar in sound to another word that we haven't heard for so long—prosperity—to gaze upon and venerate. Hence in my leisure moments I have delved into the many volumes of Shakespeare and have culled therefrom some old-ids, and if you care to learn something not found in Spalding's baseball guide, or Roach's handy baseball schedule just listen:"

Then James unfolded a roll of manuscript and proceeded with "Shakespeare on Baseball," as follows:

CONNIE MACK NOW MAKING THIRD
SACKER OUT OF WALLIE SCHANG

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—In the course of his efforts to fill the gap created by the retirement of Frank Baker to the simple life of farming and playing wildcat baseball Connie Mack has conducted many an experiment this season, but his latest is perhaps the most surprising of them all. Wallie Schang, stripped of his mask and mitt, is now in the role of a third baseman. Though he has shown no signs of relenting toward Baker, the tall leader of the Mackmen has found it more difficult to fill the hole at third than he anticipated. It is the point through which many a ball game has slipped this season, and even now it is doubtful if he would consider any other terms for the home run king than he has already offered. But by drafting one of the greatest catchers in the league for infield duty he has indicated that he is near the end of his resources for third sackers. Schang is the tenth or twelfth in the long list of candidates for the position. Oldring, Walsh, Murphy, Kopf and numerous newcomers have had a crack at it, but none of them showed any particular adaptability for the place. Schang has been at the station only a few days, but he seems to be doing as well as any of them. He has a good arm and is fielding neatly. However, it is not likely that Schang is lost to the mitt and mask. It is understood that Connie Mack has no intention of keeping him at third permanently. Several of the youngsters who have recently been tried out there fielded well enough, but Connie figured that he needed Schang's hitting to carry along the more or less uncertain pitching the Athletics have been getting all season.

PORTLAND PLAYER LEADS THE
GREENHALGE THIRD

Chick Farrell of the Portland team continues to lead the hitters of the New England league. The figures, compiled to date, show that Hugh Duffy's slugging outfielder is traveling at the fast pace of 372, and he has taken part in 43 games. Farrell has drilled 60 base hits through the opposition's defense and in performing the feat he has had 161 tries. Jack Warner, the champs' second baseman, is runner-up to Farrell. He is ten points behind in average, while he has played seven more games. Farrell is a scarcity of 300 hitters, as but eight are enrolled in the honor circle. The following players have made 50 hits or more this season: Warner 69, Farrell 60, Reed 59, Barrow 55, Swayne 55, Luyster 54, Burns 54, Gardella 53, Dowell 52, Briggs 51, Orenit 50.

The leading run getters are: Burns, Portland, 44; Farrell, Portland, 34; Gardella, Worcester, 34; O'Connell, Lawrence, 33; Clemens, Portland, 33; Luyster, Lawrence, 33; Reed, Manchester, 29; Briggs, Manchester, 29; Gleason, Lynn, 28; Swayne, Lowell, 27; Potteiger, Worcester, 26; Carroll, Worcester, 26.

O'Connell of Lawrence is first in sacrifice hits with 13.

The leaders: O'Connell, Lawrence, 13; Becker, Lewiston, 11; Sweett, Portland, 11; Spiles, Manchester, 11; Conley, Lawrence, 10; Moulton, Fitchburg, 10; Potteiger, Worcester, 10.

Porter of Lynn leads in stolen bases. The leaders: Porter, Lynn, 26; Dowell, Portland, 20; O'Connell, Lawrence, 16; Burns, Portland, 13; Becker, Lewiston, 13; Gleason, Lynn, 13; Orcutt, Lynn, 13; Duggan, Fitchburg, 13; Clemens, Portland, 11; Lynch, Lynn, 11.

Luyster is first in two-base hits. The figures:

Luyster, Lawrence, 19; Sweett, Portland, 13; Conley, Lawrence, 12; Farrell, Portland, 11; Warner, Lawrence, 11; Mahoney, Lawrence, 11; Potteiger, Worcester, 11.

Barrows and Briggs are tied in triples. The leaders: Barrows, Lowell, 7; Briggs, Manchester, 7; DeNo,ville, Lewiston, 6; Dowell, Portland, 6; Farrell, Portland, 5; Kane, Manchester, 5; Torphy, Manchester, 5.

Barrows is first in home runs with four while Farrell, Warner and Thompson have each made three homers.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Lynn has a classy outfield.

If this rainy season keeps up we will have to play our games indoors or under a tent.

The Lynn team is strengthening its lineup in a manner that would indicate that it is after big game.

There are times when Paddy Green doesn't look as big as he appears when things are breaking right.

Lowell may yet have a former big leaguer with a rep, and a good head directing that infield.

Fitchburg may start a baseball association after the method of Manchester now that Dan Noonan has passed away.

Because a team gets only two errors in the error column doesn't indicate that it only made two misplays. Some of the most costly misplays are those that can't be scored as errors under the rules. For instance, a misplay that allows a run in is costly, but it doesn't count as an error; on the contrary, the batter gets credit for a hit and the pitcher is charged with an error. The running can't be scored in the error column or Lowell would have a fat column.

Now everybody seems to think that Howard Fahey won't do. Principal Irish, fan who knows the game, predicted that fact when Fahey first put on a Lowell uniform, and he had watched him play while in the High School league. There has hardly been a season in many years except when Jake Boutwell was on the third sack that there wasn't trouble in getting that important position covered properly. That reminds us, Ordway, who had a brief career at third base at Spaulding park, is now with Lynn on the same bag, and appears to be making good.

"Dan" Clokey, representing Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, has made to John O'Leary, the Haverhill high school athlete star of the past three years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. O'Leary of 2 Chandler street, Bradford, a proposition to join the Athletics July 21 upon their return from the present western trip. Now it is put fairly and squarely up to the Bradford boy as to whether or not he will give up amateur athletics and become affiliated with professional baseball. He has been a much sought man by prep schools and colleges since his wonderful showing on the gridiron last fall when he was captain of the local high school team. As a football player, however, he gives no more promise than on the diamond and it is not at all unlikely that he will accept the offer of the attenuated manager of the former world's champions.—Haverhill Record.

ONE BAD INNING

By Lowell Gave Victory
to the Burkettters in Yesterday's Game

(Special to The Sun)

WORCESTER, July 8.—Worcester took advantage of one bad inning which the Lowell club and Pitcher Paddy Green had and pushed over four big runs which paved the way for a 5 to 3 victory yesterday afternoon.

The visitors, who looked like a good ball club on paper, gave a poor exhibition in the fourth inning of why they are at the bottom of the list.

Van Dyke, although all the runs were earned on his delivery, twisted good ball, except in the eighth, all pushed two scores across the pan after two were down.

Humor Conney at first base turned in the fielding features of the day. In all his shifts around the infield, and he has covered every position, Conney looks by far the best on the initial sack.

His foot work is splendid, he has a dandy pair of hands, and his stretching and bending for high ones and going after the low ones was easily the feature of the contest.

Worcester's outfield, particularly Potteiger, also had a fairly busy day, and came through with flying colors.

For a time when business conditions were better the Feds would probably have had a much better chance to cut into the baseball melon. But with all business in a precarious condition baseball in general necessarily has to suffer.

The Feds may go through another season but I very much doubt it.

It does not take much of a prophetic to dope the thing out. There can be no solution to the baseball war—peace and organized baseball, which has been the saviour of our national game and kept it from the hands of crooks and gamblers and from the players themselves, who if given full control of the game, would very naturally there has to be a head to everything and a system whereby even the weakest of its members are protected.

mitted in the fourth inning. McCleskey, first up, got two bases on Fahey's wild throw of his grounder. Gardella lifted a pop fly to left which Swayne failed to reach, and it was for a single. McCleskey taking third, Potteiger hit a short sacrifice fly to Greenhalge, McCleskey scoring and Gardella taking second on Greenhalge's miserable return to the plate. Greenhalge was playing in too close and then misjudged Pownall's liner, giving him a triple on what would have been a put-out had the outfielder been playing his position.

Scored easily on the hit. With the infield drawn in, Campbell dumped a Texas leaguer in short right. Bowcock who dashed back, barely got his hands on the ball. Greenhalge, however, should have made the put-out easily. Pownall easily scored on Campbell's double, which was about the garish of its kind seen recently. Campbell went to third and Conney was given a life when Bowcock booted the latter's grounder. Van Dyke laid down a bunt and as he at first when no one covered the bag.

was picked off when he tried a double steal. Ahearn to Green to Bowcock. Carroll ended the agony with a fly to Greenhalge which he caught.

The Climbers pushed over their final run in the sixth, this time giving splendid exhibition of hard, free hitting. Pownall led off with a single with one down, and sprouted to third when Campbell shot a hard single through Dee's territory, as the latter ran over to cover second base.

Conney hit a fly to right, center, and Potteiger took long flies from Greenhalge and Green.

The visitors staged a brief rally in the eighth, after two were out. McMahon made a good try to Swaine hit, deflecting the liner. Fahey followed with a safe blow to left. Campbell went back to the fence in right, barely touching Estes' double. Swaine and Fahey crossed the plate. McMahon fumbled Bowcock's grounder and the tying runs were on third and first, with Barrows up. His best effort was a hard hit by Dy to right, center, which Potteiger smothered, checking the visitors' rally. The score:

THE CAMPAIGN BRIDGE

Viewing the bridge muddle in the most favorable light possible, it is difficult to see how the municipal council can proceed with the construction of a bridge at Pawtucket falls without leaving the city liable to serious financial loss in the future.

In the first place, the letter of Engineer Mills of the Locks and Canals company plainly shows that a bridge built under the Denman plans, conditionally accepted by the city, will make the city in various ways financially responsible for damage to property as a result of freshets where the present bridge would offer protection.

Again, it is shown, that the abutments of the proposed bridge would offer so much greater obstruction to the flow of water in the river, that a channel two-thirds of the span in width and fifteen feet deep would have to be excavated in order in some degree to overcome this objection. The excavation of 9000 cubic feet of solid rock would cost considerable, and this would have to be added to the cost of building the bridge.

But that would not overcome all the liability for damage claims inasmuch as the arches even with the deeper channel proposed would still offer much greater obstruction to the descent of ice and hence, other things being equal, the new bridge would flood a greater area along the banks. For these reasons the Locks and Canals company, through Mr. Mills, gives the city this warning:

"In revealing the difficulties and the perils which would be involved in the construction of this bridge as planned, the proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river are not to be regarded as assenting in any respect to the construction of the proposed bridge. The proprietors must hold themselves in readiness to assert and to protect their rights, and in pointing out the obvious difficulties which the present plans present, and the perils to the citizens which would result from its adoption, they are not to be held as assuming any responsibility or as having waived any rights in the premises."

In that notification lies the possibility of future suits by this company against the city, while the reasons on which this protest is based offer ground also to other abutters to complain if the city builds a bridge that leaves their property more exposed to damage by freshets than it has been from the old bridge.

The municipal council has an offer of $5000 from the street railway company on condition that the plans shall be approved by the bridge engineering experts of the J. R. Worcester company of Boston.

As soon as that offer was made the municipal council should have submitted the plans to the company in question for approval in order to receive the $5000 offered. Failure to do so shows that the council has not much faith in the plans tentatively approved. It is the imperative duty of the council to comply with the stated stipulation and secure the $5000 to aid in meeting the cost of the bridge. Is the municipal council so tied up to the Springfield concern as to openly ignore the city's interests in this respect?

The approval of the Worcester experts would be a further guarantee of giving the city a thoroughly good bridge, something that is much more desirable and much more for the city's benefit than that any kind of a bridge shall be thrown together hurriedly in order that certain officials can make political capital out of it in the fall. A bridge built for campaign purposes is not likely to be much good for any other purpose.

At present the muddle in which the matter is involved and the unbusiness-like methods pursued cannot fail to disgust the public and lead to retribution at the first opportunity—unless the city council retrace its steps on the bridge question, have the plans approved by the Locks and Canals company, the Street Railway company and the other concerns which under the law must be consulted before any bridge can be built.

The approval of Prof. Swain now awaited will not take into account any of the objections raised by the Locks and Canals company nor the extent to which the new bridge would obstruct the water or resist an ice gorge.

These are a few of the fundamental objections to the methods by which the municipal council set out to construct a new bridge. They would all have been obviated at the start had plans been prepared and bids called for in the regular way. Thus all the loose tails such as the turning over the lumber purchased by the city to the supervising engineer would have been avoided. Why not pay the engineer entirely in cash rather than part in cash and part in lumber?

Engineer Denman is not the party to be criticized. It is his business to secure all the bridge jobs he can get; but the manner in which the city council has turned the whole problem over to this gentleman has barred fair competition which in such a case is the chief guarantee of getting the best possible bridge for the lowest possible price. Under the proposed arrangement the city may get a very poor bridge at a cost far exceeding that of the best. Is that business or is it a betrayal of the interests of the city in view of the fact that we want a bridge that will meet all requirements and withal stand for generations?

CHOLERA INFANTUM DANGER

With the approach of the hot weather, we may expect the usual appearance of cholera infantum with the resultant increase in the death rate. The milk station conducted by the Lowell Guild has done a great deal to reduce the infant mortality in hot weather. This has been brought about by the distribution of modified milk and by instructing mothers in how to protect the little ones against hot weather diseases.

The milk supply at the present time is much better than it was in past years but the very best milk will spoil if it is not kept cool. This is where some families make fatal mistakes. Milk that has changed as a result of the heat will upset the stomach of the strongest baby and this is often the cause of illness that is followed by cholera infantum. It is hard to convince some parents that a single mistake of this kind in hot weather may cause the death of a child, yet physicians in the course of their practice find frequent proofs that such is the fact.

At the present time there is no real excuse for allowing a sick baby to go without proper attention or treatment. If the mother cannot prepare the proper food, she can secure valuable assistance at the milk station; but it will not do to wheel a baby through the streets in hot weather as this would increase its illness. In such cases the nurses of the Lowell Guild call to see the baby and give such directions as they may deem necessary for its proper treatment.

One of the most common causes of sickness among young children is the leaving them in the care of older children who either do not look after them properly or know not how. Some mothers who have to work leave young children at home in this way when it would be much better to send them to the Day Nursery. Through all the agencies that work together for the protection of young children, the ravages of cholera infantum have been happily checked in recent years; but there is still room for further progress in this direction.

Unfortunately there are many mothers in our city who do not know anything about the Milk Station at 17 Dutton street and they even hesitate a long time before calling a doctor when baby gets sick. As a rule the children of such mothers are physically strong and can endure treatment that would promptly prove fatal to most others. The child in such cases is like the wild flower that can withstand the chilling blasts under which the hot house product would quickly wither and die.

END OF THE WAR

Those who have been hoping to see the end of the war this fall have revised their opinions. The present outlook indicates that the struggle may be much longer than was at first expected.

It is now dawning upon the rest of the world that Germany was preparing for just such a conflict for the last twenty-five years, that she has every adult subject a trained soldier, that her military system is the most perfect ever known. She has revolutionized all the old methods of warfare. The battleship, like the cavalry regiment, is ruled out of the contest while the submarine and the aeroplane are new agencies that do terrible execution. But as to the end of the war, there is absolutely no prospect of peace in less than another year. If the allies open up the Dardanelles and take Constantinople there would then be an opportunity to join hands with Russia so as to supply her with the needed munitions of war. That would be the first real step towards the defeat of Germany and the allies will not consent to make peace unless overrun by the enemy until they have brought Germany to her knees. From the present outlook, it will take a long time to bring about such a reversal. England is only beginning to wake up; France is fighting gallantly and to the full extent of her power. Should the Austro-German forces be transferred from the eastern front to the west, there will be some terrible fighting.

A MEDICINE CHEST FOR 25c

In this chest you have an excellent remedy for Toothache, Rheumatism, Sprains, Stiff Neck, Backache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and for most emergencies. One 25c bottle of Sloan's Liniment does it all—this because these ailments are symptoms, not diseases, and are caused by congestion and inflammation. If you doubt, ask those who use Sloan's Liniment, or better still, buy a 25c bottle and prove it. All Druggists.

tunity to join hands with Russia so as to supply her with the needed munitions of war. That would be the first real step towards the defeat of Germany and the allies will not consent to make peace unless overrun by the enemy until they have brought Germany to her knees. From the present outlook, it will take a long time to bring about such a reversal. England is only beginning to wake up; France is fighting gallantly and to the full extent of her power. Should the Austro-German forces be transferred from the eastern front to the west, there will be some terrible fighting.

The drive would be for Dunkirk and Calais and the best efforts of England and France would be required to stop its progress. The worst of the war has yet to come. There will be no termination until one side is completely beaten so that it is useless to make predictions.

There is this to be said, however, in regard to the present situation among the belligerents, that Russia is not out of the fight by any means and that she will come back heavily on the Austro-German forces, making their campaign towards Warsaw but a useless sacrifice of time, ammunition, money and men.

TOO MANY LOAFERS

There is a judge in Charlestown, Sullivan by name, who says there are too many loafers in the streets. Judge Sullivan is right. He has promised that if loafers are brought before him that he will do what he can to discourage them and their fellows from their abuse of their privilege. But the trouble is that the very men whom he wants to reach would probably appear in their cases, if faced with the prospect of a sentence in the municipal courts. It is not an easy problem to get rid of the street loafers. We have men in Lowell who boast that they have never worked and never will and these men are plentiful today as ever. To pass a hard and fast law, allowing the police to arrest any two men who stopped on the sidewalk for conversation would be a plain injustice. The chief trouble is that what the ordinary citizen does in a quiet and peaceful fashion, the street loafer does in an offensive and indecent fashion. The loafer who makes it his business to insult women and children on the streets is cautious and never allows himself to be caught by the police in the very act and the trouble is to reach him. The police, however, can do a great deal in discouraging the street loafer. The local police know the young men who have never been accused of working and if this gang of sick-soaked, tight-trousered and dandy appearing rowdies are allowed to occupy street corners for hours at a time the police are to blame.

HOLT'S SUICIDE

Very few will regret the suicide of Frank Holt, alias Professor Muenster, the Cambridge wife murderer, the would-be assassin of J. P. Morgan and the dynamite who blew up a part of the capital at Washington. Judging from his record Muenster was a thoroughly dangerous man even before he committed any of the recent crimes and the fact that he was numbered with the faculty of a great university shows that education alone is not a guarantee of character.

By ending his life Holt relieved the state of the unpleasant duty of bringing him to trial for his crimes. The German element in this country should take steps to prevent outrages of this kind by cranks who become crazed and go out to kill somebody whom they deem indirectly responsible for aiding the allies.

Of Holt the best thing that can be said is good riddance.

THE THAW'S

It is to be hoped that Evelyn Thaw will not be brought into court to testify either for or against her husband. The public is sick of Evelyn and her escapades. The general belief among sensible people is that Thaw should be set free. If any mistake were made in this case it was when he escaped the electric chair on the insanity plea. As that evil cannot be undone it is just as well to let him go. But for his

THE BOYS OF THE EIGHTH

The boys of the Eighth regiment who camped here at Shedd park are certainly a credit to the Massachusetts militia. After all the hardships they endured on the four days before arriving here they showed up splendidly. They are an aggregation of which the state may well feel proud. In paying them this compliment we are not disparaging in the slightest degree the splendid discipline and military training of the Lowell companies.

MIDWAY REVENUE

Perhaps Supt. Kernan of the park department deserves congratulations for having extended the midway beyond the limits to which it had formerly attained. The income from the sale of lots if applied to the park department would be a considerable help in developing the system and lessening the expense to the city. The appropriation for this department is usually so small that an addition of $3000 would always be welcomed.

THE BOMB FIEND

This placing bombs on ships is a species of cowardly warfare that must be stopped. The man found with bombs in his possession should be punished to the extent of the law. He is a menace to the nation in which he lives.

THE DIFFERENCE

If the labor unions would attempt in Germany what they have been doing for some time in England, the leaders would be shot. That is one point of difference between a democratic and a militarist government.

SEEN AND HEARD

Lowell jitneys are giving transfers in the shape of clothes pins, good as any line. Imported from Lawrence.

Closing city hall to the public at large while the parade was in motion and the rain falling, and parking the sidewalks about city hall, will not prove a very good example for the present administration.

Among those who stood in the teaming rain while the parade went by on Monday was a blind man. He was standing opposite St. Anne's church, unable to see yet capable of enjoying what was going on about him.

Clothes may not make the man, but the coat may be a great help to a dog. A man in Centralville has an Alsatian, and as Jim Thompson would say, he sure is some bear cat in a pickup. He had established absolute supremacy in the dog world of his neighborhood by whipping every other dog within a radius of a mile or more. He strutted the district like a king. Then his master, on one of the few warm days last month, dropped his coat. Now none of the other dogs know him, and he has to whip every dog over again to regain his supremacy. At last accounts he was making good progress.

HER WAY OF THINKING

I heard this amazing bit of cynicism, through a charity worker. She had then to call on a woman whose husband was addicted to drink, and was, as tactfully as she could, stating her views on the liquor question. In a pause in the conversation the wife exclaimed: "Well, there's one good thing about my husband's drinking. He's away from home so much, on a spree or in jail, that I have for myself practically all the money I earn washing and ironing."

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

It is sometimes hard to make other persons understand a question which seems perfectly plain to oneself. Along this line this story was told the other evening in the Dutch room.

"A gentleman while taking a morning walk down a country lane met a boy driving some pigs to market."

"Who do these fine pigs belong to?" asked the gentleman.

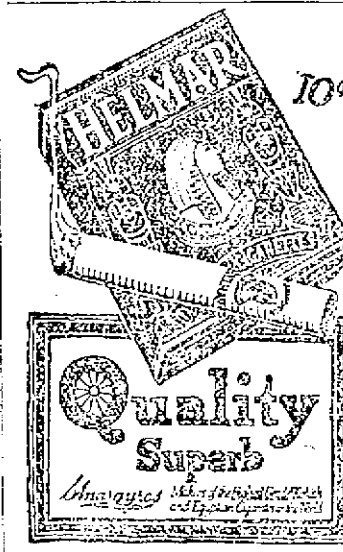

"Well," said the lad, "they belong to that their big saw."

"No, my boy," said the gentleman; "I mean who is the master of them?"

"Well," replied the lad, "that their little un; 'e's a beggar fer fighting."

NOT IN LOWELL

Do we of the suburban cities sometimes get fooled by our fire alarms? Out in Cambridge sometimes one of the enormous whistles, which are a leading part of the sounding of alarms seems to "run amuck" and toot such lengthy notes that one can hardly count the number of whistles. Once or twice it has refused to count the strokes and substituted a prolonged blare of its own, which ran the separate toots together. But a far more wonderful manifestation of the possible tricks which a fire alarm system can play was experienced in Brighton. The fire alarm there sounded several rounds shortly after midnight, and an apparent "all-out" signal at about 4 a. m. Many residents thought this indicated that a fire of considerable proportions had been going on during the "wee wee" hours, but they were mistaken. It seems. As far as electricians were able to discover, there was absolutely no cause for the alarms.

THE SHY CATAPILLAR

The caterpillar, though a sociable creature, tries to keep out of everybody's way. Some species hide on the under surface of leaves, others on the stems or blades of grass, while some hide as food; others, again, build little nests for concealment or lie snugly hidden between the curled edges of leaves, which they draw close together until the opposite edges meet. The caterpillar is a sociable creature in his own family. He knows that there is safety in numbers, and you will find whole companies feeding side by side while keeping a sharp lookout for their bird enemies, but when a caterpillar is by himself he scarcely dares to move for fear of attracting attention. Even when he is obliged to change his skin he doesn't venture to leave his old coat lying around. The moment that he takes it off he eats it. The caterpillars that live in companies shed their skins boldly. Only the poor solitary fellows feel forced to swallow their old clothes.—London Mail.

JOHN

By Mary Garrigan Barry
There's nothing quite so sweet to lip
As "John, I love you, dear!"
My little elfin, will of the wisp,
On this day came through the fleecy mist.
And brushed o'er my lips his blithely bright kiss.
You dear!

The fragrance of heaven is round you still.
My dreamy little son!

Like a violet hid on the edge of a rill,
Your little silent soul is hid.
Awaiting the sign of his holy will.
Little Son!

Never a child, but a thinker deep,
The dependable one—My John,
I watch for the subtle smile that peeps,
The understanding that ever leaps
To the soft brown eyes where the shadows creep.
My John!

A mystic something pervades your soul.
A nature so fine, sweetheart,
Like the gentle incense of angels' psalms.

When he dropped you down that day to my arms,
And you clasped my heart in your two wee palms,
Sweetheart!

Today is your birthday—child of my soul,
My reincarnation in you.

May mother's love lead you to some shining goal,
And it will pass you through it love is the toll.

For in heaven or here my heart is enrolled

ANOTHER WAR PHASE

In consequence of the war the vital statistics as reported in London show a considerable decrease in the birth rate in that city and a marked increase in infant mortality. There are said to be 500 less babies born each week than before hostilities started while the number of infants dying are said to have increased weekly to normal times. The reasons for this are not difficult to conjecture.—Fall River Globe.

EFFICIENCY

Mechanical efficiency is not an end. It is a means. A philosophy that is based upon the idea that mere mental human happiness or even well being is a philosophy founded upon a delusion. Efficiency in the industries should operate to increase the happiness of artisans engaged in industrial pursuits. If workmen produce two pairs of shoes where they before produced only one, that extra pair of shoes should mean more money, more art, more schooling for the children, more pleasure, more comfort, more necessities of life.—Johnstown Democrat.

WHY IS IT?

Although Col. Roosevelt will be in Washington at the time of the State convention of Progressives in Seattle, he has positively refused to attend the convention and deliver an address. Instead he will pass through Seattle without stopping. Time was when nothing short of a miracle or a calamity could keep the Colonel away from a Progressive convention. But that time has passed.—Springfield Union.

WHAT BRITAIN NEEDS

The radical difference between the mental traits of the Germans and the British is coming out in the national attitudes toward the war. Great Britain has not yet got down to serious business, as France has, but the workmen are quarreling about their private status and the press is critical and there is not that dead-in-the-ear sentiment which is characteristic of Germany. We live a rapid pace, we Americans, and some of us cannot stand up under the strain as well as others and these weaker vessels must be watched.—Meriden Journal.

THE LESSON

Read the Declaration of Independence yet again and realize that to be patriotic is worthy of that great desire you must do more thinking and less exploding. Less looking back with boasts to 1776 than looking forward to 1918 with intelligent, serious, resolute responsibility.—Lowell Sun.

ALL ARE BROTHERS

In a way we are all our brothers' keepers and each of us is responsible to an extent for all those with whom we come in contact. We can exert mighty impulses, we can caution, restrain and we can see that those persons, who we know are dangerous, are placed so that they cannot do harm. We live a rapid pace, we Americans, and some of us cannot stand up under the strain as well as others and these weaker vessels must be watched.—Meriden Journal.

and courts of New York, the killing of pedestrians by automobiles is increasing out of proportion to the growth of population or to the increase of automobile traffic. In the first six months of this year these fatalities increased from 153 in the same period of 1914 to 241. This increase is thoroughly bad. Nobody seems to know how to deal with the evil. More traffic squad men are urged. More cars in licensing, more severity on the part of the courts. No one thing will cure the evil. Greater caution on the part of pedestrians is one desideratum.—Fall River News.

EXCELLENT ADVICE

That is excellent advice which Admiral von Tuppel of Germany gives his compatriots concerning the danger of a breach with the United States, but it is quite remarkable that he should have had the courage and should have been permitted to be so open and frank in his expression of the serious nature of the present situation. German officers and citizens are not prone to express so freely and so fully their views concerning the government, even in times of peace, and just now it is quite unexpected that this man should be allowed to assume a position that might easily be interpreted as a criticism of the government, at least so far as the delay in deciding what attitude to take toward this nation and its demands is concerned.—Providence Tribune.

PRINCETON'S EXPERIMENT

There are two opinions in and around Princeton university about the abolition of "compulsory chapel," and the lively curiosity as to how its going to work out. The change of the hour for morning prayers from 8.15 to 8.45, with the stirring music promised, and the novelty of the five-minute talks, ought to "help."—Hartford Courant.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

The president's speech to the Pan-Americans made it clear that the ship purchase bill remains in his program. It is equally clear that the country is no better disposed toward Germany, desirable, and there are various means of accomplishing this end. Postal subsidies or out-and-out subsidies are the devices most in favor with other maritime nations. They involve less risk and produce better results than government ownership can. The country would prefer to give aid to shipping along safe, familiar lines.—Newburyport Herald.

LOWELL'S NEW MANAGER

Scout Chas. S. Kelchener, Noted Baseball Expert, Takes Full Charge of Team

Patience ceased to be a virtue with Owner Andrew F. Roach of the Lowell baseball team a few days ago and he decided to rejuvenate the team.

At the start-off he made a ten-strike by securing the service of Charles S. Kelchener, one of the best known baseball experts and developers of baseball players in the country to come here and take full management of the Lowell team.

Mr. Kelchener arrived in Lowell this morning and will take charge tomorrow. Already Mr. Kelchener is familiar with the personnel and to a large extent the strong points and weaknesses of the players on the home team for as scout for the St. Louis team he has made frequent visits to Spalding park and knew many of the members of the team before they ever came to Lowell.

The new manager takes full charge of the team with the exception of the financial end. That is to say, his word will be law on the diamond. He is to have the power to fire, suspend or release players according to his own judgment without any interference from anyone, and from his record and experience he is capable of so doing.

Charles S. Kelchener has been a familiar name in baseball for many years. He is a catcher and an outfielder, has organized teams and leagues and has captained, managed and acted as scout, always with success. He is of German descent and during the winter months is a college professor at Albright college, a well known institution of learning at Myerstown, Penn., where he teaches history and French and has charge of the college athletics. During his vacations he has appeared on the diamond. He is a graduate of Lafayette college of Pennsylvania and played on that college team for three years.

In 1908 he organized the Tri-State league and the Lebanon club of that league. When in 1905 the Lebanon team was sold to Wilmington, Del. he managed the team for Wilmington, playing in the outfield. In 1906 he managed the Milton, Pa., independent team and in 1907 was with the Kane, Pa. team in the Interstate league. While here he brought out Jake Danhart, Coveleski and Bert Daniels, and previously while at Lebanon he discovered Herbie Moran. In 1907 Mr. Kelchener went to the Wildwood, N. J. team taking Coveleski with him and from there Philadelphia took Coveleski. In 1908 he played with Bridgeport, N. J. and here brought out Belanti, the Indian, afterward with Cincinnati. In 1909 he was captain of the Harrisburg, Pa. team in the Tri-State league and here gave Eddie Miller his start. He also had Buck Weaver at this time and Jay Martin, the third baseman who has accompanied him to Lowell. The following year he introduced Bob Shawkey to big league ball and trying supervision could neutralize it strictly preserved.

The wireless station at Tuckerton, N. J., was taken over last September by the government. Both stations now are able to communicate direct with Germany, but there has been from the start a restriction prohibiting the sending of cipher messages unless code books were deposited with the naval censors. The same rule will be continued.

Originally, the object of the censorship was to prevent communication with belligerent ships at sea because it was held that such communication was a violation of the principle of international law which forbids the use of neutral territory as a base of military operations. Since then, however, as there have been practically no German ships on the Atlantic, the censorship has been continued. It is said in naval quarters because of a conviction that German submarines were able to receive wireless messages sent from Sayville. High naval officers have told Secretary Daniels that while they have no evidence that such communication has been maintained by the navy, they know definitely whether the station was in touch with German submarines unless the navy's own operators were in charge of the plant.

That is understood to be one of the controlling reasons among others for the action of Secretary Daniels today.

The executive order issued by President Wilson, Aug. 5, 1914, said: "Radio stations within the jurisdiction of the United States were prohibited from transmitting or receiving, for delivery, messages of an unauthorized nature and in from any way rendering any one of the belligerents any unauthorized service, and it is desirable to take precautions to insure the enforcement of said order insofar as it relates to the transmission of code and cipher messages by high powered stations capable of trans-Atlantic communication."

Metz, president, and Dr. Karl G. Frank, secretary and treasurer, was owned by the Telefunken Co. of Germany, which is itself owned by the Siemens & Halske Co. and the Allgemeine Elektrizitäts Gesellschaft of Germany, and that practically all of the stock such as would permit Mr. Metz to be president of the Atlantic company was owned by German citizens.

Secretary Redfield's letter also revealed that the Sayville station is in communication with stations in Germany, which either are under control of German military authorities or the Imperial German postoffice, one having control of military features and the other of the commercial business.

It also pointed out that the Marconi Wireless Co. is not operating its trans-Atlantic station in connection with the British stations, because they are controlled by the British government, and it was deemed unneutral to operate them from this country.

Secretary Redfield yesterday wrote to the Atlantic Communication Co., denying either a permanent or temporary license to the new plant at Sayville and today he forwarded to the company an announcement that the navy would immediately take over the station and operate it for commercial purposes.

The station for which license was asked was regarded by the department as entirely new since the beginning of the war and not holding to be the same as the old sending station, which had been operating with new high power, German-made apparatus.

The department of commerce expressed to Secretary Lansing the opinion that it was imperative to maintain communication with Germany and Austria, that the station should not be closed altogether and suggested that as a matter of equity to all it be taken over by the navy.

"This action simply means," said Secretary Redfield, "that the Sayville station is still open for every rightful purpose."

During investigation of the Sayville station several complaints referred to the sailing of ships, which might be endangered in the war zone.

It "ordered that one or more" of the high powered radio stations mentioned be taken over by the government and controlled by it to the exclusion of any other control or use for the purpose of carrying on communication with land stations in Europe, including code and cipher messages.

The enforcement of the order was delegated to the secretary of the navy and the Tuckerton station was taken over on Sept. 2, 1914, and has since been operated by the government.

State department officials said no complaint regarding the neutrality of the Sayville station had been received officially from the British government. They said that the state department merely had been consulted by Secretary Redfield in reaching his determination to refer to issue a license. Secretary Lansing recommended that the United States take over the Sayville station, said investigation had shown that the new sending station for which license was asked had all been erected since the beginning of the war, with apparatus made in Germany; that the company was entirely German owned, operating with stations in Germany under government control, and that Prof. J. Zeppenfeld, a captain of marines of the German navy and wireless expert, had been assigned by the German government to conduct experiments there. To grant a license to such a station, Secretary Redfield said, the department concluded would be an unneutral act.

FUNERALS

BORDEN—The funeral of Mrs. Julia E. Borden was held yesterday afternoon. The service was held at the home of Undertakers George W. Healey, 79 Branch street. Funeral services were held at the chapel in the Green cemetery at Carlisle. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ellis, pastor of the Baptist church at Chathamford Centre, with Rev. Herbert V. Walker, pastor of the Second Congregational church at Peabody, offering a prayer at the grave. Mr. Frederick Robbins presided at the funeral. He was the son of the deceased. Messrs. William S. Alvah, H. Clarence G. and Levi H. Nickles, burial was in the family lot in the Green cemetery at Carlisle.

STAGNONI—The funeral of Lodovico Michele Stagnoni took place yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents, 5 Chapel place. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery in charge of Undertakers M. H. McDonough and Sons.

HEAPS—The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Heaps took place this morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late home, 126 Hampshire street, and was largely attended. MRS. ASTOR WEIGHS 153

BORROWS PENNY FROM SISTER, KATHERINE FORCE, TO FIND OUT

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 8.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Force, drove to the wharf at Bar Harbor on Wednesday to meet her sister, Katherine Force, who arrived on the New York train. Mrs. Astor greeted her sister with a kiss, saying at the same time, "Oh, Katherine, have you a penny?"

Miss Force nearly fainted and with a gasp produced the desired penny from her handbag and passed it over to Mrs. Astor.

The borrowed penny once in her possession Mrs. Astor ran across the wharf like a child, stopped before a penny weighing machine, stepped on to the scales, and deliberately spent her penny.

As the needle on the scale moved slowly upward Mrs. Astor eyed it with no little concern until it stopped on the 153-pound mark, then with a hasty glance over her shoulder she gave a sign of either relief or despair, stepped hastily off the scale and ran to join her mother and sister, who were going off up the wharf.

BOB BRECKENRIDGE DEAD

POPULAR NEWSPAPER PHOTOGRAPHER DIED AT RUTLAND THIS MORNING

Robert B. Breckenridge died at Rutland, Mass., this morning after an illness of several weeks. He was almost 29 years of age.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Breckenridge of 131 Jewett street, and was well known in all parts of the city and in the surrounding towns as the photographer for the Courier-Citizen. He is survived by his parents and by his sister, Miss Margaret K. Breckenridge, and his younger brother, Jas. W. Breckenridge. He had taken a personal interest in the welfare of the First Baptist church, where he was a constant attendant.

For eight years he had been employed in the art department of the Courier-Citizen and for two years prior to that he was connected with the business office of the company. He perfected himself in the art of making the half tone plates, but found a niche for himself as photographer for the company.

In all these years he had followed all sorts of opportunities for making photographs, going long distances at times to get a picture of interest to Lowell readers. He was a welcome visitor at Lowell gatherings where he was a representative of the newspaper, and counted among his friends many in this way people in all walks of life in the city. In the office he firmly intrenched himself in the affections of his associates by his unfailing courtesy.

Only his business associates and his intimate friends were aware of the fact that he had been threatened with disease for several months. He had favored himself in his work, knowing this fact, and had spent practically all of his leisure time in the open air. Several weeks ago he was given leave of absence for the summer in the hope that his health might be fully restored, but an unexpected change in his condition very recently had necessitated his going to Rutland for special treatment. There seemed every reasonable hope of his recovery when, but the disease took a turn for the worse on Wednesday, and his parents barely reached his bedside before his death.

His body was brought home to Lowell this afternoon by Undertaker Geo. W. Healey.

TAKEN ILL AT ANDOVER

CAPTAIN WILLIAM C. JONES OF CO. I, EIGHTH INFANTRY, AFFECTED WITH SHOCK

LYNN, July 8.—Capt. William C. Jones of Co. I, Eighth Infantry, is ill at his home as the result of an attack of apoplexy, accompanied by a shock in which the right side of his face is slightly paralyzed. Captain Jones was with his company at Andover and suffered the attack about 6 o'clock Sunday morning. It seems that he was about to put on his puttee leggings and was stopping over to them when he was suddenly taken ill. A number of surgeons were with the regiment during the maneuvers, so medical aid was close at hand. It was found that he had suffered a shock on his right side and that his face was partly paralyzed. Although at no time was he unconscious, he had difficulty in talking. The surgeons present examined him and decided that he should be removed to his home at Swampscott. He was taken there Sunday in an auto. At his home last evening he was resting comfortably and members of his family think he will come out of the attack all right. He was able to converse a little Monday afternoon and evening.

Previous to going to camp with the regiment last week, Captain Jones had been examined by surgeons at the state house, and it was doubtful up to the last moment whether he would accompany the regiment this year. Just before leaving Lynn, Captain Jones received word to go with the company, but it seems that his condition was not such as to encourage him. However, he stuck to his company until Sunday morning, when he was stricken.

Captain Jones has seen considerable service, having been a member of the militia in New York and in Chicago. He was in the same regiment with former President Roosevelt in New York state and met Mr. Roosevelt on many occasions. Captain Jones was a charter member of the present Co. I, Eighth Infantry, and enlisted in 1901. He was elected first lieutenant in 1903, was elected captain of Co. I and has served as such ever since. He has served almost 15 years as a commissioned officer, and was to retire as a major early in 1915. Just what will be done now that he has been taken ill is not known.

HAD GOOD COURAGE

LAWRENCE MAN HAD LONG HIKE AFTER SEVERING ARTERY IN LEG

LAWRENCE, July 8.—John Ford of 145 Franklin street with an artery severed in his left foot walked from a point in the woods at his farm in Eastem, N. H., Tuesday afternoon to a carriage which was left by the roadside and then rode to the office of Dr. C. J. Burgess at 37 Whitman street in this city where he collapsed. He met with the accident when he was chopping down a tree. The axe glanced from the trunk of the tree striking him on the instep of his left foot and severed the artery. Though in agonizing pain Mr. Ford had the presence of mind of closing up the artery and then, knowing that medical aid could not be had there, he managed to reach his wagon and drive to this city. The distance from the farm to where the accident occurred is about a half mile and from the farm to this city about three miles and it surely must have taken at least three quarters of an hour to reach the physician's office. Hence it must be considered remarkable how he was able to retain his strength and his faculties as he did. His injury was immediately attended to by Dr. Burgess and he was taken home in the ambulance, where it was stated Wednesday morning that unless unforeseen complications arise he will recover although it will be a long time before he will be able to be about.

Mr. Ford is the father of Attorney W. C. and E. J. Ford.

ACCEPTS THE MONEY NOW

At First Lynn Man Refused to Touch $2308 Bequeathed Him By His Brother

DEDHAM, July 8.—An unusual case of a discredited (for a time) inheritance came to light in superior court here yesterday. By the terms of the will of his brother Michael McGrady, Thomas McGrady of Lynn was to receive the sum of $2308.

On May, 1913, William McGrady, another brother, who was also executor of the will, died. He left a son, John V. McGrady, and James Newhall of Boston. However, went to the home of Thomas McGrady at Lynn and informed him of the contents of the will. Despite the efforts of Atty. Corcoran, Thomas refused to accept or to recognize the bequest or the conditions of the will. He declared that Michael McGrady had not treated him fairly.

The money was deposited in the Dedham Institute for Savings, where it would have reverted to the state after 20 years. Three days later, however, Thomas McGrady came to the bank and made application for the money. The application was allowed yesterday.

OVER 50 PERSONS PERISHED IN WIND AND RAIN STORM

According to figures compiled early today, more than 50 persons were killed and several score injured by the wind and rain storm which extended from Nebraska to Ohio, last night.

The property damage is estimated at several millions of dollars. The greatest loss of life occurred in Cincinnati and vicinity where 35 persons are known to be dead and 15 missing. 15 of the dead there being dockhands who were drowned by the capsizing of the towboat Convey on the Ohio river.

Tornado in Missouri In eastern Missouri the storm assumed the proportions of a tornado, demolishing 162 blocks in St. Charles. St. Peters, a town of 300 inhabitants, and Gilmore, a village of 100, were almost wiped out. In St. Charles possibly three persons met death. In St. Peters there was no loss of life, while in Gilmore only one person was killed. In Lincoln and Custer counties, Nebraska, wind and hail caused heavy damage to crops.

Town Flooded In southern Illinois the storm was severe. At Mound City, the business part of the town was flooded. In central and southern Indiana three persons were killed and many injured. Telegraph and telephone service was demoralized, buildings were uprooted and crops damaged by the heavy wind and rain.

35 DEAD IN CINCINNATI

Most Devastating Storm in Several Decades Descended Upon That City Last Night

CINCINNATI, O., July 8.—The most devastating storm that has visited this city in several decades descended about 8:30 o'clock last night, raged for half an hour, took a toll of lives estimated as close to 35, and wrought property damage somewhere between half a million and a million dollars. Many Are Missing

As definite reports began to filter in today from the suburbs where telephone communication was slowly being established, the list of the missing, which at last report last night indicated between 15 and 20, was increasing.

Railroad Service Paralyzed Railroad service was partially paralyzed.

forcements brought up by Russia along the street of territory between the rivers Vistula and Bug, notably in the vicinity of Krasnik that the Austro-Hungarians for the moment have been forced to assume the defensive and to pause in their rush toward Lublin and the rail was running from that city to Warsaw.

How at Austrians

The sector on the eastern front where the Russians are making a stand is held almost exclusively by Austrians and observers here see in the Russian attack not only a desire to keep their line intact in this important part, but a deliberate blow at the Austrians who, according to the official reports, seem to be finding themselves in some difficulty.

Germans Move Toward West

The much discussed German offensive in the west has not yet developed, though reports of a big movement are going to that front are persistent. These forces must be new formations unless the great offensive on the east is to cease, for to withdraw troops from Poland and Galicia now would be to leave unfinished what Field Marshal von Mackensen set out to accomplish, unless the clearing of Galicia of Russians was the sole aim, and this is considered hardly probable.

Deny German Claim

The Berlin claim that the Germans have re-taken trenches near Ypres, Belgium, recently seized by the British, is not confirmed from British sources. At several points in France the Germans have been attacking violently but the only appreciable success reported by the French is in the St. Mihiel district. The French admit they have lost a strip of trenches near the river Meuse, but the German official statement more than doubles this distance.

In the Dardanelles

Letting the Turks attack with its resultant heavy loss and exhaustion has been the real role of the British operating against the Dardanelles. Official dispatches heretofore spoke of the fearlessness and valor of the Turks but Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton's report received yesterday said for the first time that the Turks were showing no disposition to attack.

ATTACK ON ITALIANS REPELLED WITH HEAVY LOSSES

ROME, July 7, via Paris, July 8, 2:45 a. m.—The official statement issued tonight at the headquarters of the Italian general staff was as follows:

"An attack against our position at Passo di Campo, in the Val d'Aosta, was repulsed with heavy loss.

"In Cadore our heavy artillery opened fire on the enemy's defensive works at Corte, in the upper valley of the Cansiglio. At La Tagliata and Treviso in Val Poiana, serious damage was done.

"In Gavia we repulsed attacks against our positions at Dasso, Gavia, Monte Scharitz and in the direction of Val Grande.

"Debates continue on the Carnic plateau where we are making slow but constant progress. Between July 4 and 7 we took 1400 prisoners.

"On the night of July 5 an Italian dirigible effectively bombarded the railroad junction, north of Udine (northeast of Trieste).

"Austrians dropped a number of bombs yesterday on the Austrian aviation field near Alsevo, east of Gorizia, causing fires and also on the railroad station at Nabresina. Our avia-lized, and wire communication with the outside world was confined to press service. The streets of the city were littered with fallen trees, signs, roofs of houses, and other wreckage that has been tossed there by the wind. Numerous church spires were blown down and the street car service was decidedly limited.

Houses Collapsed

From the other side of the Ohio river, in Newport, Covington, Port Thomas and Fort Mitchell, Ky., come reports of collapsed houses and the street car service entirely suspended. In the outlying districts of Cincinnati the property damage appears to be heavy, particularly in the residential sections of CHIN, Avondale and College Hill.

With one exception, that of five buildings at Sixth and Mount streets, no one locally seemed to have suffered more than the other. According to reports this morning, however, it has been found that there are not many buildings in the city that have not suffered to some extent.

Race Horses in Wreck

It was ascertained today that a special train on the Pennsylvania, carrying race horses from the meeting at Latonia recently ended, to the eastern tracks was wrecked at Terrace Park, a short distance from this city. Nineteen of what are considered the best horses that raced at the Latonia met yesterday, show that seven persons were killed and several score injured and that three are missing. The damage to buildings and crops is estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000. One of the remarkable features of the tornado was the small number of deaths considering the nature of the property damage.

SWEPT BY TORNADO

Reports Early Today From Eastern Missouri Show That Seven Persons Were Killed

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 8.—Reports early today from eastern Missouri, which was swept by a tornado late yesterday, show that seven persons were killed and several score injured and that three are missing. The damage to buildings and crops is estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000. One of the remarkable features of the tornado was the small number of deaths considering the nature of the property damage.

PLUNDER HIDDEN IN GRASS

MEDFORD, July 8.—A burlap bag filled with brass pipe, tubing, valves and engine fittings, all weighing several hundred pounds and valued at more than $50, was found in the tall grass off the Wellington marsh near Middlesex avenue and the Parkway yesterday afternoon, through the watchfulness of Patrolman William J. Gelling.

The thieves are believed to be a couple of men who were noticed by the officer about the spot. The property will be held for a claimant.

INFANT'S LIFE REVIVED

New-Born Babe at Gloucester Kept Alive Two Hours by Lungmaster, But Finally Succumbs

GLOUCESTER, July 8.—A case of interest to the medical fraternity occurred at the Addison Gilbert hospital. A child born to a Mrs. Mason apparently died at birth. Dr. Rowley, the attending physician, went to the police station for the lungmaster, by means of which the child was revived, so that it cried for nearly two hours. At the end of that time, about 10:30, convulsions set in and the child died, efforts to revive it being useless.

HELD IN $3000 SUNK BY TORPEDO

Kilako Will Be Tried

In Superior Court for Attempted Murder

When the case of James Kilako, charged with assault with intent to kill his brother-in-law, James Dracoulakos, was called on continuance in police court this forenoon, Atty. D. J. Donahue, representing the defendant, waived the preliminary hearing in the local court. As a result, Judge Enright found probable cause and ordered Kilako held in $3000 for the next session of the grand jury. James P. Owens appeared for the prosecution.

The alleged assault occurred in a field in the rear of the Textile school on the night of June 15. Dracoulakos was found lying on the grass about an hour after the trouble and Kilako was arrested by Patrolman Whitworth early the next morning.

The question of reducing the bail was dismissed by the judge, and the case was called to testify as to the complainant's condition. The witness said that when Dracoulakos was taken to the hospital on the night of June 15, he was in a very dangerous condition with a serious bullet wound in his back and a cut on the side of the face. It is alleged that the injuries were caused by a 32 calibre revolver and a razor. He is now on the road to recovery, however, though the bullet is still in his lung.

The complaint appeared in court and seemed to be very weak from loss of blood. When called to testify, it was necessary to place a chair on the witness stand for him to sit on in order that the court might view his condition before fixing the amount of bail. After hearing both Messrs. Donahue and Owens, Judge Enright decided to allow the bail to remain at $3000.

Other Cases James H. McBride was adjudged guilty of being a common drunkard after Patrolmen Considine and Swanwick had testified that they had seen him under the influence of liquor nearly every day for three weeks. Complaints have also been made to the officers, they said, about the defendant's loitering around barrooms and buildings in the vicinity of Merrimack square. The case was continued until Saturday for sentence.

William J. Hunter, formerly of Everett, pleaded not guilty to being a vagrant. Officer Gookin of Chelmsford said that Hunter had been hanging around a barn in Chelmsford for three or four days and was arrested yesterday for throwing stones at passing automobiles. When asked where he slept nights, the prisoner said he walked nights in an attempt to get work for the daytime. His case, too, was continued until Saturday.

Officer "Assaulted" The case of Tony Silva, charged with drunkenness and assault upon an officer, which has been continued many times on account of the defendant's weak condition, was tried before Judge Enright today and occupied the greater part of the session. At 12:30 o'clock Judge Enright decided to continue the case until tomorrow, when the remainder of the evidence will be submitted.

The alleged assault occurred at Silva's house early in the morning of June 12, when Patrolman Jerome Cullen attempted to quiet a wedding celebration. The officer said that as a result of complaints made by a neighbor he went to Silva's house and requested that they stop the noise, especially the loud music. Twice more, said the officer, he was obliged to go to the house and upon the third time the trouble started. Witness said that Silva tore his, the officer's badge from his coat and fought for some time. Patrolman Drowett, who assisted his fellow officer, corroborated the testimony and a resident of the next house testified as to the noise made by the defendant and his guests.

Dr. J. B. Albert Johnston testified that he attended the defendant after he was released from the station and found three scalp wounds alleged to have been caused by Patrolman Cullen in making the arrest. The defendant was called to the witness stand and started to relate his story, but at 12:30 o'clock Judge Enright had the case continued until 16 o'clock tomorrow.

When Dennis Pendergast was called before the court on continuance for drunkenness, his wife appeared and informed Judge Enright that Dennis had been very delinquent during the past seven weeks about contributing to the support of his minor children. As a result a complaint of non-support was preferred against him. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the house of correction for four months.

Two of a quartet of drunken offenders were on parole from the state farm and hence they were held over until tomorrow morning. In the meantime state officers will return the prisoners to Bridgewater. Two second offenders were fined $5 each.

Lord Mersey Reports on

Sinking of Liner Falaba on March 28

LONDON, July 8, 12:25 p. m.—Giving judgment in the board of trade inquiry into the sinking of the African liner Falaba in St. George channel March 28, with the loss of 111 lives, Lord Mersey today found that the ship had been sunk by a torpedo from a German submarine; that the measures for saving life had been promptly carried out and that proper discipline had been maintained.

Lord Mersey added that the submarine made no effort to save life and probably could not do so without endangering itself.

Witnesses Mistaken Lord Mersey said he was satisfied that the witnesses who had described the life boats as being rotten were mistaken and that the damage sustained in the launching of some of the boats was not due to neglect on the part of the officers or crew.

Glance for the catastrophe, Lord Mersey said, must rest exclusively with the officers and men of the German submarine. The men in the rescuing boats were praised for their courage and kindness.

The allegations brought to the attention of Lord Mersey after the conclusion of the hearing that the Falaba had fired signals calling for assistance were found by him to be without foundation.

PARIS, July 8.—The Rome correspondent of the Havas News Agency sends the following:

"The Corriere Del Serra says that news has been received at the Vatican that Germany, as a result of the pope's intervention, has agreed to the release of Madame Carton de Wiart."

Madame de Wiart, who is the wife of the Belgian minister of justice, was sentenced recently to three months imprisonment for corresponding with her husband, according to news dispatches. The German authorities accused her of endangering the security of German troops. Later it was reported that she had been sent to Berlin, as a prisoner.

been very delinquent during the past seven weeks about contributing to the support of his minor children. As a result a complaint of non-support was preferred against him. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the house of correction for four months.

Two of a quartet of drunken offenders were on parole from the state farm and hence they were held over until tomorrow morning. In the meantime state officers will return the prisoners to Bridgewater. Two second offenders were fined $5 each.

Gov. Walsh and State Delegation Leave—Lowell Men in Party

BOSTON, July 8.—The delegation which is to represent the state at the Panama-Pacific exposition departed from Boston on the train leaving at 5.03 last evening from the South station.

It comprised Gov. Walsh and two of his military staff, Capt. William B. Stearns and Major William T. Casey; Senator John W. Hale; Mr. Montague, who took the place of Sen. Calvin Coolidge of the senate; Speaker Channing H. Cox of the house of representatives; Senator Redmond S. Fitzgerald of Boston; Senator Charles W. Edridge of Somerville; Representative Henry Kahn, Jr., of Lowell; Rep. John B. Hall of Great Barrington; Representative Frederick H. Locke of Worcester; Representative Edward F. McLaughlin of Boston and Sgt.-at-Arms Thomas F. Pedrick, all of whom are authorized by this year's legislature to make the trip at the expense of the commonwealth.

In addition to the official party were the following, who have reservations in the same special car, but who must pay their own way: State Treas. Chas. L. Burrill, Miss Ellen Mudge Burrill of Lynn, secretary to Sgt.-at-Arms Pedrick; Mrs. Elizabeth P. Kimball of Lynn, Miss Edna Kimball, Lynn; Michael J. Dwyer of Boston and his daughter, Miss Frances Tracey Dwyer; Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLaughlin of West Roxbury; John B. Pelham of Lowell; Kellon B. Miller of Pittsfield; Col. Charles L. Woodward of Wakefield; Charles A. Southworth, stenographer in the executive department, and Mrs. Southworth.

About 150 friends were at the station to see the party off. These included Maj. Thomas L. Walsh, the governor's military staff and others well known in political circles. Two little girls, Grace Price of 88 Brookline street and Josephine Collins of 65 Brookline street, brought to Representative McLaughlin a huge bouquet of red roses as an expression of goodwill from his constituents in the South End.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Edward P. Barry, accompanied by Chairman Michael A. O'Leary of the democratic state committee, came down to say goodbye to the governor and express their best wishes.

"I told the governor to have a good rest and to come back and run again," said Mr. Barry to the reporters. "I shall keep an eye on the situation while he is gone, and if I think the other side is getting too active I shall begin a campaign myself, not as a candidate for any nomination, but as a democrat. I shall discuss national issues and work solely for the party's interests and not those of any individual."

tains requirements not demanded in the old law, has made it necessary for the successful 120 to again come before the state board of dental examination.

The old law, under the provisions of which the examinations were advertised and held, did not provide for a demonstration in prosthetic dentistry.

Prosthetic dentistry, for the benefit of the layman, refers to mechanical work done in the laboratory, such as the making of crowns, etc.

As the attitude of the present state board of dental examiners revealed at committee hearings before this year's and previous legislatures, has been that they did not think such a demonstration necessary. It is not likely that those who "fumbled" in the recent examinations can expect much of a boost to their averages, even if they should show themselves prosthetically perfect.

On the other hand, should any of the successful applicants fail to prove their skill in prosthetics, they are not likely to have their averages reduced to any great extent. Until the board has decided what marks shall be given on the prosthetic demonstrations, the answer will not be known.

STEP UP LADIES

No Relief From High Car Steps for Another Year

Lowell women, with others, will be subjected to the discomfort of the high steps on street cars for another year as the result of the ruling of the public service commission recently, which gave the street railway companies another year in which to fulfill the requirements of the law which was to have become effective July 1 of this year. The request of the companies for more time was granted with the understanding that no further extension would be asked.

The law was passed a year ago after there had been a statewide protest against the height of the steps. Narrow skirts were in vogue at that time and the need of lower steps was unusually apparent, especially when the ladies boarded the cars. With the change in style this year, however, the need was not so apparent and when the street car companies brought forth figures to show what it would cost and why they would be unable to meet the requirements in time, the request was granted.

THIRTEEN YEAR OLD ANDOVER GIRL WAS DROWNED IN SHAW-SHEEN RIVER

LAWRENCE, July 8.—The body of little Helen Yelton, aged 13, who has been missing from her home on Andover road, Ballardvale, since Saturday afternoon, was found Tuesday morning on the banks of the Shaw-sheen near the Cross coal sheds, by Robert Allison who was out canoeing. It is reported that the girl was reminded by her mother for having drawn $5 from the school bank, and spent it in Lawrence, whereupon she left the house and wandered off.

The Andover police say the drowning was accidental.

PLUNGED INTO RIVER

AUTO HIT END OF BRIDGE AND FELL INTO RIVER — DRIVER REACHED BANK

PORTLAND, Me., July 8.—Sumner Smith of Bangor, an automobile agent, yesterday afternoon, while driving his car rapidly, in approaching the iron bridge over the Presumpscot at West Falmouth, left the road, went between two trees, hit the end of the bridge and plunged into the river.

Mr. Smith was thrown out, and managed to reach the bank at a point where it required something of an effort to scramble up and crossed a field to a house.

The news of the accident reached Portland and Sheriff William M. Tenth, hearing a squad of deputy sheriffs went to West Falmouth and sent the half-drowned man in. He was exhausted, but was not even slightly injured. His valuable automobile is under 15 feet of water and an attempt will be made in the morning to take it out.

Mr. Smith said last evening that the accident was caused by his trying to avoid a collision with another car. He was forced from the road and was unable to get back. The other car passed safely.

OPENING OF PLAYGROUNDS

FULL-TIME PLAYGROUNDS OPENED YESTERDAY MORNING AND HALF-DAY GROUNDS IN AFTERNOON

The four full-time playgrounds opened yesterday, but there was very little doing on the South common owing to the fact that the debris and refuse from the midway had not been cleared away. The full-time playgrounds include the North and South commons, Aiken street and Paige street. The greater part of the forenoon was spent in getting the apparatus in position. In the afternoon, yesterday, the four half-day playgrounds were opened. These are the Lakeview street and Franklin and Fayette street schools, and the Textile school grounds.

Miss Katherine M. Tobin, head supervisor for the girls' department, has a schedule of hours for the different play periods, the baths and the industrial work, which will go into effect Monday, after the attendance becomes normal and material for the industrial work has been provided. It is planned to have this schedule carried out so far as possible in unison, on each of the playgrounds.

That the children were eager for the baths to be opened was demonstrated Tuesday afternoon when many of them, carrying towels and clean clothes, appeared at the doors and were terribly disappointed to learn that the baths would not open until the following day.

SELLING CITY LAND

QUEER STATE OF AFFAIRS IN MAYOR MURPHY'S IDEAL CITY—DEEDS WERE WORTHLESS

SPRINGFIELD, July 8.—That certain individuals have been selling city land to persons who purchased in good faith, and that supposedly bona fide deeds were passed in the transactions, was the statement made by Mayor Stacy last night. He declares that no less than 30 lots belonging to the city have been thus sold. He declined to make public the names of the sellers or the location of the lots in question.

He says the land sold adjoins property owned by these individuals, and that they knowingly allowed the purchasers to suppose that they were purchasing property with a clear title. He is investigating the transactions and will make details public within a few days. The deeds, of course, are worthless.

NO LICENSE TO DRUGGISTS

LAWRENCE, July 8.—The licensing board of Lawrence has placed the ban on druggist licenses. Druggists' licenses or licenses of the sixth class granted for the year 1914 expired April 30 of the present year and up to the present time the licensing commissioners have not taken any action looking toward favorable consideration of applications for renewals and it is further understood that no druggist licenses will be granted during the ensuing year.

Druggists are prohibited under the law to keep any intoxicating liquors upon their premises excepting those which have an internal revenue license which authorizes them to keep a limited quantity for medicinal purposes only.

REPUBLICAN POW WOW

AUTO PARADE WILL PRECEDE BIG OUTING AT BUNTING PARK ON SATURDAY

The republican city committee met last night at its headquarters on Central street and completed arrangements for its outing at Bunting park next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock sharp.

If the weather is fine it is expected that there will be over 3500 people present, as republicans from all over the state have been inquiring for tickets and the most direct way to get to Bunting park.

The outing primarily was started as a reception to Cong. John Jacob Rogers, and this has not been lost sight of by the committee in charge. A great reception is being arranged for the congressman before the sports start.

The whole list of state officials are expected to be present and as the outing is not being run to help any individual, all candidates for state offices are invited to be present. The committee feels as if it would like to give everybody an opportunity to be heard, but feel that would be an impossibility, so it will limit the addresses to the candidates for the head of the ticket.

Charles A. Wotton, chief marshal of the parade, announces that all who wish to enter with their automobiles in the parade can do so. Automobiles from the surrounding towns and cities will form on Chelmsford street. Automobiles representing ward nine will assemble on Howard street; ward eight, on Grand street; ward seven, on Royal street; ward six, on Gates street; ward five, on Bellevue street; ward four, on Nichols street; ward three, on Smith street; ward two, on Fernald street; ward one, on Howard street.

Parade to start at Lane street at 1:15 p. m. sharp.

Taber's Sixth Regiment band will assemble at the armory and the parade will commence from Lane street, with ward one republicans at the head of the line. The wards as represented will then fall in line as the parade passes them.

Chief Marshal Charles Wotton will announce the route of the parade and his assistants tomorrow.

MR. BIRD WILL NOT RUN

He Notifies the Progressive State Committee of His Conclusion—His Letter

The following letter has been sent to the progressive state committee by Charles Sumner Bird, declining to enter the primaries this fall as a candidate for governor:

Boston, July 6, 1915.
Mr. Lauriston Ward, Acting Chairman, State Committee, Progressive Party, Boston, Mass.
Dear Mr. Ward: I have carefully considered the resolutions passed by the progressive state committee in which I am requested to enter the primaries at the next election.
On April 29th, last, I wrote that I feel that there exists any such duty. Whenever such a duty exists, I shall be the first to do my share in the fight.

The situation today is no different than it was when I wrote that letter. While you, and others, have urged me to be a candidate on the ground of public duty, yet as I see it, no such duty exists; therefore I shall not be a candidate for governor at the coming election.

Yours very truly,
Charles Sumner Bird.

CHARLES SUMNER BIRD

would not be a candidate for governor and in that letter I stated:
"There are many personal reasons why I should not, which I would only disregard if there were some strong public duty calling me, and I do not

INDICATIONS POINT TO DISBANDMENT OF EIGHTH REGT. DRUM CORPS

Indications at present point to the disbandment of the famous Eighth Regiment Drum corps, at least insofar as it is a military body, just as soon as the enlistments of its members expire. Three of the members, whose terms of service expired during the past week, have signified their intention of not re-enlisting.

For some time the Eighth regiment has not been entitled to a drum corps. It is understood, but the corps was liked by the members and it was kept up. If it does disband it is more than likely that none will be formed to take its place. The musicians of the corps are considering the formation of an independent organization. The Ninth regiment is also said to be considering "signing up" the musicians in the event of disbandment. Most of the members are residents of Lawrence. The corps appeared in the Lowell parade on Monday.

HIS LEG BROKEN

Michael Tuite Fell Over Embankment in First Street Yesterday

A man who gave his name and address as Michael Tuite of Blackstone, Mass., crawled into the First street garage shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and informed the occupants that he had fallen off a wall down the embankment some time last night and sustained a fracture of the leg. He was taken into the garage and cared for until the arrival of the ambulance, whence he was removed to St. John's hospital.

From the information secured from the injured man, it seems that he was walking through First street late last night and sat on a wall to rest. In some way he lost his balance and fell down the bank. On account of the injury to his leg he was not able to regain his feet and so he lay in the open exposed to the rain until about 8 o'clock this morning when he managed to accumulate enough strength to crawl to the garage.

The ambulance physicians stated that Tuite had sustained an injury to his leg and was also suffering from exposure and lack of nourishment.

U. S. GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER WIRELESS STATION

—U. S. Officials Take Control of Sayville, L. I., Station

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The government today took over the Sayville, L. I., wireless station, the only remaining privately operated direct means of communication between the United States and Germany.

Secretary Daniels announced that Capt. Bullard, in charge of the naval radio, had gone to take over the station and would continue its operation with naval forces.

Sec. Daniels' Statement

Secretary Daniels issued this statement this morning:

"It is said that the Sayville radio station had made application to the

SHIP LOADED WITH EXPLOSIVES AFIRE

Holt's Last Warning Answered by Explosion Aboard the British Liner Minnehaha, Heavily Laden With Explosives for Allies

NEW YORK, July 8.—Frank Holt's last warning, voiced through his widow, while he lay a suicide in his cell in the Nassau county jail, that a steamship would sink at sea July 7, was answered by an explosion aboard the British liner Minnehaha, heavily laden with explosives and inflammable materials, 570 miles southeast of Halifax last yesterday. News of the explosion and resultant fire was received here today by wireless from her captain.

The Minnehaha had no passengers aboard. Her crew of approximately 100 men had brought the flames under subjection this afternoon, the captain said in his despatch and the vessel was heading for Halifax. She was due to arrive there tomorrow morning.

LOADED WITH AMMUNITION

NEW YORK, July 8.—As if in answer to Frank Holt's last warning, that a ship at sea "should sink, God willing, on the seventh" there came last night a wireless message, made public today from Capt. Claret of the Atlantic Transport Line steamer Minnehaha telling that his ship was afire at sea, 570 miles southeast of Halifax.

The ship had sufficient ammunition aboard, by the line's admission, to sink her should the flames reach it, but whether the blaze in her hold was started by a bomb which Holt had placed there was a matter of pure conjecture. It was possible that he had done so, an official stated, but one man's guess on that point was as good as another's he added.

Capt. Claret's message said that the fire was in No. 3 hold and was not serious. The ammunition aboard the vessel was stored in, away from this hold. The cargo in No. 3 hold, it was asserted, was of a general nature.

No passengers were aboard the Minnehaha. Her crew numbers approximately 100. She was at her pier here about a week taking on cargo before sailing for London last Sunday, July 4. Holt would have had ample time, it was pointed out, to place a bomb aboard the Minnehaha during the five days preceding his attempt on the life of J. P. Morgan while the vessel was taking on cargo here.

The Minnehaha should reach Halifax, it was said, tomorrow forenoon. We exercise all reasonable precautions to prevent the placing of bombs aboard our ships," an officer of the line said today. A guard is on duty day and night at the dock and our own workmen are watched strictly and continuously.

"Our shipments, however, are made up chiefly of large consignments and the chances of loading a small package

such as one containing a bomb would be considerably less than on some other trans-Atlantic vessels."

The Minnehaha, requisitioned by the British government since the beginning of the European war, was released for the general freight service about two months ago. Since her release she has made two trans-Atlantic trips, carrying each time a large general cargo, containing munitions of war.

The fire aboard the Minnehaha was caused by an explosion, according to a wireless message received at 12.40 p. m., today from Capt. Claret. At that time the fire was said to have been mastered.

Capt. Claret's message read as follows:

"Fire caused by explosion. Now under control by suffocation and steam. Much smoke in holds. Deemed it expedient to make for Halifax. Due off Chubucto Head 9 a. m., Friday. Advice agents."

AMMUNITION ABOARD

A considerable quantity of ammunition was aboard the Minnehaha, it was learned today. Officials of the line asserted, however, that the fire was far removed from that section of the ship in which the ammunition had been stored.

The ship's crew numbered approximately 100.

The Minnehaha's manifest shows that she had aboard 1000 cases of cordite, 2800 cases of loaded shrapnel shells, 1400 cases of trinitolite, 1548 cases of cartridges and 175 cases of safety cartridges.

Among the inflammable materials aboard were 65 packages of petroleum, 2990 barrels of oil and 1941 barrels of wax. The chemicals included 83 barrels of formaldehyde and 95 barrels of boracic acid. There were also aboard 230 horses, 228 cases of automobiles and a large quantity of zinc and copper plates and products.

OUTINGS POSTPONED

The unweleome rain today caused the postponement of several outings and picnics. The Westminster Presbyterian church and the First Congregational church both planned to hold outings at Willow Dale that were originally scheduled for last week but were postponed by the rain.

FRESH RUSSIAN TROOPS AT FRONT

BERLIN, July 8.—By wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—According to private reports from Russian Poland front to the Over Seas News agency, the Russians have brought up fresh reserve troops of excellent raw material but without drill practice, in the region of Krausnik and in Besarabia, and are making a last stand, evidently covering a general retrograde movement. The Russian attacks invariably have been repulsed.

Russian officers the advice says, are directing machine gun fire upon their own fleeing troops and increasing their enormous losses. The Russian infantry, it is added, often use dum dum bullets.

GERMANS NOW CLAIM GAINS ON BOTH FRONTS

French Driven Back West of Souchez—Russians Checked—
Italian Warship Sunk

The German official announcement on the progress of hostilities says that the French, after penetrating German trenches west of Souchez, were driven out by a counter-attack and that a second attack by the German, resulted in failure. The fighting to the west of Apremont brought no success to French arms and the Germans took 400 prisoners. Artillery exchanges are severe on the entire front in France.

Russians Checked

In the eastern arena an enemy attack in Lithuania was repulsed; in northern Poland some Russian trenches have been taken; and elsewhere advances by the Russians were checked.

To the west of the upper Vistula the German report says in conclusion, a number of Russian positions were taken yesterday by storm.

Severe Fighting

The French official statement refers to severe fighting in the region north of Arras; the repulse of German attacks between Angres and Souchez and the occupation of a line of German trenches north of the latter place. Soissons has been bombarded. There was continuous artillery and infantry fighting in the Argonne last night and a German advance was delayed.

British Stores Wrecked

A wireless despatch from Berlin says the Germans have destroyed at Arras the main stores of the British troops on the north of the line in France, and that these forces are consequently greatly handicapped.

At the moment when the Teutonic march through southern Poland was beginning to threaten first Lublin and then Warsaw it has been brought to a halt. Official statements from each side agree that at the one point—in the angle north of, Krausnik—where the Russian lines were still displaying weakness they have been strengthened. It now appears that Grand Duke Nicholas' forces are holding their ground all along the extended front.

Heavy Losses

Determined attempts by the Austro-German forces to drive the Russians out of what remains to them of Galicia are continuing. Petrograd reports assaults by green forces east of Lemberg but declares they were repulsed with heavy losses to the attacking army.

Lull on Austro-Italian Front

Apparently there is a lull in the furious fighting along the Austro-Italian front after the recent determined attacks by the invading forces. Official statements from Rome, however, declared continued advances are being made on the Carnic plateau where the progress is described as "slow but constant."

Italian Warship Sunk

The Italian armored cruiser Amalfi has been sunk in the upper Adriatic by an Austrian submarine. Most of the crew were saved.

SOUCHEZ

BERLIN, July 8, via London, 3.15 p. m.—The official statement given out today by the German army headquarters said:

"In the western theatre of war... West of Souchez the French succeeded in penetrating our outer trenches over a width of 300 yards. They were driven out again by our counter attack. A second attack made by the enemy broke down under our fire. Hand grenade fighting still goes on for possession of a small section of trench in which the French still are established."

"Enemy attacks on the positions which we had captured to the west of Apremont have throughout the day and night without any success. The number of prisoners we increased by three officers and 400 men."

"On the entire western front lively artillery battles are in progress."

"In the eastern theatre:

"An enemy attack from the direction of Kovno (in Lithuania) was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy."

"At Stega, northeast of Przemysl, a few Russian trenches were taken and held."

"Enemy advances in the region of Strzegowa and Stareszky, northeast and east of Racine, were unsuccessful. Attempts made by our opponents to take away Hill 55 to the east of Dowlowka, which we captured yesterday, failed."

"In the southeastern theatre:

"The change in the situation of the German troops standing between Dniester and the upper Vistula. To the west of the upper Vistula a number of enemy positions were taken by storm."

Prospects of a Billion Bushels Increased

MR. AND MRS. JEREMIE CHAM-

SARY LAST NIGHT

A pleasant gathering of friends and relatives took place last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremie Champagne, 63 Ludlum street, the occasion being the 25th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Champagne's marriage. The reunion had been arranged by relatives and was a surprise to the couple, who were not thinking of celebrating the event.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the guests numbering about 60, who had assembled in a neighbor's home, repaired to the Champagne residence, and of course they were given a cordial reception. In behalf of the gathering, little Miss Loretta Champagne, daughter of the hosts, read an address to her parents and this was followed by the presentation of numerous costly gifts including several pieces of silverware and a purse, as well as a large bouquet, the latter being presented by Miss Albia Champagne, a niece.

Mr. Champagne although taken unaware, responded in fitting terms and a pleasant evening followed. Vocal and instrumental selections were given and a dainty luncheon was served. Present from out-of-town were William Perry of Lynn and Mrs. Louis Bachand of Southbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremie Champagne were both born in Canada. They came to this country while quite young and on July 7, 1890 were united in the bonds of matrimony, the ceremony being performed at St. Joseph's church by the late Rev. A. M. Garin, O. M. I. Three children were born to them and they are all living, they being Misses Loretta, Evelina, and Dorina.

Mrs. Champagne was formerly Miss Georgianna Pepin. Mr. Champagne is a milk dealer and a member of a number of fraternal and social organizations.

LARGEST EVER PRODUCED

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The American cotton crop of 1914 was the largest ever produced, having reached 16,313,920 equivalent 500 pound bales, which, if placed end to end, would reach more than half around the world at the equator. That figure, announced today by the census bureau, is the government's final report. It removes any doubt whether last year's crop exceeded the former record crop of 1911, and shows that 442,229 equivalent 500 pound bales more were grown last year than in 1911.

Under the good of the organization, remarks were made by several members, and the meeting adjourned to July 19.

Lyon Co. Rugs

The Ardahan rug, "The American Oriental" manufactured by the Lyon Carpet Co., of this city resembles very closely the Oriental rug made by hand methods. Woven by the modern loom of more than human accuracy, the Ardahan is excellent in wearing qualities and texture. It is a seamed rug made without miter.

In addition, the wool is procured from the same source as that used in the Orient. Every precaution is taken in washing and the rug is made under perfect sanitary conditions.

The rug is made on the principle that the quality and amount of stock on the face of the rug, with the proper bind, is what gives the wear. All the yarn is on the face where the wear comes.

The fastest of dyes are used in its coloring. The pile stands perfectly straight which gives a resilient tread and may be brushed at any angle. No sizing of glue is used in the whole manufacturing process.

The weight of the rug, measuring nine by twelve, is fifty-five pounds. The design shows through clearly to the back, a feature to be found in Oriental rugs. Each tuft has a double bind mechanically executed. The weight and evenness of the weave prevent its sliding on the floor. For the same reasons, when laid on stairs, the pile will not open over the nosings, or "grin," but retains its close regularity.

There need be no doubt as to the wearing qualities of a rug of this nature or any rug manufactured by this up-to-date carpet company. An example of its durability is seen in a rug over which 750,000 persons walked. Over another permanently attached to a sidewalk in Havenhill in mid-winter when it was subjected to a severe test on account of the sleet and snow, 350,000 persons passed.

Mr. Lyons, manager of the local plant has many sheets of data concerning the tests of rugs of different kinds, and letters guaranteeing the above statements of the tests of the rugs will be gladly shown, and the rugs may be obtained for advertising purposes upon request. In buildings where floor coverings are subject to the severest kind of wear, fabrics of this nature are invariably found.

Three vital points must be considered when purchasing a rug—first, harmonious coloring; second, good design; and third, wearing quality. To-day the public more keenly appreciates these features, and among the Lyon Patterns may be found all that is best in Oriental art, both in coloring and design.

The patterns also include modern all-over designs as well as medallion effects. To those who require the luxuries of a deep pile carpet, with permanency of color, long wearing qualities, with soft, mellow tones expressed in designs of broad treatment, the product offered by this company is among the best manufactured in the country. And it is for this reason, and because the company boasts of a live manager in George Lyon, that the local plant is running full time the year around with all hands steadily employed.

The Lyon Carpet Co., bids fair to be probably the only carpet concern in the city within a short time, and in the quality of its product it will rank among the highest in the whole world.

SCENE FROM "FIGHTING BOB" Featuring Orrin Johnson, at the B. F. Keith Theatre Today, Tomorrow and Saturday

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

A martial picture in five parts and showing over 300 specially made scenes is "Fighting Bob" which will be shown the latter half of the present week at the B. F. Keith theatre. The subject is one which will make a stant appeal, because the main facts are connected with events of recent times. The story is a drama in which Huerta deposed and later killed Madero, the president, is the background through which work the characters of "Fighting Bob" and "Duchina", the beautiful sonnet. Orrin Johnson, an excellent actor of the legitimate stage, and Olive Wyndham, an equally well known leading woman, will enact the principal parts in this drama. Johnson has never before appeared in motion pictures, and it is also the debut of Miss Wyndham. The story tells of the collection by a party of an army of irregulars, of their depredations and of the final defeat of his forces by the United States army. It makes an exceedingly lively story, for it is full of action, and, withal, the most charming of love tales finds its way into it. The photography of the picture is of the very best, and the picture itself has surrounded his principal feature with several one-act stories which cover the gamut from real comedy to the dramatic. This theatre is one of the real cool spots in town, and one may rest assured that he can see the best photography in town in absolute comfort.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"How do they do it?" is the question which puzzles a great many people every time the Merrimack Square theatre announces a double Paramount feature program. It is certainly an unusual offering for a five and ten-cent admission motion picture theatre, a stunt that is seldom or never attempted by the high priced theatres of the metropolitan cities. Two brand-new five-act Paramount features of the highest quality have been secured by the theatre for the first time during the last three days of this week.

Maud Allen, the famous dramatic star, appears in "The Rug Maker's Daughter" a most unusual motion picture and one of the latest features released through the Paramount feature film corporation. The picture is shown in five acts, complete with tense situations and with wonderfully artistic settings that add that necessary touch of realism.

The other Paramount is a powerful and thrilling war drama, "Brother Officers," a new idea in war photo-plays. In addition to these there is a fine comedy film. No one should deprive himself of the pleasure of seeing this extraordinary program of motion pictures.

Miss Fitch Storey, the Vitaphone motion picture star, who in portraying Miss Allen's part of "The Christian," the famous love story by E. V. Rieu, has been shown at Canobie Lake Park theatre all this week. She has to say relative to the values of stars in the drama and in pictures. Miss Storey is well qualified to speak since she has been called "The Bernhardt of the Screen" and prior to her entrance into pictures was an actress of the stage.

According to Miss Storey, playing such a part as Miss Storey in "The Christian" is pictures is infinitely harder than doing the same thing upon the stage. Miss Storey's contention is that the photo-play actress is deprived of her power of speech, and anyone who would have asked to consider will realize what difficulty they would have if they were asked to convey all of their meanings without the aid of their voices.

In the photograph Miss Storey is seen at her best, even though she has a splendid elocutionary ability. But on the screen where this delivery is useless, she shows every emotion and runs the gamut of feeling merely by facial expression and gestures. She has it reduced to a science that it is possible for her to carry on a conversation with another, convey all her meanings, and not make a sound.

She has taught herself all of the rudiments of theatrical acting under David Belasco and others and then to become a screen actress she had deliberately thrown away her elocutionary powers and studied mute expression from a purely scientific standpoint. Thousands have read the book, "The Art of the Actor," and many thousands more have already seen the splendid motion picture portrayal. Yet each and all of these will want to attend Canobie Lake Park this week and enjoy the story all over again, for "The Christian" is a picture that all can enjoy over and over again.

WANTS IMMEDIATE TRIAL

TAGGART SAYS ELECTION FRAUD CASES ARE PERSECUTION—MEN RELEASED

INDIANAPOLIS, July 8.—"This whole business is a persecution and a prosecution and I demand an immediate trial," said Thomas Taggart, democratic national committeeman from Indiana, yesterday, after 120 of the 131 men charged with frauds in the 1914 registration, primary and election, had been arraigned and seven had pleaded guilty before Judge James A. Collins in criminal court.

"I never had anything to do with any one of the men who pleaded guilty yesterday," declared Taggart. "I do not know these men and it seems funny to me that they should be permitted to go on their own recognizance, if they are so guilty. I don't know what I have been indicted for, although I have made every effort to find out. I want an immediate trial because this whole thing is a persecution and an effort to besmirch my name as well as many of my friends." Mayor Joseph E. Bell, who also was among those indicted, issued a statement saying: "The pleading guilty of the seven men yesterday is an attempt to connect us with men with whom we have never had any dealings in any way whatsoever. These men came into court and pleaded guilty without the indictment being read. They were immediately released on their own recognizance and this seems rather unusual."

Among those who pleaded guilty was Bernard Rieckman, indicted with Mickey Ford on the charge of conspiring in Marion county to vote more than once in the election held at Terre Haute, Nov. 3, 1914.

After the motion for a change of venue to another judge was filed, Judge Collins fixed Friday as the date when attorneys for the state and defense will select a judge to try the case.

Bath City Council Passes New Measure For Erection of Primary School and Improvements

BATH, Me., July 8.—At last night's meeting of the city council an order passed last month, authorizing the issuance of school bonds to the amount of $20,000, was rescinded and a new order passed, which provided that $18,200 shall be raised for the erection of a six-room primary building in ward 1, and $1800 for sanitary improvements in two other buildings.

The committee on schools and schoolhouses, with the addition of Chairman Welch of the finance committee and Chairman Mitchell of the school board and committee on buildings and grounds was named as a building committee.

After the motion for a change of venue to another judge was filed, Judge Collins fixed Friday as the date when attorneys for the state and defense will select a judge to try the case.

The total number of fires in the city of Boston during the year was 2301, of which 1042 were in frame buildings, 1163 in brick or stone buildings, and 96 were other than building fires. The total value involved in Boston fires was $51,895,850; insurance thereon, $47,097,124; total amount of loss, $3,044,621.34; and the total insurance loss, $2,884,361.95. Of the total number of fires in Boston, 17, or .73 p. c., were incendiary, and the causes of 269 were unknown.

Outside of Boston
The total number of fires in the state, outside of Boston, was 6128. Total value of property damaged was $153,781,606; total insurance on same, $139,485,536; total loss, $23,140,659.23; and total insurance loss, $19,378,011.40. Of these fires 4977 were in frame buildings, 970 in brick or stone buildings, and 151 were other than building fires. Of the total number 128, or 2.08 p. c., were of incendiary origin, and the origin of 655 was unknown.

The number of arrests for burning and arson for the year was 61. There have been 42 convictions; the percentage of convictions to trials was 75. Of the incendiary fires in Boston, 4 were set for the purpose of securing the insurance, 1 by an insane person, 7 from malice, and the motive of 5 is unknown. Of the incendiary fires occurring in the state outside of Boston, 24 were set for the purpose of obtaining insurance, 5 by insane or demented persons, 46 from malice, 3 for revenge, 6 for spite, 7 by an intoxicated person, and the motive for 41 is unknown.

Of 32 Massachusetts cities Lawrence has the best record of all with 466 fires involving a loss of $54,299, or a capita loss of $5.7. Boston stands 26th on the list with a per capita loss of $4.08 in fires, involving a total loss of $3,044,621.34. Pittsfield has the unenviable of heading the list with a total loss of $235,161 in 216 fires, a per capita loss of $5.93. The per capita loss of Salem was $4.60 in 319 fires, destroying $214,581 worth of property. These figures for Salem do not include the great fire of June 25 with its estimated loss of $1,661,652, or $318.73 per capita, and the destruction of 18,000 buildings.

EXPORT TRADE INQUIRY
Federal Trade Commission Will Make
Two Months' Tour in the West and South

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A tour of investigation to cover the middle west, the Pacific coast and the south was announced yesterday by the federal trade commission. Hearings will be begun in Chicago on July 19 and the commission will travel for nearly two months completing its inquiry into the export trade situation.

The commission will hold closed hearings at various points on informal complaints which have been filed charging business concerns with "unfair competition."

THE SPELLBINDER

Speaking of bridges and bridge builders:

The municipal council, or more particularly four of its members are trying hard to have the Luten Engineering company, of Springfield, His Honor's ideal city, supervise the construction of a bridge over the Merrimack at Pawtucket falls, the cost of which is hoped will not exceed $50,000.

The Journal of the Western Society of Engineers, of September, 1912 contained a very readable and instructive article on "Arch Design: Specialization and Patents" which was presented before the bridge and structural section of the society on June 10, 1912, by Daniel B. Luten, M. W. S. E.

In the course of his address Mr. Luten said:

"In a few and widely scattered communities are materials directly available for building bridges, except of wood and concrete. Even for the wooden bridges of long span, suitable timber must now be imported from the most northern counties. For such bridges, and for steel, almost all of the expenditure for superstructure, is therefore, sent out of the county, and usually out of the state. For concrete arches, the cement, amounting to 10 per cent. of the cost, and the steel, amounting to 5 per cent. of the cost, with 5 per cent. for superintendence, are all that are necessarily foreign in expenditure, a total of about one-fifth. The concrete girder exports 10 per cent. of the cost for cement, 25 per cent. for steel and 5 per cent. for superintendence, or about twice as much as the arch. Unless the profit on an arch exceeds 20 per cent., therefore, it is better policy for a community to let contractors for arches even to outside contractors than to award contracts for girders to home talent, all other advantages being assumed equal."

Daniel B. Luten states that a community should pay 5 per cent. for superintendence, and Mr. Denman of the Luten Engineering company is taxing the city of Lowell 8-3-4 per cent. But Daniel B. Luten says nothing of the cost of "placing the steel." Perhaps he figured that in with the cost of the arch, which is a very natural supposition would be done in such a transaction.

Taking Mr. Denman at his word, however, and assuming that he is charging but 5 per cent. for superintendence which Mr. Luten says is the proper charge, then he must be placing 3-4 per cent. of $3075 for placing the steel, which according to Lowell should cost $4000. If it costs $3075 to place $4000 worth of steel it should certainly be well "placed." But the city is not following Mr. Luten's estimates in dealing with the Luten company or its representative. It agrees to pay more than the price which Mr. Luten lays down as the standard for steel and supervision.

Taking the Bridge Lumber

A correspondent who read in Saturday's Sun that Engineer Denman of his company had secured some $3000 worth of second hand lumber after its temporary use in the construction of the Pawtucket bridge rises to protest, claiming that Commissioner Morse should get on to his job and take that lumber for use in the sewer department in the construction of sewers. He argues that the people that it is proposed to give to Mr. Denman would come in very nicely for use in the sewer department and would save the city the expense of purchasing new lumber for that department. Respectfully submitted to Commissioner Morse. The same correspondent remarks that in order to use a carload of nails they will be obliged to buy a much greater amount of lumber than has been estimated or else throw them in the river, which would be objected to by the Locks and Canals company, if not by the city, for they might impede the flow of water.

General Good Order

General good order prevailed on July 4th and 5th despite the great crowd in Lowell. Mayor Murphy instructed the hotel keepers in advance about showing too lavish hospitality to men in uniform but it would seem his precautionary measures were unnecessary for there was no disorder upon the part of the military men and no drunkenness. A man was shot and robbed close by the South common and there were several cases of pockets that were picked, notably that of Park Commissioner Rountree, who was "touched" while walking along "his own" common. But those things will happen in the best regulated cities and cannot be blamed upon the administration in power. There was considerable gambling of a minor nature on the common but that is something that can't be eliminated and which the public seems to enjoy. Neither can that be blamed upon the police nor upon the administration in power. In the past such happenings have been blamed upon the city government by people not in sympathy with that particular government and the blame was undeserved. If pockets are picked and men shot and robbed either at a celebration conducted by the city itself or at a show or dance or boxing match run by private individuals, the administration that happens to be in power at the time cannot rightfully be held responsible for such violations of the law, and should not be. It makes good campaign material for the opposition of course, but this fall such times campaign material will not be needed, as there will be a sufficiency of the real stuff.

Launching of Booms

There'll be a general launching of political booms along with the other attractions at the big powwow of the republican city committee at the bathing grounds on Saturday afternoon. There'll be republican candidates present all the way down the line from governor to registrar of voters, and there'll be quite as many candidates for registrar as there will be for governor. There's a big time scheduled and party lines will not be drawn at the gate. Everybody with "the necessary" will be welcomed.

Registrar of Voters

Speaking of that registrars' job, they're at it as merrily as if the election were coming tomorrow when they can't get near it for a year. Dr. James H. Rooney is holding over as the municipal council neglected to vote for registrar during the months prescribed by law. The job is being held down in an eminently satisfactory manner by Dr. Rooney, and hence there is no occasion for any sleepless nights on the part of the taxpayers, or of the members of the municipal council, for it is one of the rare cases where neglectfulness proved a good thing, or at least did no harm. But the candidates are busy, nevertheless. The law provides that this particular office must be held by a republican, and there's one beautiful thing for which the republican party has ever been noted; its preparedness at all times to furnish a sufficiency of candidates for any old office with a salary attached. Political historians have not as yet recorded beyond a peradventure whether it was Fred Harrison who discovered George Brown or George Brown who discovered Fred Harrison, but, anyway, Mr. Harrison dawned upon the political horizon in the days of Brown as the Brown candidate for registrar of voters. But the changing colors of the political kaleidoscope soon made him a blue candidate as he lacked one vote of election. But, nothing daunted, he has been a candidate ever since as is his inalienable right, and he may be even so unto the end of the chapter. Brown voted for him but not on "the psychological ballot," as it were. Again in the O'Donnell administration he was there with two votes when two of received more votes than Harrison's friend, Fred G. Humphreys, is in receptive mood, as it were, and will be a candidate in the event of Mr. Harrison being unable to win. Mr. Humphreys' friends figure that as Mr. Harrison has had two votes sold for several administrations, and has never been able to win, that Fred, the second, will not be "butting" in on Fred without the third, when the election will come up. Then there is faithful Joe Hibbard, who is ever ready to serve either his country, state or city, and for it is said, must be figured upon as a candidate for remote possibility that somebody is "kidding" or they would stay on "other side of pond," "spoofing" Mr. Harrison in regard to those two votes, but—Hunt! soft quiet yawn. Happily, we have nearly a year of grace before we shall be obliged upon to worry over the election of a registrar.

Democratic Senatorial Candidates

Almost simultaneously a few days ago I picked up a copy of Practical Politics and a copy of the Lynn News, and in each found something of interest, politically. In Practical Politics, the genial countenance of former Senator Henry Draper beamed upon me framed in the following announcement:

"Henry S. Draper, who represented Lowell in the senate for several terms, may be a candidate again this fall. His friends desire that he should run against Sen. Marchand, who won the district for the republicans last year in a three-cornered contest in which the progressives upset the plans of the democrats."

"Should Sen. Draper go into the fight there will be things doing in the district for he is not only a war of matter on his own account, but he is very strong with the labor organizations in the city and the farmers in the country. He has a three-cornered contest in which the progressives upset the plans of the democrats."

"The district is close politically and has sent a democrat to the senate in the last few years as often as it has a republican, for which reason the party leaders are doing their utmost to induce Mr. Draper to enter the contest."

The Lynn News called attention to the affairs of the "shoe-string" district by means of the following communication:

"To the Editor of the Lynn News.—It has been rumored in ward 8 that I have said I was not a candidate this year for the senate from the 7th Middlesex district. I can say I do think it rather early to be asking people to forget their own affairs and interest themselves in politics, especially as the hot season is now on.

"I am content to let my magnificent vote all over the district speak for itself, feeling quite certain that on the day of the caucus next September the democrats of ward 8 will surely elect the man most likely to win, and that is quite the crux of the situation. In the meantime, without any spirit of bragadoelo, I want them to consider the fact that I received the largest vote ever cast for a democrat in ward 8, in a straight party contest up to election day, last year, just 1900, running ahead of Governor Walsh's vote—quite a feat, when on the ticket with such a splendid vote getter."

Fisher ever received in the district; carried Lowell by a larger vote than Senator Fisher, carrying the republican ward there by 37 votes; carried ward 4 and Saugus, where I am best known, by 500 votes more than Senator Fisher, and, strange to say, never asked a single voter in the entire district to vote for me always considering that a voter shall have the privilege of voting as he sees fit."

"When the voters ponder over these figures I will have very content to abide by their decision in September, at the primaries."

Henry P. Dunn.
"Candidate for Senator in the 7th Middlesex District Last Year."
West Lynn, June 25.

Lowellians Like Dunn

In the district now represented by Senator Marchand there is no doubt that he will receive a renomination without opposition and there has been no talk thus far of any opposition on the democratic end to Mr. Draper, should the latter be a candidate.

In the other district, there will be no Lowell candidate and it seems to be the consensus of opinion among the democrats of wards five and nine that Mr. Dunn should be given another opportunity without opposition on account of the fine run he made last year and the hard and effective work he put into the campaign. This sentiment finds an echo in the towns in this vicinity and Senator Fisher, the one man who would be selected as the most desirable candidate from this end of the woods, is favorable to Mr. Dunn. Mr. Burke of Lynn is casting sheep's eyes at the nomination, it is said, but up this way thus far what little talk there has been on the subject is all favorable to Mr. Dunn.

WHAT 'THE FRENCH MAID SAID

CLEANING THE REFRIGERATOR

"My refrigerator smells sort of . . . ice, return it to its proper compartment and quickly shut the door. Then as quickly as possible return the food and shut the refrigerator door."

"We use lump charcoal," advised Marie, "and we have found nothing as good as that. Besides a little goes a long way. Before cleaning the refrigerator remove all articles of food to a table or shelf within easy reach. Have ready in the stationary tub or an ordinary wash tub, plenty of household ammonia and good white soap which is free from odor. Plunge into this all the shelves and movable fixtures, including the tray on which the ice rests. The ice should be wrapped in newspaper and set in the coolest spot available. When the fixtures are washed set them out in the sun to air and sweeten."

"With the same suds wash the walls of the refrigerator, rinsing thoroughly the last few times with cold water. Bring in the fixtures, dip them in cold water. Bring in the fixtures, dip them in cold water, fit them into the refrigerator, remove the paper from the

Russia's Reinforced Armies Halt Austro-Germans Below Lublin —Teutons on Defensive

LONDON, July 8.—Germany's fifth great drive at Warsaw has been definitely checked.

Reinforcements hurried from the north have at last come up with the fighting troops from Galicia, south of Lublin, and have administered a severe defeat to the Austro-German pursuers in the Krasnik region of southern Poland.

Krasnik is about 25 miles south of Lublin, the latter regarded as the "back door" to Warsaw, being a most important railway centre on the line through Ivangorod to the capital. The Teutonic plan of campaign, as now interpreted here, involving a crushing advance through Lublin and Ivangorod to the capital, has thus met with a check a few miles inside the Polish border.

Russia Has Advantage

After her precipitate flight from Galicia, Russia has now time to catch her breath, and has the advantage of numbers and of physical conditions on her side.

The stretch of country into which the Austro-Germans have now penetrated is a wild, barren waste, about 150 miles wide, in which there are no railroads and only two towns of any size. The Russians, on the other hand, are backed by a network of railroads over which they can hurry troops and guns to any threatened point.

Unofficial despatches last night coming from Austrian sources by way of Switzerland, admit that in the battle around Krasnik the Russians have everywhere had the upper hand since Monday, and state that the tentative invaders have suffered enormous losses, thousands of wounded having arrived at Lemberg, Przemyśl and Jaroslau.

The greatest number of prisoners yet taken by the Italian armies operating in the Isonzo valley is reported by the official report from the Rome war office last night.

During the past two or three days 15,000 Austrians were captured on the Carso plateau, where the Italian forces are slowly pressing forward in an attempt to cut the last line of rail communication left to Gorizia.

On the Carole front, farther north, Italian bombardments have caused great damage to the Austrian fortifications at Lacore, Taglia and Tressani.

Berlin despatches make much of the alleged repulse of the Italian attacks on the bridgehead at Gorizia, declaring that King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Salandra were present when the Italian troops were driven back.

They state that the Italian losses were extremely heavy, hundreds of dead bodies being left on the field when the invaders fell back.

Germans Aim at Verdun

In furtherance of the desperate attempt of the Germans on the western front to draw their lines about the French fortress of Verdun, another big offensive was launched last night along that portion of the southeastern side of the St. Mihiel "wedge" which extends from the Meuse valley just south of Ailly to a point in the forest of Apremont.

The army of the German crown prince is here on the offensive and is making determined efforts to recapture the ground which it lost in April when the French attempted to rip off the St. Mihiel salient.

In the present attempt they were for the most part, repulsed, although the movement was preceded by an exceedingly heavy bombardment, but at one point they managed to penetrate the first line of French trenches along a front of about one-third of a mile.

Near St. Mihiel, in the Le Petre forest, another German attack was accompanied by the hurling of flaming liquids but the attackers were unable to make headway and were driven back to their original positions.

Artillery combats continue from Arras to the sea, and it was stated last night that as a result of the German bombardment Arras is in flames and its cathedral burning. The Germans also claim to have retaken the trenches which they lost to the British north of Ypres yesterday. However, the fighting here appears to be of a desultory nature, despite reports from Holland of large German reinforcements for another effort to reach Calais.

The Gallipoli peninsula again has been the scene of very severe fighting, the Turks on Sunday having made their third attempt within a week to regain the ground which the allies took from them in their last attack. Sunday's offensive, like those which preceded, resulted, according to British and French reports issued last night, in the complete discomfiture of the Turks, who are said to have suffered again severely.

The allies are only six miles from their goal, the narrows of the Dardanelles, but the country between is strongly fortified, and a gain of a few hundred yards is all that can be expected at one time. There is talk of a new combined general attack by the land and the sea forces.

SUIT DISMISSED

Minority Stockholders Lose Case Against Directors of N. H.

BOSTON, July 8.—A suit of minority stockholders to recover $102,000,000 from former and present directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, who were charged with responsibility for alleged improper expenditures of company funds was dismissed by the supreme court today.

William C. Rockefeller, Lewis Cass LeMay, James S. Elton and Charles S. Mellen were among the defendants. The decision was handed down by the full bench and was on an appeal by the railroad from a superior court decision enjoining the corporation from transferring stock standing in the names of the defendants. The full bench also had before it an appeal of the plaintiffs from a decree of Supreme Court Justice Hammond dismissing the bill as against the estate of the late J. Pierpont Morgan and other deceased non-resident defendants.

Judge Hammond also had decreed that the bill could not be maintained by the plaintiffs nor could it be maintained if brought in the name of the corporation itself; that the plaintiffs as stockholders had acquiesced in some of the acts complained of and that the bill failed to show that the expenditures were made for an unlawful purpose and that the company did not get full value for what the directors expended.

In the rescript accompanying the decision handed down today the court says:

"The allegations of the bill do not show reasonable application to directors to institute proceedings to recover the losses referred to in the bill nor facts showing that such application would have been useless."

The suit was instituted in behalf of Ralph S. Bartlett and others, trustees under the will of Olea Bull Tamm, and other minority stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

The foundation of the suit dates back to 1904 when it is claimed that William C. Rockefeller, Charles S. Mellen, D. Newton Barney, William Elton, George C. McG. Miller and Robert W. Taft, directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, and J. Pierpont Morgan, Edwin M. Miller, and L. de Ver Werner, planned to effect a monopoly of all the transportation companies operating in New England. In acquiring properties needed for that purpose there was paid out of the treasury of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company a total of approximately $200,000,000. The losses as the result of the action of the directors, the plaintiffs say are $42,000,000 on street railways, $15,000,000 on stock of the Boston & Maine and $18,000,000 in the purchase of the New York, Westchester & Boston railroad—a total of $102,000,000.

When the suit was originally filed it was claimed by the attorneys for the plaintiffs that they were entitled to damages under the Sherman act providing for triple indemnity, or $306,000,000.

THE G. O. P. CONVENTION

FALL GATHERING OF MASS. REPUBLICANS WILL BE LARGEST IN HISTORY OF PARTY

BOSTON, July 8.—Massachusetts republicans will hold the largest state convention this fall in the history of the party.

Up to 1914 the basis of representation was one delegate for the first 75 votes cast for the republican candidate for governor in the preceding year. In each ward of a city and in each town, one delegate for each succeeding 150 votes in each ward or town or for a fractional part as large as 75 votes.

On account of the small vote for governor in 1913, the least number of delegates apportioned to the state convention for 1914 was 145. The basis of representation for that year was: One delegate for the first 50 votes cast for the republican candidate for governor in 1913 in each ward of a city and in each town; one delegate for each succeeding 100 votes cast for the republican candidate for governor in 1913, in each ward of a city and in each town, or for a fractional part as large as 50 votes.

The state committee, at its meeting of June 25, voted to continue the basis of representation at 50, the same as last year. On that basis this year's October convention will be entitled to 228 delegates.

To that number there must be added those persons included in section 126 of chapter 335, acts of 1913, which is as follows:

Section 126. A political party may, upon the call of its state committee, but not earlier than one week nor later than two weeks, after the holding of the primaries, hold a state convention for the purpose of adopting a platform, electing such number of members at large of the state committee as may be fixed by the state committee, nominating presidential electors, and for such other purposes not inconsistent with this act as the state committee or the convention may determine. Such convention shall consist of the delegates elected at the state primary (in number not less than one for each ward and town), the members of the state committee, the United States senators from Massachusetts who are members of the party, the nominees of the party for all offices to be filled at the state election, and in years in which no elections are held for such offices, the incumbents of those offices who are members of the party.

This makes about 50 persons and will increase the total number entitled to sit in the convention to 278.

Some time between now and Sept. 5, the state committee must, under its rules, select a chairman of the convention; also a chairman and four members-at-large of the committee on resolutions for the convention; also the time and place for holding it.

Springfield, Worcester and Boston are in the field. Last year Worcester had it. Now Springfield, the home city of George A. Bacon, who is the chairman of the executive committee of the state committee, is making a strong bid for it.

Saxonia and Philadelphia Safe—Inquest Into Holt Suicide—Morgan Able to Go Out

NEW YORK, July 8.—Police authorities continued today their investigations to ascertain whether Frank Holt had planted bombs on board any steamships now on their way across the Atlantic ocean. As a result of wireless warnings, reassuring messages had been received from the captains of the Saxonia and Philadelphia in mid-Atlantic saying that those steamships had been searched for bombs and nothing found. These were the two vessels mentioned by Holt in his letter to his wife in Dallas, when he wrote that one of them should sink on July 1.

Thus far the police authorities have not been able to discover that Holt had any accomplices in the making or placing of his bombs. Police Commissioner Woods said the indications were that Holt had worked alone.

Inquest on Holt's Suicide

Arrangements had been made to hold an inquest on Holt's suicide today. His identification as Erich Muenster, indicted in Cambridge, Mass., for the murder of his wife, was regarded by the authorities as complete.

SEEKS WRIT OF ERROR

LIEUT. BECKER'S COUNSEL TO DENOUNCE CONDUCT OF THE PROSECUTION'S CASE

NEW YORK, July 8.—Ex-Police Lieut. Charles Becker will have one more day in court. It has been decided by his attorneys that even if their application for a writ of error is denied by the United States judicial authorities to issue it, a federal writ of habeas corpus will be sued out. The records of the case will then be brought before the United States supreme court and the case will again be threshed out.

W. Bourke Cockran has been at work for the past few days on the application for the writ of error. He has steadfastly refused to disclose the grounds on which he will charge Becker's constitutional rights have been violated, but it was learned yesterday that his application will be a scathing denunciation of the conduct of the prosecution's case against Becker.

PRONOUNCED A "FAKE"

BOSTON STORE KEEPER SAID HE WAS BOUND, GAGGED AND ROBBED OF $600

BOSTON, July 8.—George Pappas' sensational story of being bound, gagged and robbed of $600 in his store at 61 Gorham street, West Somerville, late Tuesday evening, after which the store was set on fire, has been pronounced a "fake" by the police, who spent a considerable portion of yesterday in interviewing the man and running down various clues.

Inspectors Damery and Kennedy had a talk with Pappas yesterday, but he gave them, they declare, but little satisfaction. The police, however, in that that on the day of the fire and robbery, the store had been taken possession of by a sheriff, who received the keys from Pappas, then locked the door and carried them away with him. The police claim that Pappas gained an entrance into the store by the window, which was found broken, and then with the aid of friends, was bound and gagged and the pockets of his trousers turned inside out. The play was well staged, although when Pappas saw the flames he became thoroughly frightened and became semi-conscious, a condition he was found in upon the arrival of the firemen.

TRANS-PACIFIC TRADE

ONLY ONE LINER FLYING U. S. FLAG NOW IN SERVICE—SEA-MAN'S BILL BLAMED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Captain Robert Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Co., has returned to San Francisco from Vancouver, B. C., where he completed the sale of two steamers.

"Conditions enforced by the seamen's bill which will go into effect early next November, make it impossible for us to operate profitably American steamships in any but the coastwise trade," stated Captain Dollar.

According to the marine bureau of the San Francisco chamber of commerce the sale of the Robert Dollar to the British company would leave the Hill liner Minnesota the only steamer flying the American flag in the trans-Pacific trade. The Minnesota operates between Seattle and the Orient.

The affair, which led the police to believe that Pappas was not telling the truth, was that, upon examination by Dr. Forest Leavitt, no injury could be found on the head, where Pappas claims he was struck with some kind of an instrument, in the hands of an unknown man, and rendered unconscious.

CHILD FELL THIRTY FEET

A TWO-YEAR-OLD GIRL WHO DROPPED THREE STORIES SAVED BY WINDOW SCREEN

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 8.—Tumbling from a third-story window to the concrete sidewalk, 30 feet below, and receiving no greater injury than a few slight bruises on the knees, was the experience of 2-year-old Evangelina Kline of 607 Elm street yesterday. The child climbed upon a chair near the window, pushing out the screen, the baby went over the window edge, and to the screen the child owes her life. The screen struck the sidewalk at an angle, breaking the force of the fall.

PARIS, July 8.—A decree has been published prohibiting the export of gold except by the Bank of France. This precautionary measure is taken at the suggestion of Minister of Finance Ribot.

The amount of gold in the Bank of France has been increased 15,500,000 francs this week as the result of the appeal made by the government that the gold supply of the country be exchanged for bank notes.

RANCH 101 COMING

WILD WEST AGGREGATION TO BE HERE ON JULY 10TH—STREET PARADE

Would you marry an Indian girl if she was pretty, could speak broken English, and was an heiress?

Princess Mary Eagle Feather, a Sioux girl, has all these qualifications, and she is unmarried! And what is more, she says she will never marry an Indian. Not that she despises her own people. Far from it. She is proud of the Indian as a race and when she attended the Haskell Indian school at Lawrence, Kan., and learned to read the white man's books, her favorite literature was that relating to the red men in North America.

But Princess Mary Eagle Feather realizes that the Indian is still in a formative state so far as civilization is concerned. To marry an Indian brave would mean living in a tepee, performing the hardest kind of manual labor while the buck took life easy, and being shut out forever from intellectual society.

These views are not shared by her father, the old chief, Eagle Feather, who wants his daughter to wed among her own people. Chief Eagle Feather is rich as Indian riches go. He owns a great deal of good grazing land in South Dakota, has a bank account, which is unusual among the plains Indians, and numbers his ponies by the hundreds.

Chief Eagle Feather has no sons, and has indicated his intention of leaving all his possessions to his daughter and his prospective son-in-law. The present task of the Princess Mary Eagle Feather is to convince her father that a white son-in-law would be most desirable, and the success of her diplomacy would place her in the market for a palace sweetheart.

Princess Mary Eagle Feather, it is announced, is one of several pretty Indian maidens in the Indian village of Miller Bros. & Arlington's 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which, in conjunction with Jess Willard, the cowboy champion of the world, and his great sparring combination, exhibits in Lowell Friday, July 16. Willard is undoubtedly the biggest athletic feature of the season, and is creating something of a sensation wherever the show exhibits. The local engagement will be inaugurated with a big morning street parade on the downtown streets.

"CAPTURE OF LOWELL"

EXPERIENCE GAINED IN RECENT MANEUVERS LED COL. GRAVES TO PLAN FOR SUPPLY COMPANY

An innovation is soon to be made in the eighth regiment, in the formation of a supply company, to facilitate the moving of the quartermaster's and commissary departments. This is a result of Col. Graves' experience in the recent "capture of Lowell."

The supply company now used in the regular army has sole charge of the movement of the baggage trains, commissary and the pitching of camps, and other duties now falling on the quartermaster's department. The members of the supply company are usually experienced men, such as teamsters, bagmen, etc.

During the past two years the regular army has enlisted such men, and they have been a great success. Here before the baggage train and commissary department wagons have been late in following the troops.

Next year, when the eighth regiment goes to camp, they will have a commissary train and see that it arrives at each camp with the regiment. There will also be either four horses or mules attached to each wagon instead of two.

TEACHING 43 YEARS

BOSTON, July 8.—Dist. Atty. Pelletter conferred at the state house yesterday with Atty. Gen. Atwell and Guy Emerson about the Commonwealth docks graft charges. Mr. Emerson's report, indicating a waste of more than $2,000,000, was submitted to Mr. Pelletter, who will handle any criminal prosecutions.

Mr. Pelletter refused to discuss the conference, but it was learned that they discussed the report of Mr. Emerson. He will examine the report for any evidence that may warrant criminal proceedings.

BATTLE NEAR CAPITAL

CARRANZA FORCES HAVE PUSHED THEIR ATTACK TO WITHIN TEN MILES OF MEXICO CITY

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The Carranza forces have pushed their attack on the convention forces defending Mexico City up to within ten miles of the capital. Their military train is operating at close to the city. State department despatches from Vera Cruz today gave this report.

While Mr. Wilson is postponing action on the Mexican question until his return to the capital, he is expecting that something tending to clarify the situation may come out of information brought to Washington by the various Villa leaders. It is known here that some of the president's closest advisers on Mexican affairs, including Daniel G. Sullivan, the state department official reviewing the food conditions in Mexico and containing information concerning the political situation in the southern republic was gone over by the president.

The president has gained weight since coming here and today was in apparently perfect physical condition. The visit to the Cornhill house has also benefited the members of his family.

FOR U. S. SUBMARINES

New Gun Perfected By Navy Ordnance Bureau, Says Secretary Daniels

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A three-inch disappearing gun for submarines has been perfected by the navy ordnance bureau, Secretary Daniels announced yesterday, and in the future all American underwater craft will be equipped with such weapons for surface fighting.

Mr. Daniels said every test had resulted satisfactorily and that, within 10 days the gun and its carriage would be sent from the ordnance factory here to New York for mounting on the new submarine M-1, under construction at the Electric Boat Co.'s plant.

No navy in the world has a better weapon of the kind than the ordnance bureau has evolved, according to the secretary.

Joseph H. Clappa of Randolph Allowed by the Court at Dedham to Use New Name

DEDHAM, July 8.—In the Dedham court yesterday the petition of Joseph H. Clappa of Randolph to have his name changed to Joseph M. Champ, was allowed by Judge James H. Flint. Mr. Clappa said he was born in St. Bartolomeo, Italy, and when 14 years old emigrated to this country with three brothers, adding that they agreed then to have their surnames changed to Champ.

The petitioner also said he was married under the name of Champ, and had made application for citizenship under that name. He has three children, Esther M., aged 5, Norman Adelbert and Amy E.

UPLIFTING THE GAME

Kennedy Tells Roach How Old
Bill Shakespeare Would Have
Rooted on the Diamond

In the office of the Lowell team in the Hildreth building a few days ago, Owner Andy Roach and Secretary Jimmie Kennedy were discussing the Lowell team; its slump, and baseball conditions generally.

Andy was inclined to be philosophical and a trifle reticent while Jimmie was quite outspoken, and didn't hesitate to express his innermost feelings. "It's getting to be a common thing to lose," exclaimed Jimmie, in deep disgust, "and it's time there was a change. Why, when I was bartering up on Broadway I had a team called Kennedy's Pets, and if they couldn't put up a better bluff than that bunch who are masquerading in our uniforms I'd drive them off the corner. The gang wouldn't let them sit on the North common. They're enough to drive you out of the game!"

"As Con Daly would remark," replied Andrew, "There's an element of truth in what you say, James, but still, as my old friend of school days, William Shakespeare once said: 'I will not give my part of this sport for a portion of thousands!'"

By a beautiful one-hand catch Mr. Kennedy rescued his exquisitely colored meerschaum pipe which had slipped from his teeth as he opened up to let go an astonished: "Huh!"

Recovering his pipe and his composure, simultaneously, Mr. Kennedy said: "I pray thee, little one slide that across again, I was figuring out whether they short-changed us at Manchester Monday morning, and didn't have my eye on the ball. Come across with it once more; there's nothing to wait for."

"I was quoting William Shakespeare, my friend of school days," said Andrew, smilingly.

"Shakespeare, Shakespeare?" murmured Jimmie, reflectively, but with a twinkle of the eye. "He's the guy who lived on Marion street and went to the Marlborough school. His father used to work in the big shop. The old man was with me when I ran for the council."

"My dear man, I'm referring to the famous dramatic poet, Shakespeare; not to any of your ward two constituents," replied Mr. Roach.

"Well, why the— Of course you were, and I'm glad you did, for it recalls something important that I have meant to take up with you regarding the uplift of the game of baseball," said Mr. Kennedy.

"If it's important, I'll listen; otherwise tell it to Ben Maloney, for my time is limited," replied Andrew, while Mr. Maloney who had just dropped in, prepared to just drop out.

"Well," remarked Jimmie, incidentally placing to one side, his 40 horsepower meerschaum, "baseball is changing; that is to say, its tone is changing and we must meet the change. It's the old saying, 'When you're in Rome, burn Roman candles.' Our ladies' days are bringing out the fair sex in large numbers, while the college-bred fellows are getting into the game. Already we have Louie Pieper of Harvard at Lynn; Tom Keady of Dartmouth at Manchester and any number of players and managers from the different correspondence schools of the country. Thus the tone is changing and with it should change the language employed by players, managers, umpires, yes, and by the spectators. How it must grate on the sensitive ears of Louie Pieper or Tom Keady to hear a player on the lines, exclaim: 'Dat-a-boy, dat-a-boy; bum yer way, of acout, not to speak of the effect on that portion of the grand stand with the high brow, and the low-necked expanse of front elevation!'"

"You're quite right, but what's all that got to do with Shakespeare?" interposed Mr. Roach.

"Like a good actor I also withhold my climax until what Bob Partridge calls the psychological moment," remarked James. "My idea is to adopt the language of your old friend Shakespeare on the diamond. Old Bill was right there with expressions to meet the varying situations in baseball as he did live way back in the days when Jesse Burkett, Jim Cudworth, Bill Hawes and Dick Conway broke into the game. The idea occurred to me one day last winter while sojourning in California. I went into a cafe with my old friend Carroll Smith and overheard a couple of guys quoting baseball expressions that emanated from the fertile mind of Shakespeare. It struck me that I might go home; start a movement to uplift the language of baseball and perhaps some day get my picture in The Sun, as a man who had left a monument for posterity, and say, Andrew, I love to pronounce that word, it is so similar in sound to another word that we haven't heard for so long—prosperity—to gaze upon and venerate. Hence in my leisure moments I have delved into the many volumes of Shakespeare and have culled therefrom some tid-bits, and if you care to learn something not found in Spalding's baseball guide, or Roach's handy baseball schedule just listen."

Then James unfolded a roll of manuscript and proceeded with "Shakespeare on Baseball," as follows:

CONNIE MACK NOW MAKING THIRD
SACKER OUT OF WALLIE SCHANG

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—In the course of his efforts to fill the gap created by the retirement of Frank Baker to the simple life of farming and playing wildcat baseball Connie Mack has conducted many an experiment this season, but his latest is perhaps the most surprising of them all. Wallie Schang, stripped of his mask and mitt, is now in the role of a third baseman. Though he has shown no signs of relenting toward Baker, the tall leader of the Mackmen has found it more difficult to fill the hole at third than he anticipated. It is the point through which many a ball game has slipped this season, and even now it is doubtful if he would consider any other terms for the home run king than he has already offered. But by drafting one of the greatest catchers in his league for infield duty he has indicated that he is near the end of his resources for third sackers. Schang is the tenth or twelfth in the long list of candidates for the position. Oldring, Walsh, Murphy, Kopf and numerous newcomers have had a crack at it, but none of them showed any particular adaptability for the place. Schang has been at the station only a few days, but he seems to be doing as well as any of them. He has a good arm and is fielding neatly. However, it is not likely that Schang is lost to the mitt and mask. It is understood that Connie Mack has no intention of keeping him at third permanently. Several of the youngsters who have recently been tried out there fielded well enough, but Connie figured that he needed Schang's hitting to carry along the more or less uncertain pitching the Athletics have been getting all season.

FARRELL LEADS BATTERS

PORTLAND PLAYER LEADS THE
GREENHALGE THIRD

Chick Farrell of the Portland team continues to lead the hitters of the New England league. The figures, compiled to date, show that Hugh Duffy's slugging outfielder is traveling at the fast pace of 372, and he has taken part in 43 games. Farrell has drilled 60 base hits through the opposition's defense and in performing the feat he has had 161 tries. Jack Warner, the champs' second baseman, is runner-up to Farrell. He is ten points behind in average, while he has played seven more games. Farrell and Warner furnish one of the interesting races of the year. Snubber Greenhalge of Lowell is third, with 245 to his credit.

There is a scarcity of 300 hitters, as but eight are enrolled in the honor circle. The following players have made 60 hits or more this season: Warner 52, Farrell 50, Reed 50, Barrow 55, Swayne 55, Luster 54, Burns 54, Gardella 53, Dowell 52, Briggs 51, Orcutt 50.

The leading run getters are: Burns, Portland, 44; Farrell, Portland, 34; Gardella, Worcester, 34; O'Connell, Lawrence, 33; Clemens, Portland, 35; Luster, Lawrence, 30; Reed, Manchester, 29; Briggs, Manchester, 29; Gleason, Lynn, 28; Swayne, Lowell, 27; Potteiger, Worcester, 26; Carroll, Worcester, 26.

O'Connell of Lawrence is first in sacrifice hits with 13. The leaders: O'Connell, Lawrence, 13; Becker, Lewiston, 11; Sweett, Portland, 11; Spiles, Manchester, 11; Conley, Lawrence, 10; Moulton, Fitchburg, 10; Potteiger, Worcester, 10.

Porter of Lynn leads in stolen bases. The leaders: Porter, Lynn, 26; Dowell, Portland, 20; O'Connell, Lawrence, 18; Burns, Portland, 16; Becker, Lewiston, 14; Gleason, Lynn, 14; Orcutt, Lynn, 13; Duggan, Fitchburg, 13; Clemens, Portland, 11; Lynch, Lynn, 11.

Luster is first in two-base hits. The figures: Luster, Lawrence, 15; Sweett, Portland, 13; Conley, Lawrence, 13; Farrell, Portland, 11; Warner, Lawrence, 11; Mahoney, Lawrence, 11; Potteiger, Worcester, 11.

Barrows and Briggs are tied in triples. The leaders: Barrows, Lowell, 7; Briggs, Manchester, 7; DeNoville, Lewiston, 6; Dawell, Portland, 5; Farrell, Portland, 5; Kane, Manchester, 5; Torphy, Manchester, 5.

Barrows is first in home runs with four while Farrell, Warner and Thompson have each made three homers.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Lynn has a classy outfield.

If this rainy season keeps up we will have to play our games indoors or under a tent.

The Lynn team is strengthening its lineup in a manner that would indicate that it is after big game.

There are times when Paddy Green doesn't look as big as he appears when things are breaking right.

Lowell may yet have a former big leaguer with a rep. and a good head directing that lineup.

Fitchburg may start a baseball association after the method of Manchester now that Dan Noonan has passed away.

Because a team gets only two errors in the error column doesn't indicate that it only made two misplays. Some of the most costly misplays are those that can't be scored as errors under the rules. For instance, a misjudged fly that allows a run in is costly but it doesn't count as an error; on the contrary, the batter gets credit for a hit that he didn't deserve. Dumb base running can't be scored in the error column or Lowell would have a fat column.

Now everybody seems to think that Howard Fahey won't do. Principal Irish, fan who knows the game, predicted that fact when Fahey first got on a Lowell uniform, and he had watched him play while in the High School league. There has hardly been a season in many years except when Jake Bouttes was on the third sack that there wasn't trouble in getting that important position covered properly. That reminds us, Orday, who had a brief career at third base at Spaulding park, is now with Lynn on the same bag, and appears to be making good.

"Dan" Cloheey, representing Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, has made to John Gilroy, the Haverhill high school athletic star of the past three years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gilroy of 2 Chandler street, Bradford, a proposition to join the Athletics July 27 upon their return from the present western trip.

Now it is put fairly and squarely up to the Bradford boy as to whether or not he will give up amateur athletics and become affiliated with professionalism. He has been a much sought man by prep schools and colleges since his wonderful showing on the gridiron last fall when he was captain of the local high school team. As a football player, however, he gives more than on the diamond and it is not at all unlikely that he will accept the offer of the attenuated manager of the former world's champions.—Haverhill Record.

Says Mike Lynch, the Lawrence baseball expert:

Last week was a disastrous one financially for every club in the league, all of which went far behind on the week. Lewiston was the club to suffer most, losing two Saturdays in order. Fitchburg was idle all week until Saturday when a double-header was played with Lynn. Lawrence was forced into idleness three days out of the six last week, as were also some of the other clubs. And upon the days that games were played the weather was so threatening that the attendance was kept down. It was a hard week to bridge over, but now some good weather ought to be in order and help retrieve some of the losses sustained by the club owners during the rainy weather.

Despite the fact that the Lewiston club suffered more than the others through rainy weather, however, the chances of the club were given a boost by the sale of Russell Holmes of the Red Sox, the price being rumored as $2500. Other clubs have not been so fortunate in finding a market for any of their players yet.

Lou Pieper, manager of the Ocean Park Stars, predicts that the Federal league will be but a distressing memory of the past, in another twelve-month as he believes that the outlaw organization will die a natural death after two years of war with no prospect made and not the faintest prospect of prosperity for a third big league.

The Angels will probably refuse to sell out any more money and charge their losses to a sad experience, says Pieper. "The real stronghold of the Federal league was in Baltimore and this year the public stock of Federal league methods has absolutely deserted Knabe's park. Not even an appeal to civic pride has brought out the fans for one game. On one of the fans turned out in Brooklyn at the 'free day' recently which shows that the outlaw organization is not popular with the public."

At a time when business conditions were better the Feds would probably have had a much better chance to outlive the baseball malon. ONE BAD INNING

By Lowell Gave Victory
to the Burkettters in Yesterday's Game

(Special to The Sun)

WORCESTER, July 8.—Worcester took advantage of one bad inning which the Lowell club and Pitcher Paddy Green had and pushed over four big runs which paved the way for a 5 to 3 victory yesterday afternoon.

The visitors, who looked like a good ball club on paper, gave a good illustration in the fourth inning of why they are at the bottom of the list.

Andy Dyke, although although all the runs were earned off his delivery, twisted good ball, except in the eighth, when he grew a bit careless, and Lowell pushed two scores across the pan after two were down.

Jimmy Cooney at first base turned in the fielding features of the day. In all his shifts around the infield, and he covered every position. Cooney looks by far the best on the initial scale. His foot work is splendid, he has a dandy pair of hands, and his stretching and bending for high ones and going after the low ones was easily the feature of the contest.

Worcester's outfield, particularly Potteiger, also had a fairly busy day, and came through with flying colors. For Lowell, "Cuke" Barrows, deposed manager, who celebrated the opening game of the season here with a home run over the right field fence, amazed another one yesterday that dented the top, lacking only about a foot of clearing the barrier. He also hit one on a line to center for base, the next time up, but failed to come through in the eighth when there were two on bases, his long fly which Potteiger took ending Lowell's rally.

The visitors got the palm for crowding about as much bad baseball into any one inning as an team has shown at Boulevard Park this season. The covers book noted that the first story of the Lowell sins of omission committed.

mitted in the fourth inning. McCleskey, first up, got two bases on a fly ball which he threw to his grounder. Gardella lifted pop fly to left which Swayne failed to reach, and it went for a single. McCleskey taking third. Potteiger hit a short sacrifice fly to Greenhalge, McCleskey scoring and Gardella taking second on Greenhalge's miserable return to the plate. Greenhalge was playing in too close and was then misjudged Pownall's liner, giving him a triple on what would have been a put-out had the outfielder been playing his position. Gardella, of course, scored easily on the hit. With the infield drawn in, Campbell dumped a Texas leaguer in short right. Bowcock, who dashed back, first hitting, Pownall led off with a single with one down, and sprinted to third when Campbell shot a hard single through Dee's territory, as the latter ran over the scratchest of his kind seen recently. Campbell went to third and Cooney was given a life when Bowcock booted the latter's grounder. Van Dyke led off with a single with one down when no one covered the bag. Van was picked off when he tried a double steal, Ahearn to Green to Bowcock. The error ended the agony with a fly to Greenhalge.

The Clumbers pushed over their final run in the sixth, this time giving splendid exhibition of hard, free hitting. THE CAMPAIGN BRIDGE

Viewing the bridge muddle in the most favorable light possible, it is difficult to see how the municipal council can proceed with the construction of a bridge at Pawtucket falls without leaving the city liable to serious financial loss in the future.

In the first place, the letter of Engineer Mills of the Locks and Canals company plainly shows that a bridge built under the Denman plans, conditionally accepted by the city, will make the city in various ways financially responsible for damage to property as a result of freshets where the present bridge would offer protection.

Again, it is shown that the abutments of the proposed bridge would offer so much greater obstruction to the flow of water in the river, that a channel two-thirds of the span in width and fifteen feet deep would have to be excavated in order in some degree to overcome this objection. The excavation of 9000 cubic feet of solid rock would cost considerable, and this would have to be added to the cost of building the bridge.

But that would not overcome all the liability for damage claims inasmuch as the arches even with the deeper channel proposed would still offer much greater obstruction to the descent of ice and hence, other things being equal, the new bridge would flood a greater area along the banks. For these reasons the Locks and Canals company, through Mr. Mills, gives the city this warning:—

"In revealing the difficulties and the perils which would be involved in the construction of this bridge as planned, the proprietors of the Locks & Canals on Merrimack river are not to be regarded as assenting in any respect to the construction of the proposed bridge. The proprietors must hold themselves in readiness to assert and to protect their rights, and in pointing out the obvious difficulties which the present plans present, and the perils to the citizens which would result from its adoption, they are not to be held as assuming any responsibility or as having waived any rights in the premises."

In that notification lies the possibility of future suits by this company against the city, while the reasons on which this protest is based offer ground also to other abutters to complain if the city builds a bridge that leaves their property more exposed to damage by freshets than it has been from the old bridge.

The municipal council has an offer of $5000 from the street railway company on condition that the plans shall be approved by the bridge engineering experts of the J. R. Worcester company of Boston.

As soon as that offer was made the municipal council should have submitted the plans to the company in question for approval in order to receive the $5000 offered. Failure to do so shows that the council has not much faith in the plans tentatively approved. It is the imperative duty of the council to comply with the stated stipulation and secure the $5000 to aid in meeting the cost of the bridge. Is the municipal council so tied up to the Springfield concern as to openly ignore the city's interests in this respect?

The approval of the Worcester experts would be a further guarantee of giving the city a thoroughly good bridge, something that is much more desirable and much more for the city's benefit than that any kind of a bridge shall be thrown together hurriedly in order that certain officials can make political capital out of it in the fall. A bridge built for campaign purposes is not likely to be much good for any other purpose.

At present the muddle in which the matter is involved and the unbusiness-like methods pursued cannot fail to disgust the public and lead to retribution at the first opportunity—unless the city council retrace its steps on the bridge question, have the plans approved by the Locks and Canals company, the Street Railway company and the other concerns which under the law must be consulted before any bridge can be built.

The approval of Prof. Swain now awaited will not take into account any of the objections raised by the Locks and Canals company nor the extent to which the new bridge would obstruct the water or resist an ice gorge.

These are a few of the fundamental objections to the methods by which the municipal council set out to construct a new bridge. They would all have been obviated at the start had plans been prepared and bids called for in the regular way. Thus all the loose tails such as the turning over the lumber purchased by the city to the supervising engineer would have been avoided. Why not pay the engineer entirely in cash rather than part in cash and part in lumber?

Engineer Denman is not the party to be criticized. It is his business to secure all the bridge jobs he can get; but the manner in which the city council has turned the whole problem over to this gentleman has barred fair competition which in such a case is the chief guarantee of getting the best possible bridge for the lowest possible price. Under the proposed arrangement the city may get a very poor bridge at a cost far exceeding that of the best. Is that business or is it a betrayal of the interests of the city in view of the fact that we want a bridge that will meet all requirements and withal stand for generations?

With the approach of the hot weather, we may expect the usual appearance of cholera infantum with the resultant increase in the death rate. The milk station conducted by the Lowell Guild has done a great deal to reduce the infant mortality in hot weather. This has been brought about by the distribution of modified milk and by instructing mothers in how to protect the little ones against hot weather diseases.

The milk supply at the present time is much better than it was in past years but the very best milk will spoil if it is not kept cool. This is where some families make fatal mistakes. Milk that has changed as a result of the heat will upset the stomach of the strongest baby and this is often the cause of illness that is followed by cholera infantum. It is hard to convince some parents that a single mistake of this kind in hot weather may cause the death of a child, yet physicians in the course of their practice find frequent proofs that such is the fact.

At the present time there is no real excuse for allowing a sick baby to go without proper attention or treatment. If the mother cannot prepare the proper food, she can secure valuable assistance at the milk station; but it will not do to wheel a baby through the streets in hot weather as this would increase its illness. In such cases the nurses of the Lowell Guild call to see the baby and give such directions as they may deem necessary for its proper treatment.

One of the most common causes of sickness among young children is the leaving them in the care of older children who either do not look after them properly or know not how. Some mothers who have to work leave young children at home in this way when it would be much better to send them to the Day Nursery. Through all the agencies that work together for the protection of young children, the ravages of cholera infantum have been happily checked in recent years; but there is still room for further progress in this direction.

Unfortunately there are many mothers in our city who do not know anything about the Milk Station at 11 Dutton street and they even hesitate a long time before calling a doctor when baby gets sick. As a rule the children of such mothers are physically strong and can endure treatment that would promptly prove fatal to most others. The child in such cases is like the wild flower that can withstand the chilling blasts under which the hot house product would quickly wither and die.

END OF THE WAR

Those who have been hoping to see the end of the war this fall have revised their opinions. The present outlook indicates that the struggle may be much longer than was at first expected.

It is now dawning upon the rest of the world that Germany was preparing for just such a conflict for the last twenty-five years, that she has every adult subject a trained soldier, that her military system is the most perfect ever known. She has revolutionized all the old methods of warfare. The battleship, like the cavalry regiment, is ruled out of the contest while the submarine and the aeroplane are new agencies that do terrible execution. But as to the end of the war, there is absolutely no prospect of peace in less than another year. If the allies open up the Dardanelles and take Constantinople there would then be an opportunity to join hands with Russia so as to supply her with the needed munitions of war. That would be the first real step towards the defeat of Germany and the allies will not consent to make peace unless overrun by the enemy until they have brought Germany to her knees. From the present outlook, it will take a long time to bring about such a reversal. England is only beginning to wake up; France is fighting gallantly and to the full extent of her power. Should the Austro-German forces be transferred from the eastern front to the west, there will be some terrible fighting.

The drive would be for Dunkirk and Calais and the best efforts of England and France would be required to stop its progress. The worst of the war has yet to come. There will be no termination until one side is completely beaten so that it is useless to make predictions.

There is this to be said, however, in regard to the present situation among the belligerents, that Russia is not out of the fight by any means and that she will come back heavily on the Austro-German forces, making their campaign towards Warsaw but a useless sacrifice of time, ammunition, money and men.

TOO MANY LOAFERS

There is a judge in Charlestown, Sullivan by name, who says there are too many loafers in the streets. Judge Sullivan is right. He has promised that if loafers are brought before him that he will do what he can to discourage them and their fellows from their abuse of their privilege. But the trouble is that the very men whom he wants to reprimand would probably appeal their cases, if faced with the prospect of a sentence in the municipal courts. It is not an easy problem to get rid of the street loafers. We have men in Lowell who boast that they have never worked and never will and these men are as plentiful today as ever. To pass a hard and fast law, allowing the police to arrest any two men who stopped on the sidewalk for conversation would be a plain injustice. The chief trouble is that what the ordinary citizen does in a quiet and peaceful fashion, the street loafer does in an offensive and indecent fashion. The loafer who makes it his business to insult women and children on the streets is cautious and never allows himself to be caught by the police in the very act and the trouble is to reach him. The police, however, can do a great deal in discouraging the street loafer. The local police know the young men who have never been accused of working and if this gang of silk-socked, tight-trousered and dandy appearing rowdies are allowed to occupy street corners for hours at a time the police are to blame.

HOLT'S SUICIDE

Very few will regret the suicide of Frank Holt, alias Professor Muenster, the Cambridge wife murderer, the would-be assassin of J. P. Morgan and the dynamiter who blew up a part of the capitol at Washington. Judging from his record Muenster was a thoroughly dangerous man even before he committed any of the recent crimes and the fact that he was numbered with the faculty of a great university shows that education alone is not a guarantee of character.

By ending his life Holt relieved the state of the unpleasant duty of bringing him to trial for his crimes. The German element in this country should take steps to prevent outrages of this kind by cranks who become war crazed and go out to kill somebody whom they deem indirectly responsible for aiding the allies.

Of Holt the best thing that can be said is good riddance.

THE THAWS

It is to be hoped that Evelyn Thaw will not be brought into court to testify either for or against her husband. The public is sick of Evelyn and her escapades. The general belief among sensible people is that Thaw should be set free. If any mistake were made in his case it was when he escaped the electric chair on the insanity plea. As that evil cannot be undone it is just as well to let him go. But for his

Every woman, I don't care how competent and independent she is, feels a little more at ease when traveling alone, or with children, if she can rely on a responsible official, paid to look after her comfort and convenience.

That's a special feature of our "Personally Conducted" Parties to California. Join one. It's the best way to travel, especially for women. If comfort, interest, safety and very moderate cost are to be taken into account. The cost of it all is surprisingly low. THE BOYS OF THE EIGHTH

The boys of the Eighth regiment who camped here at Sheehy park are certainly a credit to the Massachusetts militia. After all the hardships they endured on the four days before arriving here they showed up splendidly. They are an aggregation of which the state may well feel proud. In paying them this compliment we are not disparaging in the slightest degree the splendid discipline and military training of the Lowell companies.

MIDWAY REVENUE

Perhaps Supt. Kernan of the park department deserves congratulations for having extended the midway beyond the limits to which it had formerly attained. The income from the sale of lots if applied to the park department would be a considerable help in developing the system and lessening the expense to the city. The appropriation for this department is usually so small that an addition of $3000 would always be welcomed.

THE BOMB FIEND

This placing bombs on ships is a species of cowardly warfare that must be stopped. The man found with bombs in his possession should be punished to the extent of the law. He is a menace to the nation in which he lives.

THE DIFFERENCE

If the labor unions would attempt in Germany what they have been doing for some time in England, the leaders would be shot. That is one point of difference between a democratic and a militarist government.

SEEN AND HEARD

Lowell jitneys are giving transfers in the shape of clothes pins, good on any line. Imported from Lawrence.

Closing city hall to the public at large while the parade is in motion and the rain teeming, and parking the sidewalks about city hall, will not prove a very good drawing card for the present administration.

Among those who stood in the teeming rain while the parade went by on Monday was a blind man. He was standing opposite St. Anne's church, unable to see yet capable of enjoying what was going on about him.

Clothes may not make the man, but the coat may be a great help to a for. A man in Centralville has an Alfrede and, as Jim Thompson would say, he sure is some bear cat in a mixup. He had established absolute supremacy in the dog world of his neighborhood by whipping every other dog within a radius of a mile or more. He strutted like a king. Then his master, on one of the few warm days last month, clipped his coat. Now none of the other dogs know him, and he has to whip every dog over again to regain his supremacy. At last accounts he was making good progress.

HER WAY OF THINKING

I heard this amazing bit of cynicism, through a charity worker. She had been to call on a woman whose husband was addicted to drink, and was, as tactfully as she could, stating her views on the liquor question. In a pause in the conversation the wife exclaimed: "Well, there's one good thing about my husband's drinking. He's away from home so much, on a spree or in jail, that I have for myself practically all the money I earn washing and ironing."

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

It is sometimes hard to make other persons understand a question which seems perfectly plain to oneself. Along this line this story was told the other evening in the Dutch room.

"A gentleman while taking a morning walk down a country lane met a boy driving some pigs to market."

"Who do these fine pigs belong to?" asked the gentleman.

"Well," said the lad, "they belong to that thief of his sow."

"No, my boy," said the gentleman; "I mean who is the master of them?"

"Well," replied the lad, "that thief little un; 's a beggar for fighting."

NOT IN LOWELL

Do we get the suburban cities sometimes get fooled by our fire alarms?

In Cambridge sometimes one of the enormous whistles which are a leading part of the sounding of alarms seems to "run amuck" and toot such lengthy notes that one can hardly count the number of the box. Once or twice it has refused to count the strokes and substituted a prolonged blare of its own, which ran the separate toots together. But a far more wonderful manifestation of the possible tricks which a fire alarm system can play was experienced in Braintree. The fire alarm there sounded several rounds shortly after midnight, and an apparent "all-out" signal at about 4 a. m. Many residents thought this indicated that a fire of considerable proportions had been going on during the "wee sma' hours," but they were mistaken. It seems, as far as electricians were able to discover, there was absolutely no cause for the alarms.

THE SHY CATERPILLAR

The caterpillar, though a sociable creature, tries to keep out of everybody's way. Some species hide on the under surface of leaves, others on the stems or blades of grass, which serve them as food; others, again, build little nests for concealment or lie snugly hidden between the curled edges of leaves, which they draw close together until the opposite edges meet. The caterpillar is a sociable creature in his own family. He knows that there is safety in numbers, and you will find whole companies feeding side by side while keeping a sharp lookout for their bird enemies, but when a caterpillar is by himself he scarcely dares to move for fear of attracting attention. Even when he is obliged to change his skin he doesn't venture to leave his old coat lying around. The moment that he takes it off he eats it. The caterpillars that live in companies shed their skins boldly. Only the poor solitary fellows feel forced to swallow their old clothes.—London Mail.

JOHN

By Mary Garrigan Barry
There's nothing quite so sweet to lips
As "John, I love you, dear!"
My little will, will of the wish.
On this day came through the fleecy mist
And brushed o'er my lips his birthright kiss.
You dear!

The fragrance of heaven is round you still.

My dreamy little son!

Like a violet hid on the edge of a hill,
Your little niche in life you fill.
Awaiting the sign of his holy will.
Little Son!

Never a child, but a thinker deep,
The dependable one—My John,
I watch for the subtle smile that peeps,
The understanding that ever leaps
To the soft brown eyes where the shadows creep.
My John!

A mystic something pervades your calm.

A nature so fine, sweetheart,
Like the gentle incense of angels' psalms,
When they dropped you down that day
To my arms.

And you clasped my heart in your two wee palms,
Sweetheart!

Today is your birthday—child of my soul.

My reincarnation in you.

May mother's love lead you to some shining goal.

And it will pass you through if love is the toll!

For in heaven or here my heart is enrolled.
In you.

ANOTHER WAR PHASE

In consequence of the war the vital statistics as reported in London show a considerable decrease in the birth rate in that city and many an increase in infant mortality. There are said to be 500 less babies born each week than before hostilities started while the number of infants dying are on an average 500 more every week than normal times. The reasons for this are not difficult to conjecture.—Fall River Globe.

EFFICIENCY

Mechanical efficiency is not an end. It is a means. A philosophy that is based upon the idea that mere mental human happiness or even well being is a philosophy founded upon delusion. Efficiency in the industries should operate to increase the happiness of artisans engaged in industrial pursuits. If workers produce two pairs of shoes where they before produced only one, that extra pair of shoes should mean more music, more time for schooling for the children, more pictures, more flowers, more pianos, more of the luxuries and the necessities of life.—Johnstown Democrat.

WHY IS IT?

Although Col. Roosevelt will be in Washington at the time of the State convention of Progressives in Seattle, he has positively refused to attend the convention and deliver an address. Instead he will pass through Seattle without stopping. Time was when nothing short of a miracle or a bribe could keep the Colonel away from a Progressive convention, but that time has passed.—Springfield Union.

WHAT BRITAIN NEEDS

The radical difference between the mental traits of the Germans and the British is coming out in the national attitudes toward the war. Great Britain has not yet got down to serious business, as France has, but the workmen are quarrelling about their private status and the press is critical and there is not that dead-in-the-earrest sentiment which is characteristic of Germany. Yet, if it were not for France, Germany would have gone far to this day in its ambition to bring Britain to its knees. Britain needs more moral seriousness.—Fitchburg Sentinel.

THE LESSON

Read the declaration of Independence yet again and realize that to be patriots worthy of that great declaration you must do more thinking and less exploding. Less looking back with boasts to 1776 than looking forward to 1915 with intelligent, serious, resolute responsibility.—Lewiston Sun.

ALL ARE BROTHERS

In a way we are all our brothers' keepers and each of us is responsible to an extent for all those with whom we come in contact. We can check mighty impulses, we can caution, straighten and we can see that those persons, who we know are dangerous, are placed so that they cannot harm. We live a rapid pace, we Americans, and some of us cannot stand up under the strain as well as others and these weaker vessels must be watched.—Meriden Journal.

In the first six months of this year these fatalities increased from 163 in the same period of 1914 to 241. This increase is thoroughly bad. Nobody seems to know how to deal with the evil. More traffic squad men are urged. More cars in licensing, more severity on the part of the courts. No one thing will cure the evil. Great caution on the part of pedestrians is one desideratum.—Fall River News.

EXCELLENT ADVICE

That is excellent advice which Admiral von Tirpitz of Germany gave his compatriots concerning the danger of a breach with the United States, but it is quite remarkable that he should have had the courage and should have been permitted to be so open and frank in his expression of the serious nature of the present situation. German officers and citizens are not prone to express so freely and so fully their views concerning the government, even in times of peace, and just now it is quite unexpected that this man should be allowed to assume a position that might easily be interpreted as a criticism of the government, at least so far as the delay in deciding what attitude to take

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

The president's speech to the Pan American made it clear that the ship purchase bill remains in his program. It is equally clear that the country is no better disposed toward the measure than when it halted the defeat of the bill with joy. Regular and efficient lines of communication with the South Americans are, of course, desirable, and there are various means of accomplishing this end. Postal subsidies or out-and-out suits than government ownership can be the country would prefer to give up to shipping along safe, familiar lines.—Newburyport Herald.

MRS. ASTOR WEIGHS 153

BORROWS PENNY FROM SISTER, KATHERINE FORCE, TO FIND OUT

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 8.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Force, drove to the wharf at Bar Harbor on Wednesday to meet her sister, Katherine Force, who arrived on the New York train. Mrs. Astor greeted her sister with a kiss, saying at the same time, "Oh, Katherine, have you a penny?"

Mrs. Force nearly fainted and with a gasp produced the desired penny from her handbag and passed it over to Mrs. Astor.

The borrowed penny once in her possession Mrs. Astor ran across the wharf like a child, stopped before a penny weighing machine, stepped on to the scales, and deliberately spent her penny.

As the needle on the scale moved slowly upward Mrs. Astor eyed it with no little concern until it stopped on the 153-point mark, then with a hasty glance over her shoulder she gave a sign of either relief or despair, stopped hastily off the scale and ran to join her mother and sister, who were going off up the wharf.

BOB BRECKENRIDGE DEAD

POPULAR NEWSPAPER PHOTOGRAPHER DIED AT RUTLAND THIS MORNING

Robert B. Breckenridge died at Rutland, Mass., this morning after an illness of several weeks. He was almost 29 years of age.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Breckenridge of 131 Jewett street, and was well known in all parts of the city and in the surrounding towns as the photographer for the Courier-Citizen. He is survived by his parents and by his sister, Miss Margaret K. Breckenridge, and his younger brother, Jos. W. Breckenridge. He had taken a personal interest in the welfare of the Rutland Baptist church, where he was a constant attendant.

For eight years he had been employed in the art department of the Courier-Citizen and for two years prior to that he was connected with the business office of the company. He perfected himself in the art of making the half-tone plates, but found a niche for himself as photographer for the company.

In all these years he had followed all sorts of opportunities for making photographs, going long distances at times to get a picture of interest to Lowell residents. He was a welcome visitor at all the social gatherings where he went as a representative of the newspaper, and counted among his friends many in this city. In the office he firmly entrenched himself in the affections of his associates by his unflinching courtesy.

Only his business associates and his intimate friends were aware of the fact that he had been threatened with disease for several months. He had favored himself in his work, knowing all this, and had spent practically all of his leisure time in the open air. Several weeks ago he was given leave of absence for a summer in the hope that his health might be fully restored, but an unexpected change in his condition very recently had necessitated his going to Rutland for special treatment. There seemed every reasonable hope of his recovery even then, but the disease took a turn for the worse on Wednesday and he passed away peacefully at his home.

His body was brought home to Lowell this afternoon by Undertaker Geo. W. Healey.

TAKEN ILL AT ANDOVER

CAPTAIN WILLIAM C. JONES OF CO. I, EIGHTH INFANTRY, AFFECTED WITH SHOCK

LYNN, July 8.—Capt. William C. Jones of Co. I, Eighth Infantry, is ill at his home as the result of an attack of apoplexy, accompanied by a shock in which the right side of his face is slightly paralyzed. Captain Jones was with his company at Andover and suffered the attack about 5 o'clock Sunday morning. It seems that he was about to put on his puttees and was stopping over to tie them, when he was suddenly taken ill. A number of surgeons were with the regiment during the maneuvers, so medical aid was close at hand. It was found that he had suffered a shock on his right side and that his face was partially paralyzed. Although at the time he was not conscious, he had difficulty in talking. The surgeons present examined him and decided that he should be removed to his home at Swampscott, and he was taken there Sunday in an auto. At his home last evening he was resting comfortably and members of his family think he will come out of the attack all right. He was able to converse a little Monday afternoon and evening.

Previous to going to camp with the regiment last week, Captain Jones had been examined by surgeons at the state house, and it was doubtful up to the last whether or not he would accompany the regiment this year. Just before leaving Lynn, Captain Jones received word to go with the company, but it seems that his condition was not such as to encourage him any. However, he stuck to his company until Sunday morning, when he was stricken.

Captain Jones has seen considerable service, having been a member of the militia in New York and in Chicago. He was in the same regiment with former President Roosevelt in New York state and met Mr. Roosevelt on many occasions. Captain Jones was a charter member of the present Co. I, Eighth Infantry, and enlisted in 1901. He was elected second lieutenant and held that position until 1903, when he was elected captain of Co. I and has served such ever since. He has served almost 13 years as a commissioned officer, and was to retire as a major early in 1916. Just what will be done now that he has been taken ill is not known.

HAD GOOD COURAGE

LAWRENCE MAN HAD LONG HIKE AFTER SEVERING ARTERY IN LEG

LAWRENCE, July 8.—John Ford of 145 Franklin street with an artery severed in his left foot walked from a point in the woods at his farm in Salem, N. H., Tuesday afternoon to a carriage which was left by the roadside and then rode to the office of Dr. C. J. Burgess at 37 Whitman street in this city where he collapsed. He met with the accident when he was chopping down a tree. The axe glanced from the trunk of the tree striking him on the instep of his left foot and severed the artery. Though in agonizing pain Mr. Ford had the presence of mind of tying up the artery and then, knowing that medical aid could not be had there, he managed to reach his wagon and drive to this city. The distance from the wagon to where the accident occurred is about a half mile and from the farm to this city about three miles and it surely must have taken at least three-quarters of an hour to reach the physician's office. Hence it must be considered remarkable how he was able to retain his strength and his faculties as he did. His injury was immediately attended to by Dr. Burgess and he was taken home in the ambulance, where it was stated Wednesday morning that unless unforeseen developments set in will recover although it will be a long time before he will be able to be about.

Mr. Ford is the father of Attorneys W. C. and E. J. Ford.

ACCEPTS THE MONEY NOW

DEDHAM, July 8.—An unusual case of a disregarded (for a time) inheritance came to light in superior court here yesterday. By the terms of the will of his brother Michael McGrady, Thomas McGrady of Lynn was to receive the sum of $3308.

On May, 1913, William McGrady, another brother, who was also executor of the will, accompanied by Declan W. Corcoran and James Newhall of Boston, lawyers, went to the home of Thos. McGrady at Lynn and informed him of the contents of the will. Despite the efforts of Atty. Corcoran, Thomas refused to accept or recognize the bequest or the conditions of the will. He declared that Michael McGrady had not treated him fairly.

The money was deposited in the Dedham Institutions for Savings, where it would have reverted to the state after 30 years. Three days later, however, Thomas McGrady came to the bank and made application for the money. The application was allowed yesterday.

OVER 50 PERSONS PERISHED IN WIND AND RAIN STORM

According to figures compiled early today, more than 50 persons were killed and several score injured by the wind and rain storm which extended from Nebraska to Ohio, last night. The property damage is estimated at several millions of dollars.

The greatest loss of life occurred in Cincinnati and vicinity where 35 persons are known to be dead and 15 missing, 15 of the dead there being deckhands who were drowned by the capsizing of the towboat Conroy on the Ohio river.

Tornado in Missouri

In eastern Missouri the storm assumed the proportions of a tornado, demolishing 162 blocks in St. Charles. St. Peters, a town of 300 inhabitants, and Gilmore, a village of 100, were almost wiped out. In St. Charles possibly three persons perished. In St. Peters there was no loss of life, while in Gilmore only one person was killed.

In Lincoln and Custer counties, Nebraska, wind and hail caused heavy damage to crops.

Town Flooded

In southern Illinois the storm was severe. At Mound City, the business part of the town was flooded. In central and southern Indiana three persons were killed and many injured. Telegraph and telephone service was demoralized, buildings were unroofed and crops damaged by the heavy wind and rain.

35 DEAD IN CINCINNATI

Most Devastating Storm In Several Decades Descended Upon That City Last Night

CINCINNATI, O., July 8.—The most devastating storm that has visited this city in several decades descended about 5:30 o'clock last night, raged for half an hour, took a toll of lives estimated as close to 35, and wrought property damage somewhere between half a million and a million dollars.

Many Are Missing

As definite reports began to filter in today from the suburbs where telephonic communication was slowly being established, the list of the missing, which at last reports last night indicated between 15 and 20, was increasing.

Railroad Service Paralyzed

lized, and while communication with the outside world was confined to press service. The streets of the city were littered with fallen trees, signs, roofs of houses, and other wreckage that has been tossed there by the wind. Numerous church spires were blown down and the street car service was decidedly limited.

Houses Collapsed

From the other side of the Ohio river, in Newport, Covington, Port Thomas and Fort Mitchell, Ky., come reports of collapsed houses, and the street car service entirely suspended.

In the outlying districts of Cincinnati the property damage appears to be heavy, particularly in the residential sections of Clifton, Avondale and College Hill.

One exception, that of five buildings at Sixth and Mound streets, no one locality appears to have suffered more than the other. According to reports this morning, however, it has been found that there are not many buildings in the city that have not suffered to some extent.

Race Horses in Wreck

It was ascertained today that a special train on the Pennsylvania, carrying race horses from the meeting at Latonia recently ended, to the eastern tracks was wrecked at Terrace Park, a short distance from this city. Nineteen of what are considered the best horses that raced at the Latonia meeting were killed. It was also reported that two caretakers were killed and 19 others injured including several jockeys. The large racing stable of E. R. Bradley was on this train.

SWEEP BY TORNADO

Reports Early Today From Eastern Missouri Show That Seven Persons Were Killed

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 8.—Reports early today from eastern Missouri, which was swept by a tornado late yesterday, show that seven persons were killed and several score injured and that three are missing. The damage to buildings and crops is estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000. One of the remarkable features of the tornado was the small number of deaths considering the nature of the property damage.

forcements brought up by Russia along the stretch of territory between the rivers Vistula and Bug, notably in the vicinity of Krasnik, the Austro-Hungarians for the moment have been forced to assume the defensive and to pause in their rush toward Lublin and the rail was running from that city to Warsaw.

Blow at Austrians

The sector on the eastern front where the Russians are making a stand is held almost exclusively by Austrians and observers here see in the Russian attack not only a desire to keep their line intact in this important part, but a deliberate blow at the Austrians who, according to the official reports, seem to be finding themselves in some difficulty.

German Move Toward West

The much discussed German offensive in the west has not yet been definitely reported as a big movement, though reports of a big movement of troops to that front are persistent. These forces must be new formations unless the great offensive on the east is to cease, for to withdraw troops from Poland and Galicia now would be to leave unfinished what Field Marshal von Mackensen set out to accomplish, unless the clearing of Galicia of Russians was the sole aim, and this is considered hardly probable.

Deny German Claim

The Berlin claim that the Germans have re-taken trenches near Ypres, Belgium, recently seized by the British, is not confirmed from British sources. At several points in France the Germans have been attacking violently but the only appreciable loss conceded by the French is in the St. Mihiel district. The French admit they have lost a strip of trenches measuring seven hundred yards. The German official statement more than doubles this distance.

In the Dardanelles

Letting the Turks attack with its resultant heavy loss and exhaustion has been the recent role of the British operating against the Dardanelles. Official dispatches heretofore spoke of the fearlessness and valor of the Turks but Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton's report received yesterday said for the first time that the Turks were showing no disposition to attack.

ATTACK ON ITALIANS REPULSED WITH HEAVY LOSSES

ROME, July 7, via Paris, July 8, 3:40 a. m.—The official statement issued tonight at the headquarters of the Italian general staff was as follows:

"An attack against our position at Passo di Campo, in the Val d'Aoste, was repulsed with heavy loss.

"In Cadore our heavy artillery opened fire on the enemy's defensive works at Corte, in the upper valley of Cordevole. At La Tagliata and Trezzani, in Val Pora, serious damage was done.

"In Carnia we repulsed attacks against our positions at Passo Pramollo, Monte Scharnitz and in the direction of Val Grande.

"Combats continue on the Carnio plateau, where we are making slow but constant progress. Between July 4 and 7 we took 1400 prisoners.

"On the night of July 5 an Italian division effectively bombarded the railway junction north of Udine (northwest of Trieste).

ITALIAN ARMORED CRUISER SUNK BY AUSTRIAN SUBMARINE

BY AUSTRIAN SUBMARINE

ROME, July 7, via Paris, July 8, 8:40 a. m.—The Italian armored cruiser "Amalfi" was torpedoed and sunk at dawn this morning by an Austrian submarine while taking part in a reconnaissance in the upper Adriatic, it was officially announced tonight, by the ministry of marine. Most of the members of the crew were saved.

The text of the statement follows:

"A reconnaissance in force was accomplished last night (July 6) in the upper Adriatic. The Amalfi, which took part in the reconnaissance, was torpedoed at dawn this morning by an Austrian submarine and soon listed heavily to port.

"The commander, before giving orders to the crew to jump overboard, cried: 'Long live the king! Long live Italy!'

"The entire crew was drawn up along the stern, echoed the shout, giving a remarkable exhibition of courage and discipline.

"The commander, who was the last to leave, slipped overboard shortly before the Amalfi sank. Nearly all of the officers and crew were saved."

The Amalfi, which was completed in 1905, had a displacement of 9553 tons and was 425 feet long. Her complement in times of peace was 684.

Pola, the Austrian naval stronghold, is situated in the upper Adriatic at the southern end of the Istria peninsula about 55 miles southeast of Trieste. It is probable the reconnaissance referred to in the Italian statement was in this section of the Adriatic.

GERMAN ATTACKS WERE COM- PLETELY REPULSED, SAYS PARIS

PARIS, July 8, 2:35 p. m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a statement on the progress of hostilities which reads as follows:

"In the region to the north of Arras there were last evening and last night several infantry actions of considerable violence. Between Ancre and Souchez, to the north of the road running from Bethune to Arras a German attack preceded by a heavy bombardment was completely repulsed. At a point to the north of the station of Souchez we delivered an attack which made it possible for us to draw nearer to the village. We took possession of a line of German trenches after having put an end to all the defenders there by the use of hand grenades and bombs. After this we advanced between three trenches. We made some prisoners and captured a cannon.

Kilakos Will Be Tried in Superior Court for Attempted Murder

When the case of James Kilakos, charged with assault with intent to kill his brother-in-law, James Dracoulakos, was called on for continuance in police court this forenoon, Atty. D. J. Donahue, representing the defendant, waived the preliminary hearing in the local court. As a result, Judge Enright found probable cause and ordered Kilakos held in $3000 for the next session of the grand jury. James P. Owens appeared for the prosecution.

The alleged assault occurred in a field in the rear of the Textile school on the night of June 15. Dracoulakos was found lying on the grass about an hour after the trouble and Kilakos was arrested by Patrolman Whitworth early the next morning.

The question of reducing the bail was dismissed by the respective attorneys and Supt. Clark of the Lowell hospital was called to testify as to the complainant's condition. The witness said that when Dracoulakos was taken to the hospital on the night of June 15, he was in a very dangerous condition with a serious bullet wound in his back and a cut on the side of the face. It is alleged that the injuries were caused by a 32 calibre revolver and a razor. He is now on the road to recovery, however, though the bullet is still in his lung.

The complainant appeared in court and seemed to be very weak from loss of blood. When called to testify, it was necessary to place a chair on the witness stand for him to lean on in order that the court might view his condition before fixing the amount of the bail. After hearing both Messrs. Donahue and Owens, Judge Enright decided to allow the bail to remain at $3000.

Other Cases

James H. McBride was adjudged guilty of being a common drunkard after Patrolmen Conside and Swanwick had testified that they had seen him under the influence of liquor nearly every day for three weeks. Complaints have also been made to the officers, they said, about the defendant loitering around barrooms and buildings in the vicinity of Merrimack square. The case was continued until Saturday for sentence.

William J. Hunter, formerly of Everett, pleaded not guilty to being a vagrant. Officer Gookin of Chelmsford said that Hunter had been hanging around a barn in Chelmsford for three or four days and was arrested yesterday for throwing stones at passing automobiles. When asked where he slept nights, the prisoner said he walked nights in an attempt to get work for the day time. His case, too, was continued until Saturday.

Officer "Assaulted"

The case of Tony Silva, charged with drunkenness and assault upon an officer, which has been continued many times on account of the defendant's weak condition, was tried before Judge Enright today and occupied the greater part of the session. At 12:30 o'clock Judge Enright decided to continue the case until tomorrow, when the remainder of the evidence will be submitted.

The alleged assault occurred at Silva's house early in the morning of June 12, when Patrolman Jerome Cullen attempted to quiet a wedding celebration. The officer said that as a result of complaints made by a neighbor he went to Silva's house and requested that they stop the noise, especially on account of the wedding. The defendant was called to the witness stand and started to relate his story, but at 12:30 o'clock Judge Enright had the case continued until 10 o'clock tomorrow.

When Dennis Pendergast was called before the court on continuance for drunkenness, his wife appeared and informed Judge Enright that Dennis had

Lord Mersey Reports on Sinking of Liner Falaba on March 28

LONDON, July 8, 12:25 p. m.—Giving judgment in the board of trade inquiry into the sinking of the African liner Falaba in St. George channel March 28, with the loss of 111 lives, Lord Mersey today found that the ship had been sunk by a torpedo from a German submarine; that the measures for saving life had been promptly carried out and that proper discipline had been maintained.

Lord Mersey added that the submarine made no effort to save life and probably could not do so without endangering itself.

Witnesses Mistaken

Lord Mersey said he was satisfied that the witnesses who had described the life boats as being rotten were mistaken and that the damage sustained in the launching of some of the boats was not due to neglect on the part of the officers or crew.

Blame for the catastrophe, Lord Mersey said, must rest exclusively with the officers and men of the German submarine. The men in the rescuing boats were praised for their courage and kindness.

The allegations brought to the attention of Lord Mersey after the conclusion of the hearing that the Falaba had fired signals calling for assistance were found by him to be without foundation.

GERMANY ORDERS RELEASE OF MME. CARTON DE WIART—SENTENCED FOR WRITING HUSBAND

PARIS, July 8.—The Rome correspondent of the Havas News Agency sends the following:

"The Corriere Del Serra says that news has been received at the vatican that Germany, as a result of the pope's intervention, has ordered the release of Madame Carton de Wiart."

Madame de Wiart, who is the wife of the Belgian minister of justice, was sentenced recently to three months imprisonment for corresponding with her husband, according to news dispatches. The German authorities accused her of endangering the security of German troops. Later, it was reported that she had been sent to Berlin, as a prisoner.

been very delinquent during the past seven weeks about contributing to the support of his minor children. As a result a complaint of non-support was preferred against him. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the house of correction for four months.

Two of a quartet of drunken offenders were on parole from the state farm and hence they were held over until tomorrow morning. In the meantime state officers will return the prisoners to Bridgewater. Two second offenders were fined $6 each.

STORY OF JITNEY IN LOS ANGELES

Mayor Murphy Receives
Interesting Letter
From C. A. Whittet

Former Lowell Man
Says Jitney Is Not

CHARLES A. WHITTET

Mayor Murphy is in receipt of quite an interesting letter from Charles A. Whittet of Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Whittet, a former superintendent of parks in this city, writes concerning the jitney in his city and, inasmuch as the jitney has just made its appearance here, his story is especially interesting. He says that the jitney-bus men in Los Angeles have discovered that they cannot operate at a profit and are dropping out of the business daily. He calls attention to the fact that the city council passed an ordinance requiring the jitney drivers to take out a $5000 insurance policy for the protection of anyone injured. In his letter to the mayor Mr. Whittet enclosed several copies of the new ordinance passed by the city council of Los Angeles and becoming effective July 1. The letter:

Hon. Dennis J. Murphy, Mayor, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: As the jitney is about to make its entry into your city, I thought it might be of interest to you to know how the business has fared in this city.

For some time the business was unregulated, any person paying $2.50 per month was allowed to operate and in five months 177 men of the Los Angeles railway and about the same number on the Pacific Electric have lost their jobs, and the police records show that there were 227 accidents in which one man was killed outright, 248 were injured and there were 1600 insurance policies in which property was damaged.

The city council passed an ordinance to protect the traveling public, which required the jitney bus drivers to take out a $5000 insurance policy to protect anyone injured. The jitney drivers tried to take out a referendum but could not get enough names. The initiative was placed on the ballot.

June 1st with the intention of cutting down the jitney tax to only one dollar a month, and wiping out entirely the $5000 insurance clause of the city council's ordinance, but the people voted in the measure, defeating it by a large majority.

In Los Angeles the first bus was put into operation July 1, 1911. On October 26th there were 71 machines operating here. November 6th, there were 251 machines and December 2d there were 761. January 4th there were 556 and February 7th there were 349. The number operating up to today, when the new ordinance went into effect, is about the same as in February.

Jitney-bus men have found that they cannot operate at a profit. The long hours, the deterioration in the value of the cars, and the inability to carry a large number of passengers per car are the causes. Bus men drop out of the business daily. Their places so far have been taken by new men who yearn for the experience and who think they can profit ahead.

But the records show that the number making the venture is constantly decreasing. Similar reports are being received from other cities.

Respectfully yours,
Charles A. Whittet,
5306 Seventh ave., Mesa Drive, Los Angeles, Cal.
July 1st, 1915.

ALL READ THE SUN DEFEAT OF THE ITALIANS

OVER 50 REPLIES TO BOARD OF TRADE'S "BOY WANTED" IN LAST NIGHT'S SUN

The efficiency of The Sun as an advertising medium was demonstrated today when Secretary John H. Murphy of the Lowell board of trade, who had a little snub inserted in yesterday's issue of The Sun in reference to the employment bureau recently established at the board, received about fifty replies from young men from all over the city.

The advertisement, which was in news form, called for 14 young men, 19 years of age, high school graduates preferred, for office work, the salary being $10 per week. It also stated that all applications should be sent in writing, and the first mail this forenoon brought a stack of replies. When the second mail was delivered over fifty applications for work had been received.

The replies were assorted this afternoon and recommendations were made to the employers. Those who were selected for the position will be notified in writing. Mr. Murphy hopes to send out another call for help within a short time, for the employers are much pleased with the employment bureau.

BERLIN REPORTS GREAT AUSTRIAN VICTORY ON ISONZO FRONT

BERLIN, July 8, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—The battle between the Austrians and Italians on the Isonzo front ended, according to despatches to the Over Seas News agency, with a great defeat and enormous losses for the Italians who outnumbered the Austrians four to one. The Italians kept up an incessant bombardment with their heavy artillery, the advice say, but without effect and in waste of ammunition was tremendous.

DEATHS

DROLET—Joseph A. Drolet, an old resident of Kenwood, Dracut, aged 78 years, 11 months and 8 days, died this morning at his home in Merrimack street. Deceased was favorably known in Dracut and Lowell where he lived practically all his life. He was a contractor by trade, but retired from active work several years ago. He was survived by two sons, George of Bridgeport, Conn., and Henry E. of Kenwood, three daughters, Mrs. Mary Dyer of Kenwood, Miss Ernestine Drolet of Boston and Miss Josephine Drolet of Fall River; a sister, Mrs. Henry Miller of Manchester, N. H.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Your baby should spend most of its indoor life in a nursery free from damp, exposed to sunshine and with free ventilation. There must also be freedom from dust gathering carpets and furniture, arsenic papered walls, and silt harboring cracks in the floor. There must be absolute cleanliness in every condition surrounding the child's life.

Its bed must be far enough away at night from that of the adults to avoid breathing their breath, avoidance of currents of air to avoid rheumatism, painted toys on account of possible poisoning, the avoidance of woolen or feather toys.

You should weigh the infant carefully each week, on a correct standing scale, to determine if its gain is what it should be, if properly fed. Unless there is some definite contraindication, a child should be bathed every morning in water adapted to its vitality, never so cold as to cause blueness or cold extremities, or so hot as to prove injurious.

To amuse a child who is slightly ill or kept indoors by storm, cut out the encyclopedia and turn to the pages of flags printed in various colors. Show the child the page and suggest that you both try to make some flags in the colors shown.

When I tried it with great success I found I had some scraps of sateen and cambric left over from fancy work which served the purpose admirably. Of course any other material would do, and even colored paper pasted on the background of the flag, would do all right. The most used colors are red, white and blue, which will not only make our own flag but are used also in the merchant flag of Germany, the ensign of France and in several others. Yellow and green are the colors next most prominently used.

In our training of children we are constantly tempted to contradict ourselves. At one time we appeal to their bravery, we solicit courage for doing this or that, for enduring pain or discomfort. Shortly we have occasion to call upon fear of injury, or of disapproval. In one case we exalt courage and laud it as among the highest of virtues, and remind the child of all the heroes who have not yet forgotten. But in a few hours we exact prudence and remind him of the miserable fate of the foolhardy who did not look twice before they leaped.

It is not necessary, however, to suppose that courage and caution exclude each other. Fear as a help in training is a double edged weapon. We have learned that obedience based on fear will turn into defiance at the critical point. Parents who rule through a sympathetic understanding and firm hold of the child's needs, are far more successful than those who arouse fear.

ALL RECORDED DECLINES

LIQUIDATION RESUMED AT OPENING—TRADING ACTIVE BUT IN SMALL VOLUME—CLOSING HEAVY

NEW YORK, July 8.—Liquidation was resumed at today's opening all parts of the list recording declines. Louisville and Nashville, St. Paul, Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific, yesterday's weakest features, lost 1 to 2 points in the initial dealing. Chesapeake & Northwestern fell 3-5 to 117 7-8, the lowest price in years. Missouri Pacific at 4 1-4 made a new low and other secondary railways as well as industrials declined fractions. U. S. Steel was the most steady leader, losing its moderate decline and preferred shares being in small volume. Rallies were quite general before the end of the first half hour. The rally carried some stocks well above yesterday's close but was followed by renewed selling of the Southern Railway shares, Louisville & Nashville, and Southern Railway pf, making new low records. Other more active issues then yielded to bear pressure and foreign offerings, but recovered on the support accorded to Union Pacific and Steel. On the second half the market became listless with narrow price changes. Among the high priced specialties American Products was conspicuous for a further gain of 1-4 points. Sales of Japanese 2 1-2 per cent bonds bearing the German stamp suggested liquidation by Berlin. Low priced railways were the sole feature of the mid-session. Missouri Pacific continued to decline to 3 1-2 while Missouri, Kansas & Texas continued easy. July 8, 8:55, October 27, December 5, 3; January 5, 3; March 5, 3. Publication of the government crop report showing unfavorable conditions in corn caused further recession in the final hour. The closing was heavy.

CITY HALL NEWS

Conference on the New High School Question
Tomorrow Afternoon

The municipal council will meet tomorrow forenoon at 11 o'clock ostensibly for the approval of bills and in a clandestine for the transaction of what ever other business there may be on hand. It is not expected that the Pawtucket bridge question will receive any attention as the consulting engineers, Messrs. Swain and Worcester, have not yet reported on the plans. In the afternoon at 4 o'clock the council and school board will have a conference relative to the seizure of land in Anne and Kirk streets for a new high school.

Insurance Money Coming In

It was stated today that the insurance money on the Memorial buildings was coming in with almost clock-like precision and the mayor said that he expects it will all be in this week. That reconstruction work will start as soon as all of the insurance money has been received. The money will be deposited in the general treasury and will be immediately appropriated for the general treasury for the reconstruction of Memorial hall.

Another Tax Law

Under the new law passed by the legislature which became operative during the past week citizens are not compelled to pay their taxes until Nov. 1. This means quite an extension of time in some cities, but not in Lowell. In several of the cities collections have dated from Sept. 1. The time for collection in Lowell has been Oct. 20, but that the new law doesn't amount to much insofar as we are concerned. However, if the tax bills are not paid by Nov. 1 the city can collect interest dating from Oct. 20. The purpose of the new act is to facilitate the prompt payment of taxes.

Cost of Celebration

Lowell's July 4th celebration cost the city $4123, $1123 more than was appropriated. The sum of $3000 was appropriated for the celebration and the cost over and above that amount will come out of various appropriations, including the sewerage and water works. The celebration, however, more than paid for itself as the concessions on the commons, the program, sale of permits, etc., the mayor says, will amount to about $4300.

Dogs May Be Muzzled

It is understood that if rabies should develop here an order will be issued for the muzzling of all dogs. All of the day police officers have been given warrants for the owners of all unlicensed dogs and it is up to the officers to kill the dogs and hale the owners into court.

Roadway, Caves In

Charles J. Morse, commissioner of streets and highways, says that the story of the road giving way at the junction of Stockton and East Merrimack streets had been very much exaggerated. It was stated that twenty-five feet of the roadway had gone down, but Mr. Morse says that isn't so. The fact remains that there was a cave-in and while the hole in the street is not very large, the hole underneath is quite spacious and it was stated this afternoon that the cave-in was caused by a broken water pipe that was leaking at that point. As to the break in the sewer Mr. Morse said it wouldn't amount to much as the river is but a short distance away and what sewage escapes will find its way to the river. The break will be mended as quickly as possible.

Alterations to Buildings

Anna Tucker has been granted a permit for additions and alterations to a building at 632 School street. The alterations will represent the making over of a one family dwelling to a two family dwelling, making twelve rooms of five rooms each. The estimated cost of the additions and alterations is $150. Mrs. Thomas Stott has been granted a permit for a $700 addition to a garage at 209 Nesmith street.

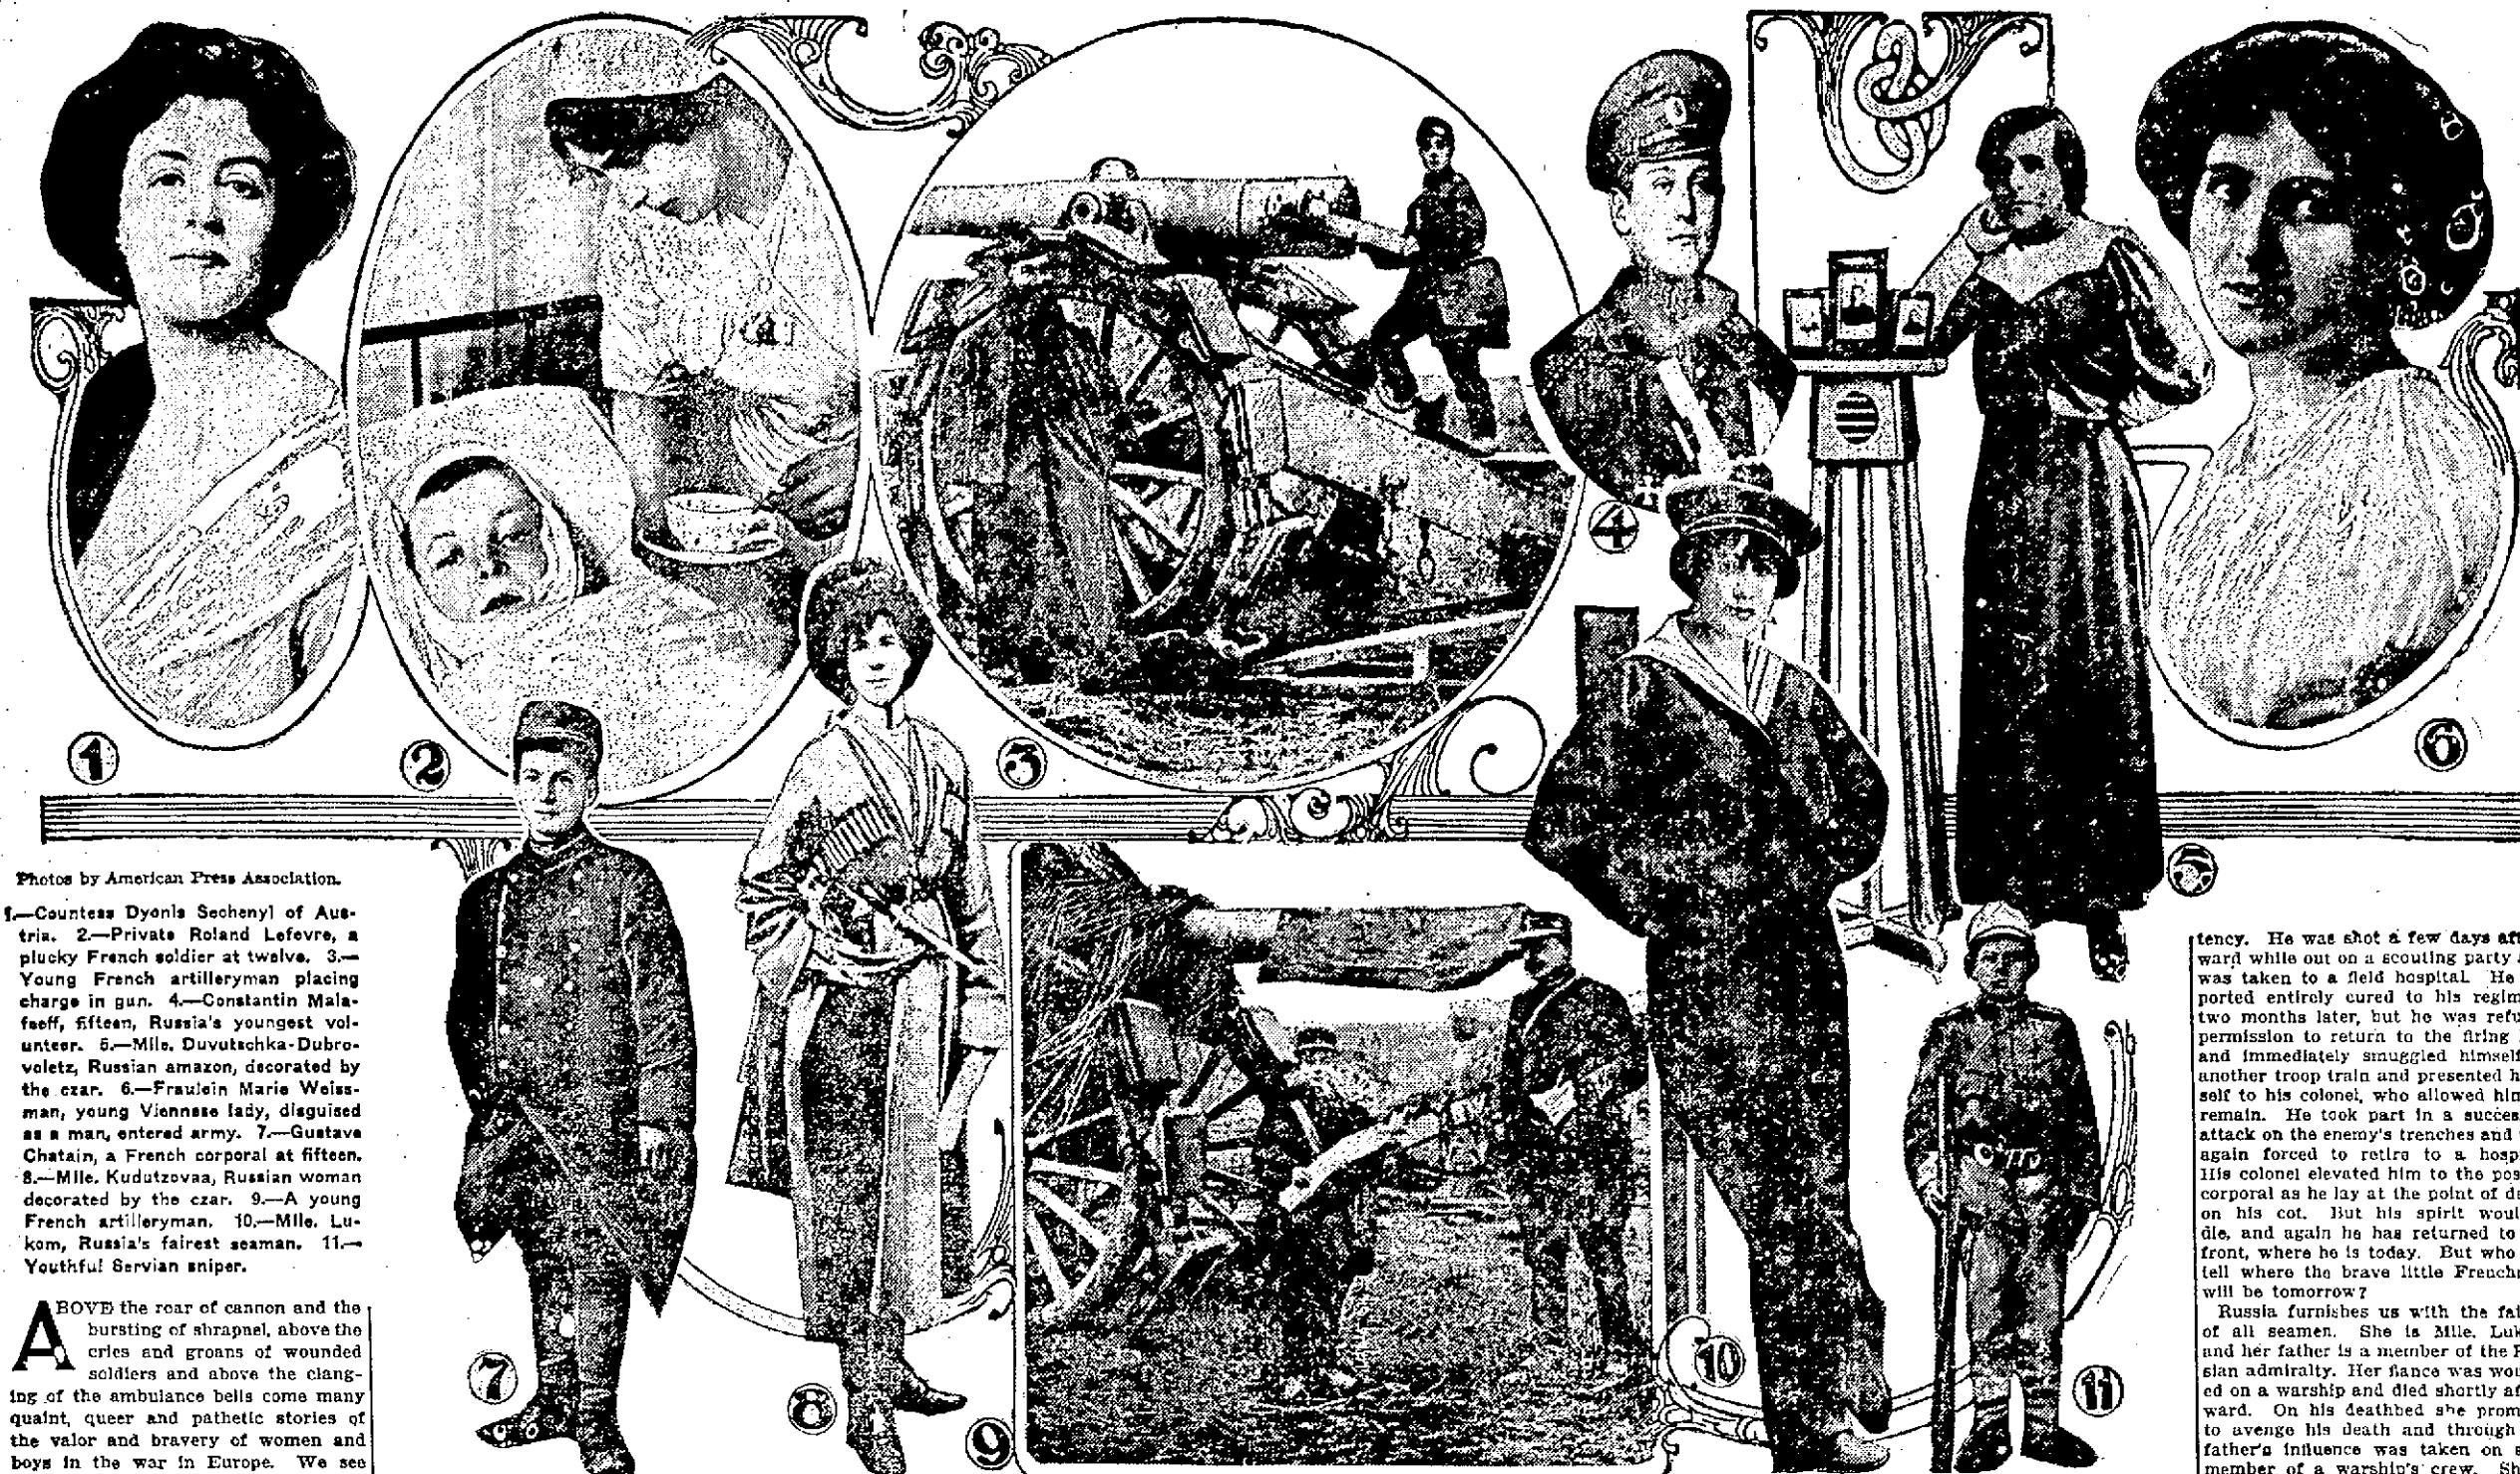

Work in Rogers Street

Commissioner Morse says he is being delayed in his paving work in Rogers street by the street railway company. The company was granted a permit at the last meeting of the city council for the re-location of poles in Rogers street and the poles have not yet been installed. The company will also lay new iron in Rogers street and the work will have to be done before Mr. Morse can complete his work there. Mr. Morse stated today that his new concrete mixer has arrived and will be in operation as soon as the man who understands it arrives here. The machine was purchased in Milwaukee and in order to have a man come here from Milwaukee to demonstrate the machine, Mr. Morse had to get permission from the civil service commission. The man from Milwaukee will remain here three days.

Duvutshka-Dubrovoletz, Russian amazon, decorated by the czar. 6.—Fraulein Marie Weissman, young Viennese lady, disguised as a man, entered army. 7.—Gustave Chatain, a French corporal at fifteen. 8.—Mile. Kuduzova, Russian woman decorated by the czar. 9.—A young French artilleryman. 10.—Mile. Lukom, Russia's fairest seaman. 11.—Youthful Serbian sniper.

ABOVE the roar of cannon and the bursting of shrapnel, above the cries and groans of wounded soldiers and above the clanging of the ambulance bells come many quaint, queer and pathetic stories of the valor and bravery of women and boys in the war in Europe. We see mere children acting as artillerymen, we see women making all kinds of sacrifices in their desire to bring victory to their native countries, and we see demonstrated the fact that women are fully as brave and chivalrous as men.

One of the most conspicuous examples is furnished by Countess Dyonis Sechenyl, a leader in Austrian society, who has been constantly on the firing line since the outbreak of hostilities. It is her mission, and she assumed it herself, to record the dying words of soldiers and send their relatives a written report. For her services in the field she has been awarded the golden cross of merit.

French peasants a father with a boy of twelve was summoned to the colors. The lad had no mother and insisted on accompanying the troops to the front. He was called on to perform little duties for the men in the trenches and while fulfilling these was severely wounded. He was treated in a French military hospital and in order to comply with the law had to be given a commission. He is now Private Roland Lefevre of the regiment D'Infanterie and is slowly recovering at the Val de Grace Complimentary hospital in Paris.

Constantin Malafief is the youngest volunteer in the Russian army. At fifteen he was made knight of the Military Order of St. George and shortly afterward was promoted to the rank of sergeant. He is now in command of a company of soldiers in Poland.

Three Russian women have been recently decorated by the czar in person. They were awarded the military Order of Valor. Mile. Duvutshka-Dubrovoletz was honored for her bravery in carrying important dispatches through the enemy's lines in the eastern arena. Mile. Kuduzova holds a noncommissioned rank in a Cossack regiment that took part in the operations around Przemyśl. She rescued two wounded soldiers who, according to reports, were at the point of being killed by an Austrian. The Russian woman killed her enemy. Mile. Vestuschka rescued a Russian officer, Captain Klimoff, who was dangerously wounded. She was shot twice while dragging the captain to cover.

Enlisted Disguised as a Man.

Fraulein Marie Weissman, a young Viennese lady, was discovered serving in the ranks of an Austrian army disguised as a man. In recognition of her remarkable bravery she was recommended for a commission. She succeeded in entering the army as a one year volunteer after obtaining a sword, uniform and the necessary military papers. One year volunteers are men who serve at their own expense and are treated more like officers than soldiers in the ranks.

Fraulein Weissman fought with the Austrian army on the Russian front for two months, and her extraordinary zeal and bravery resulted in her promotion to an officer's rank. The "slim young hero" was sent to headquarters, where the secret of her sex was discovered. She is now with the Red Cross.

Gustave Chatain is the new petty corporal in the French army. He is fourteen and the son of a market gardener. While working in his father's field a regiment passed. He threw aside his shovel and fell in behind the troops and managed to smuggle himself in the train which carried the regiment to the firing line. The men soon looked upon him as the child of the regiment and a small uniform was quickly provided. His biographer states that he was allowed to enlist in the regiment in the regular way two months later after he had captured, single handed, seven Germans who were discovered in a house near Fontenoy.

Servia furnishes us with the fairest of all seamen. She is Mile. Lukom, and her father is a member of the Russian admiralty. Her fiancé was wounded on a warship and died shortly afterward. On his deathbed she promised to avenge his death and through her father's influence was taken on as a member of a warship's crew. She is now said to be serving aboard the Rurik.

Practically every boy in that country old enough to shoulder a gun is at the front. These youths are valuable as snipers and conceal themselves in trees and woods and fire on reconnoitering parties.

Foreign women have displayed their bravery on the field of battle and have been honored and rewarded. But perhaps the bravest of the brave are those mothers at home who bid their sons godspeed as they go to fight the enemy whether it be German or French, British or Austrian, Serbian, Italian or Turkish.

Robert Lansing, Newly Appointed Head of State Department

NONE of the many strange changes effected by the war in Europe has been more remarkable than the rise of Robert Lansing from the comparative obscurity of the practice of his profession as an international lawyer to the highest place next to the president in the conduct of America's foreign relations. In the last few months his name has become almost a household word, as it is more and more publicly connected with the consideration of the grave issues which absorb the attention of the government and the country.

thought, and a complete lack of any apparent desire to arrogate to himself any influence or position not inherently a part of his position at the state department. Lansing never has regarded himself as a part of the political side of the administration, but always has regarded himself as a trained man in international law called in to assist in the solution of its legal problems.

Through a lifelong training in international law and the business of governments with each other, Mr. Lansing has become firmly established in the principles that govern foreign relations. His feet are planted firmly on the solid foundations of fact and principle; his training and experience have never admitted the coming into play of any theories of government or doctrines for the attainment of the idealist's dreams.

Other striking characteristics of Mr. Lansing are poise, calmness, capacity for unflinching deliberation, methodical and analytical habits of mind and an unflinching directness of word and act. Since he has been in the state department he has never been seen in the slightest degree perturbed or worried, though upon his shoulders have been placed the responsibility for initiating of great problems without having had the mental discipline afforded by the study of mathematics.

Lansing has the faculty of drawing out others without revealing much that is in his own mind. In the conferences he goes on daily in his office it is his callers who do most of the talking. Lansing throws in a sentence here and there, just enough to keep the discussion within the channels desired or to indicate in a general way his own views. The result usually is that when the discussion is over Lansing knows every thought and consideration in the mind of his caller, while the latter goes away with the idea that he has just had a chat with an intelligent and agreeable gentleman.

It is one of Lansing's customs in such conversation to make drawings on a note pad; these drawings, usually they are rough sketches and generally of geometrical figures, often display real ability, but they go into the wastebasket as fast as completed. He is also fond of smoking a pipe in the privacy of his office.

Another happy faculty possessed by Mr. Lansing is that of getting along well with all sorts of men.

When Mr. Bryan resigned as head of the state department Mr. Lansing automatically became secretary of state ad interim. The president announced on June 23 the permanent appointment of the former counselor and thus a man comparatively unknown before became head of the most important governmental department.

Mr. Lansing was born Oct. 17, 1864, at Watertown, N. Y., where for a time he practiced law following his graduation from Amherst college. He is the author of "Government, Its Origin, Growth and Form in the United States" and of numerous articles on diplomatic subjects. In 1890 he married Miss Eleanor Foster, daughter of John W. Foster, secretary of state under Grover Cleveland. With Mrs. Lansing he now resides at Mr. Foster's home in Washington.

In 1892 he was appointed associate counsel for the United States in the fur seal arbitration, which was conducted in Paris in the following year. During 1894 and 1895 he was counsel for the Chinese and Mexican legations in Washington. In 1896 and 1897 he represented the United States government at the sittings of the Bering sea claims commission held at Victoria, B. C., Montreal and Halifax.

Between 1897 and 1914 he was engaged, either as counsel, delegate or agent, before the Alaskan boundary tribunal in London. The Hague tribunal and the fur seal conference at Washington, besides being special counsel for the department of state in regard to a number of diplomatic and arbitration matters.

In the midst of all the official business, and notwithstanding the urgent claims of his private clients, Mr. Lansing has found time to make a number of contributions to the American Journal of International Law, of which he is one of the editors.

Such, in the barest outline, has been the career of the man who, by a sudden turn of the political wheel for which he was in no way responsible, finds himself at the head of the state department at one of the most exciting moments in American history.

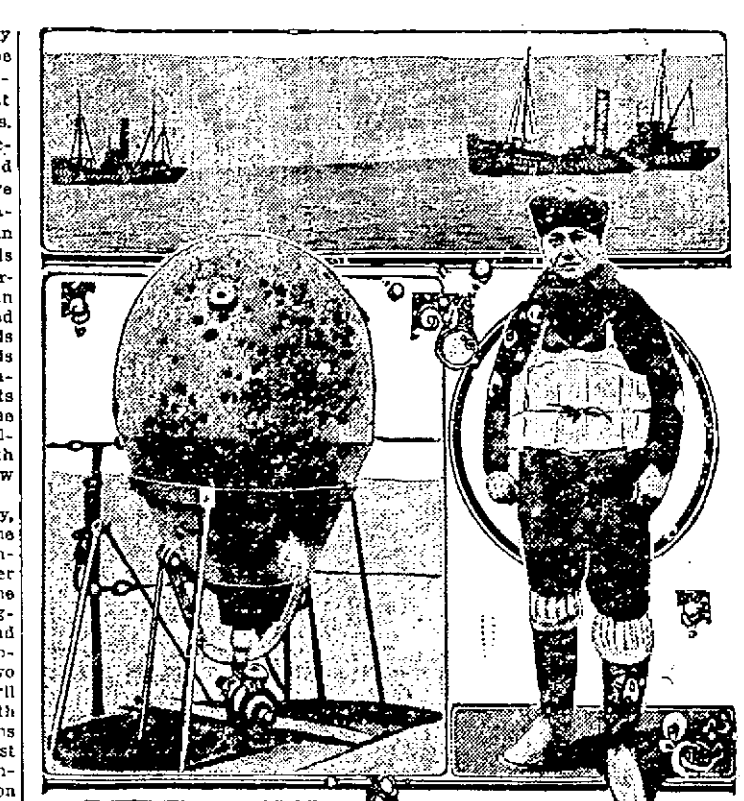

Sweeping For Mines a Perilous Task

NOT until the complete history of this war is written will be known the humble and dangerous, yet all important part, played by the mine sweepers. The British admiralty has publicly recognized the work of these boats and their crews, and many of the men have received well earned honors. The seaman in the illustration is dressed in the garb worn when the weather is rough and mine sweeping more dangerous than usual. His feet, encased in heavy sea boots, are further protected by woolen overstockings. Round his neck he wears a life belt, and on his head a cap, which during the past winter proved of great comfort with its ear flaps and neck guard. Most of the men employed in the work have gallantly volunteered for their jobs with navy men to train them in their new trade.

With another trawler in company, away either to port or starboard, the trawlers work, connected to one another by a steel cable that goes over their bucking stern down toward the bottom of the sea and then in a bulging loop crosses to the other vessel and up to her bollards. This is the sweeping wire, which, kept below by the two iron kites, "creeps" for the unseen peril—the floating mines which are beneath them. If luck be with them the chains which hold the explosive globes just below the surface, and which are anchored at the bottom end to the iron sinkers on the sea bottom, are caught by the sweeping wire and the mine is dragged up and exploded. If, however, luck is against them, then their own stem may strike the mine. Instantly there is a roaring, tearing explosion, a gush of water and flame, and one more stout trawler will never more roll its way home again.

Not only in the North sea have they carried on their dangerous work, but they have gone away down into the eastern Mediterranean, and between the grim gun protected hills of the Dardanelles they have steamed in night after night to clear the waterway for the safe passage of the allied battle-ships, braving in this case not only the dangers that lurk below the surface, but also the fierce fire from the Turkish batteries. From the early days of August their work has never ceased, and, although many have been lost, they have removed scores of mines and saved many a good ship and thousands of human lives.

During the work in the Dardanelles the trawler Manx Hero was blown up. Hearing cries for help, Captain Woodgate of the trawler Koorah turned his ship round and with the truest traditions of pluck and seamanship decided to save his fellow sweepers. He called for volunteers to man the small boat. It was thrown over the ship's side and into it jumped the boatswain and two deck hands. Away they rowed, with shot and shell pitching thick around their tiny craft, while Captain Woodgate stood at the helm, keeping his ship as near as he could to the boat. The crew of eleven from the Manx Hero were rescued and put aboard the Koorah.

The Koorah was now the last sweeper and with powerful searchlights flashed on her there seemed little chance for her to get through as she was the center of the fire from the forts. Again sound judgment saved the Koorah. Observing the faults of the marksmen, Captain Woodgate steered the trawler toward the northern shore and came through the fire zone safe.

Captain James of the Beatrice says of his exciting experiences off Smyrna: "Five of us accompanied the battleships Swiftsure and Triumph and the cruiser Euryalus. The Triumph was the first to open the bombardment, but the Turks did not reply. The next morning the sweepers received orders to go in and sweep. Right in toward the harbor we steamed, right in as far as the buoys were placed. We had our sweeps ready to shoot out when we were signaled to retire. Then the music began. As we turned they let us have it pretty warm. It was a rare race for life to steam out of range. Shells fell thick around us, but luckily all missed their mark. One shell would have smashed any one of the sweepers. It was quite a miracle that we came out unhit. Had the Turks behind those guns been more careful we should not have stood a dog's chance."

Robert Lansing and the home of the state department.

Diplomats, business men and the general public have come to look to Lansing both for action and information in matters concerned with our foreign relations. Without any known political aspirations, with practically no political record, Mr. Lansing now finds himself a great figure in one of the history making political crises of the government.

The most striking characteristic about the man is his natural modesty, an absolute simplicity of manner and

Gov. Walsh and State
Delegation Leave—
Lowell Men in Party

BOSTON, July 8.—The delegation which is to represent the state at the Panama-Pacific exposition departed from Boston on the train leaving at 5.03 last evening from the South station.

It comprised Gov. Walsh and two of his military staff, Capt. William B. Stearns and Major William J. Casey; Senator John W. Haigis of Montague, who took the place of Pres. Calvin Coolidge of the senate; Speaker Channing H. Cox of the house of representatives; Senator Redmond S. Fitzgerald of Boston, Senator Charles W. Eldridge of Somerville, Representative Henry Achin, Jr. of Lowell, Rep. John E. Hull of Great Barrington, Representative Frederick H. Lucke of Worcester, Representative Edward F. McLaughlin of Boston and Sgt.-at-Arms Thomas E. Pedrick, all of whom are authorized by this year's legislature to make the trip at the expense of the commonwealth.

In addition to the official party were the following, who have reservations in the same special car, but who must pay their own way: State Treas. Chas. L. Burrill, Miss Ellen Maudie Burrill of Lynn, secretary to Sgt.-at-Arms Pedrick; Mrs. Elizabeth P. Kimball of Lynn, Miss Elsie Kimball of Lynn, Michael J. Dwyer of Boston and his daughter, Miss Frances Tracey Dwyer; Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLaughlin of West Roxbury, John B. Peinault of Lowell, Kellon B. Miller of Pittsfield, Col. Charles L. Woodward of Wakefield, Charles A. Southworth, stenographer in the executive department, and Mrs. Southworth.

About 150 friends were at the station to see the party off. These included Maj. Thomas L. Walsh, the governor's brother; members of the governor's military staff and others well known in political circles. Two little girls, Grace Price of 38 Brookline street and Josephine Collins of 65 Brookline street, brought to Representative McLaughlin a huge bouquet of red roses as an expression of goodwill from his constituents in the South End.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Edward P. Barry, accompanied by Chairman Michael A. O'Leary of the democratic state committee, came down to say goodbye to the governor and express their best wishes.

"I told the governor to have a good rest and to come back and run again," said Mr. Barry to the reporter. "I shall keep an eye on the situation while he is gone, and if I think the other side is getting too active I shall begin a campaign myself, not as a candidate for any nomination, but as a democrat. I shall discuss national issues and work solely for the party's interests and not those of any individual."

BOY RUN OVER BY AUTO
SUPT. WOODWARD OF NEW HAVEN ROAD DEEPLY AFFECTED BY ACCIDENT IN DEDHAM

DEDHAM, July 8.—Jesse A. Silver, aged 12, of East street, East Walpole, was run over and painfully injured last evening by an automobile owned by Mrs. Alice B. Woodward of 815 Central street, Jamaica Plain, and operated by her husband, C. N. Woodward, general superintendent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

The accident happened on Washington street at the entrance of Westwood park. The boy had come from Walpole in a jitney bus, and crossing the street in back of the bus, was watching another automobile coming from the direction of Norwood.

The Woodward car, bound toward Norwood, struck the boy as he had almost reached the sidewalk. The right lamp hit him and the two right wheels ran over him. When Mr. Woodward, the only occupant of the car, saw the boy lying in the street, he was so affected by the sight that for some time he sat there, his head in his hands, before he felt equal to backing the car.

Meanwhile, two young men from Westwood had picked the boy up and Mr. Woodward took him in the automobile to the Norwood hospital. There Dr. Hartwell reports that his condition is not serious, although he has two scalp wounds, a fractured rib on the right side and cuts and bruises all over his body.

STEP UP LADIES

No Relief From High Car Steps for Another Year

Lowell women, with others, will be subjected to the discomfort of the high steps on street cars for another year as the result of the ruling of the public service commission recently, which gave the street railway companies another year in which to fulfill the requirements of the law which was to have become effective July 1 of this year. The request of the companies for more time was granted with the understanding that no further extension would be asked.

The law was passed a year ago after there had been a statewide protest against the height of the steps. Narrow skirts were in vogue at that time and the need of lower steps was unusually apparent, especially when the ladies boarded the cars. With the change in style this year, however, the need was not so apparent and when the street car companies brought forth figures to show what it would cost and why they would be unable to meet the requirements in time, the request was granted.

FULL-TIME PLAYGROUNDS OPENED YESTERDAY MORNING AND HALF-DAY GROUNDS IN AFTERNOON

The four full-time playgrounds opened yesterday morning, but there was very little doing on the South common owing to the fact that the debris and refuse from the midway had not been cleared away. The full-time playgrounds include the North and South commons, Alken street and Paige street. The greater part of the forenoon was spent in getting the apparatus in position. In the afternoon, yesterday, the four half-day playgrounds were opened. These are the Lakeview avenue and Franklin and Fayette street schools, and the Textile school grounds.

Miss Katherine M. Tobin, head supervisor for the girls' department, has a schedule of hours for the different play periods, the baths and the industrial work, which will go into effect Monday, after the attendance becomes normal and material for the industrial work has been provided. It is planned to have this schedule carried out so far as possible in unison, on each of the playgrounds.

That the children were eager for the baths to be opened was demonstrated Tuesday afternoon when many of them, carrying towels and clean clothes, appeared at the doors and were terribly disappointed to learn that the baths would not open until the following day.

PLUNGED INTO RIVER

AUTO HIT END OF BRIDGE AND FELL INTO RIVER - DRIVER REACHED BANK

PORTLAND, Me., July 8.—Summer Smith of Bangor, an automobile agent, yesterday afternoon, while driving his car rapidly, in approaching the iron bridge over the Presumpscot at West Falmouth, left the road, went between two trees, hit the end of the bridge and plunged into the river.

Mr. Smith was thrown out, and managed to reach the bank at a point where it required something of an effort to scramble up and crossed a field to a house.

The news of the accident reached Portland and Sheriff William M. Penhall, heading a squad of deputy sheriffs, went to West Falmouth and sent the half-drowned man in. He was exhausted, but was not even slightly injured. His valuable automobile is under 18 feet of water and an attempt will be made in the morning to take it out.

Mr. Smith said last evening that the accident was caused by his trying to avoid a collision with another car. He was forced from the road and was unable to get back. The other car passed safely.

SELLING CITY LAND

QUEER STATE OF AFFAIRS IN MAYOR MURPHY'S IDEAL CITY - DEEDS WERE WORTHLESS

SPRINGFIELD, July 8.—That certain individuals have been selling city land to persons who purchased in good faith, and that supposedly bona fide deeds were passed in the transactions, was the statement made by Mayor Since last night. He declared that, no less than 30 lots belonging to the city have been thus sold. He declined to make public the names of the sellers or the location of the lots in question.

He says the land sold adjoins property owned by these individuals, and that they knowingly allowed the purchasers to suppose that they were purchasing property with a clear title. He is investigating the transactions and will make details public within a few days. The deeds, of course, are worthless.

BRIDGE WORK SUSPENDED

LAWRENCE, July 8.—Unusually high water due to the recent heavy rainfall has interfered with the construction of the central bridge over the Merrimack river. All work on the piers in the stream has been suspended.

NO LICENSE TO DRUGGISTS

LAWRENCE, July 8.—The licensing board of Lawrence has placed the ban on druggists' licenses. Druggists' licenses or licenses of the sixth class granted for the year 1914 expired April 30 of the present year and up to the present time the license commissioners have not taken any action looking toward favorable consideration of applications for renewals and it is further understood that no druggist licenses will be granted during the ensuing year.

Druggists are prohibited under the law to keep any intoxicating liquors upon their premises excepting those who have an internal revenue license which authorizes them to keep a limited quantity for medicinal purposes only.

MR. BIRD WILL NOT RUN

He Notifies the Progressive State Committee of His Conclusion—His Letter

The following letter has been sent to the progressive state committee by Charles Sumner Bird, declining to enter the primaries this fall as a candidate for governor:

Boston, July 6, 1915.

Mr. Lauriston Ward, Acting Chairman State Committee, Progressive Party, Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Ward: I have carefully considered the resolutions passed by the progressive state committee in which I am requested to enter the primaries at the next election. On April 30th, last, I wrote that I feel that there exists any such duty. Whenever such a duty exists I shall feel the first to do my share in the fight.

The situation today is no different than it was when I wrote that letter. While you, and others, have urged me to be a candidate on the ground of public duty, yet as I see it, no such duty exists; therefore I shall not be a candidate for governor at the coming election.

Yours very truly,

Charles Sumner Bird

CHARLES SUMNER BIRD

would not be a candidate for governor and in that letter I stated:

"There are many personal reasons why I should not, which I would only disregard if there were some strong public duty calling me, and I do not

HIS LEG BROKEN

Michael Tuite Fell Over Embankment in First Street Yesterday

A man who gave his name and address as Michael Tuite of Blackstone, Mass., crawled into the First street garage shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and informed the occupants that he had fallen off a wall down the embankment some time last night and sustained a fracture of the leg. He was taken into the garage and cared for until the arrival of the ambulance, whence he was removed to St. John's hospital.

From the information secured from the injured man, it seems that he was walking through First street late last night and sat on a wall to rest. In some way he lost his balance and fell down the bank. On account of the injury to his leg he was not able to regain his feet and so he lay in the open exposed to the rain until about 8 o'clock this morning when he managed to accumulate enough strength to crawl to the garage.

The ambulance physicians stated that Tuite had sustained an injury to his leg and was also suffering from exposure and lack of nourishment.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

At the regular meeting of Court City of Lowell, 30, Foresters of America, held last evening in Odd Fellows building, the following officers were installed:

Chief ranger, Joseph McInerney; sub-chief ranger, Henry J. McEvoy; recording secretary, George B. McKenna; senior woodward, Charles Richards; junior woodward, Michael Sullivan; senior beadle, Eugene P. Sullivan; junior beadle, Michael Gilligan; lecturer, William Cassin. The installing officers were District Deputy Grand Chief Ranger, Nels Nelson, assisted by Treasurer John A. Nelson of Court Scandia, 152, who acted as herald. Nels Nelson is at present chief ranger of Court Scandia. After the installation, refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed. Remarks were made by several members.

Royal Arcanum

The annual outing of Industry council, 1723, Royal Arcanum, will be held in August according to the vote of the members last evening. The date will be announced at the next meeting. The business was transacted and there were remarks by John H. McGuinness, John J. Dunn, Richard T. Mower and Charles H. O'Donnell.

British American Social Club

The regular meeting of the British American Social club was held last evening in Post 120 hall with President Nell McNeill Waters in the chair. The following committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual outing to be held in August: Mrs. Boughton, Mrs. Orrell, Mrs. Axon, James Hart, George Pearson and Mr. Enright. Three applications for membership were received and acted upon favorably. After the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed by the members and their friends, with pleasing refreshments. The musical program included songs by Miss Boughton and Willard Axon; readings, Peter Caddell, and Scotch dances by Miss Bessie Clark and Miss Frances Gillespie.
